Father Morretto Vehemently Denies That He Harbored Murderer for Two Days.

ADMITS SEEING SLAYER

Yields Finally to Insistence and Gives Statement to the Prosecutor.

HOW GIRL WAS SLAIN

Cocchi Says He Stifled Her Outcries, Then Struck Her—Victim's Sister Tried in Vain to Stir Police.

Members of the District Attorney's staff, Mrs. Grace Humiston, and a number of police and detectives descended late last night on the Rev. Gaspar Morretto, manager of the St. Rafael Society for Italian Immigrants, at 8 and 10 Charlton Street. The name of Father Morretto had been unexpectedly brought into the Cruger case by a cable message from Italy, giving further details of the confession by Alfredo Cocchi of the murder of Ruth Cruger. This message said that Cocchi, after the murder, and before he sailed for Italy, had, according to his own story, spent two days and a night in the house of a priest in Charlton Street.

Father Morretto, a short, thickset, swarthy man, appeared much disturbed when, on opening the door of the society house last night, he found himself face to face with a number of detectives and newspaper men. He readily admitted that he knew Cocchi, and that he had performed the marriage ceremony for him and Mrs. Cocchi about ten years ago.

When he was asked when he had last seen Cocchi, Father Morretto replied that about four or five years ago—he did not remember the exact date—he had gone to Cocchi's shop on Eighty-third Street to have a motor cycle repaired. Asked if this was positively the last time that he had seen Cocchi, he repeated that it was.

"Did any detectives come to see you at the time Ruth Cruger's disappearance became known, in the latter part of February?" he was asked.

"No," he replied, "no detectives came near me, but Miss Cruger's sister came here with a very nice young man, a Catholic, and asked me if I knew anything about Cocchi. 'I am sorry,' I told them, 'but I don't know anything about him."

"Have you seen him since Feb. 13?" one of the reporters asked. There was a long pause, and then Father Morretto replied in his broken English:

"When a man comes to a priest and talks, the priest can say nothing about it."

"We are not speaking of the confessional," said the reporter. "We asked if you had seen Cocchi since Feb. 13." The priest became even more disturbed. He half turned away, wrung his hands, started to speak, hesitated, and finally said:

"If the Judge asked me in court——" he left the sentence unfinished. The question was repeated, but Father Morretto turned, without replying, and entered the house.

A few moments later, however, he appeared once more on the doorstep and said firmly, "I have not seen Cocchi now."

"You mean that you have not seen him since Feb. 13?" he was asked.

"That is what I mean," he said, shaking his head vehemently. "I have not seen him." Then, after a pause, he went on:

"If you watch the papers, in a few days you will see that Cocchi has gone insane—but I am not a doctor."

In reply to further questions, Father Morretto denied that he was the manager of the Rafael Society's lodging house at 6 Water Street, but admitted that he had authority to let any person lodge there without being questioned by the actual manager. This information has caused the police to believe that it was in the Water Street house, instead of the Charlton Street one, that Cocchi may have hidden.

Door Closed to Detective.

Immediately after divulging this fact, Father Morretto went back into his house, closed the door and refused to come out again. A little later Jules J. Kron, a private detective who has worked on the case with Mrs. Humiston from the beginning, arrived, but all his efforts to gain admittance, or to persuade Father Morretto to come to the door and speak to him, were vain.

Kron said that he and Mrs. Humiston had come across the priest's name very early in their investigation, and that he himself had repeatedly and unsuccessfully tried to obtain an interview with him. In March they had employed a woman detective, who had called Father Morretto on the telephone, told him she was a Catholic, and asked if she might see him. He had told her to come to the house, but when she arrived a little later he refused to open the door to her. Some detectives of the William J. Burns Agency, employed by Mr. Cruger, Kron said, had had a similar experience.

While Kron was telling this story to the newspaper men grouped on Father Morretto's doorstep, Assistant District Attorney John J. Fitzpatrick arrived. He also rang the doorbell for some time without result. Finally a woman opened an upper window and looked out. Mr. Fitzpatrick asked for Father Morretto.

"You cannot see him," she replied. "He has gone to bed. He will not see any one tonight. Come around at half-past eight in the morning, and he will see you." Mr. Fitzpatrick then went to a nearby telephone and called up the

King to Call Venizelos; Zaimis Cabinet Resigns

ATHENS, June 25.—The Greek Cabinet headed by Alexander Zaimis has resigned.

King Alexander has informed M. Jonnart, the High Commissioner representing France, Great Britain, and Russia, that he will ask former Premier Venizelos to form a new Cabinet.

The Zaimis Cabinet was formed on May 4. It has been authoritatively stated that if Venizelos returned to power he would cause the illegality of the present Chamber, elected in December, 1915, to be proclaimed, and the Chamber elected in the previous May, and illegally dissolved in November, reseated.

ESTIMATES UPSET BY STATE CENSUS

CHANCE FOR LATE COMERS

They Have Two Days More in All the Boroughs to Comply with the Law.

The time for taking the State Military Census ended last night, and from the figures then available Director Goodrich said that in New York more than the estimated number of those between the ages af 16 and 50 had complied with the law. From the returns in the five boroughs and with several outlying districts still to be heard from, Mr. Goodrich placed the city registration at 2,826,115, but it is probable, he said, that in the final returns 100,000 more names may be added to the lists. It was decided at the last minute to accommodate those who have not had either the time or the opportunity to register to keep open a few registration places in each of the five boroughs for two days longer. The following table shows how the number of those who registered compared with the estimates:

	Estimated.	Registered.
Brooklyn	1,050,000	[illegible]
Bronx	356,000	[illegible]
Queens	217,000	264,000
Richmond	80,000	60,000
Total	2,811,000	2,826,115

There have already been returned to headquarters at 261 Broadway 2,300,000 signed blanks. In the total are the 55,000 blanks sent in by mail from out-of-town New Yorkers and 20,000 filled in by commuters on the Staten Island ferryboats. Registration during the last day proceeded at an even pace, and the officials estimated that 210,000 passed before the registrars before the books were closed.

"The returns from all parts of the city indicate," said Mr. Goodrich, "that the total registration is more than the original estimate. This is a showing that should make every one proud of the city, which, with its hundreds of thousands of persons born in alien countries and a mixed population such as can be found nowhere else in the world, has come forward to assist in supplying information that the State required. No arrest has been made in this city for violation of the census law or disorderly conduct at any one of the 3,000 registration places. This is a splendid example of the earnest spirit of the people who have evidently made 'America First' their motto. Only a comparatively few aliens were reported to have refused to answer, and every one has cheerfully furnished the required information when the object of the questions was explained."

Thanks to the Women.

Mr. Goodrich said he wanted to especially thank the women who worked so "conscientiously, untiringly, and loyally." He added that without the assistance of the Woman's Suffrage Party, the National League for Woman's Service and the organization of school teachers the census taking as planned would have been impossible.

"Several women were made supervisors and have done remarkable work," he continued. "The whole Borough of Richmond was under the supervision of Mrs. William G. Willcox, and a large part of the burden of Brooklyn fell upon Mrs. F. L. Cranford. Mrs. F. Louis Slade, who displayed remarkable executive ability, was made a Deputy Director. Although we had a few hitches in the first few days, they were soon overcome, and since then the census machinery has been working smoothly. The result should give evidence to the whole country that its largest city is keenly alive to the seriousness of war and will leave nothing undone to help the Government."

SENATORS FACE DILEMMA IN FIGHT OVER PROHIBITION

TALK OF A COMPROMISE

HARD FIGHT IS PREDICTED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Senators confessed themselves today to be in a quandary over the problem of nation-wide prohibition put before the Senate in the anti-liquor amendment tacked on to the Food Administration bill by the House. With the "drys" announcing that they would exert every effort possible to force prohibition through, the advocates of modified liquor regulation found themselves confronted with a difficult fight.

Senator Chamberlain, who is handling the Administration's food legislation in the upper house, said tonight that it looked as if prohibition would go through. But he admitted the possibility of a compromise that would leave nation-wide prohibition partly to the discretion of the President. This, he thought, might be accomplished by amending the House clause so as to authorize the Executive to stop the use of foodstuffs in the making of beer and wines whenever national exigency required such action. As to distilled spirits, he said, there appeared to be no chance of compromise.

The House bill reached the Senate Agriculture Committee early in the day, with its drastic anti-liquor amendment. Instead of offering the bill in the Senate as a substitute for the measure under debate, Senator Chamberlain conferred with Senator Gore, Chairman of the committee, on the advisability of having it thrashed out in committee, with the idea of making modifications to conform to the Senate's ideas of food control. Later in the day it was announced that this sub-committee had been appointed by Senator Gore to work out the alterations: Senators Gore of Oklahoma, Smith of South Carolina, Smith of Georgia, Ransdell of Louisiana, and Chamberlain of Oregon, Democrats; Kenyon of Iowa, Wadsworth of New York, Warren of Wyoming, and Gronna of North Dakota, Republicans.

For Modified Prohibition.

The personnel of the sub-committee is regarded as inclined toward modified liquor legislation. While Senators Chamberlain and Gore come from "dry" States and are in favor of prohibiting further manufacture of whiskey and of authorizing the President to commandeer the existing stocks of whiskey in war emergency, they advocate tolerance in dealing with beer and wines.

Senators Smith of Georgia and Smith of South Carolina also come from "dry" States. It is understood they will not insist on cutting off further use of the lighter beverages, unless it is the majority sentiment of the committee to do so. Senator Ransdell of Louisiana is regarded as favoring tolerant legislation as to the lighter drinks, while Senator Wadsworth of New York and Warren of Wyoming are said to take a similar position. Senators Kenyon and Gronna are straight-out prohibitionists.

Out of the sub-committee's deliberations is expected to come the amendment that eventually will be passed by the Senate. One argument supposed to have weight with the committee is that advanced by Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee, that to legislate against beer and wines would eliminate more than $520,000,000 from the War Revenue bill, an item which, Senator Simmons says, would be felt heavily if Congress had to put it upon some other commodity or commodities. This argument has found response among many Senators.

The problem of nation-wide prohibition was uppermost in Senate lobby discussion today and overshadowed everything else. The "drys" were in high glee over the action of the House, predicting that at last the "lid would be clamped down tight" on the nation's drink.

The Revenue Dilemma.

When the Senate Finance Committee met early in the day there was a brief discussion of the threatened elimination of the revenue from beer and wines. Later Senator Simmons said the committee would take no action in the matter until after the Senate had acted on the prohibition issue.

"If the Senate does not finish with the Food bill by the time we have completed our work on the War Revenue bill," said Senator Simmons, "we will offer our bill with the beer and wine tax in it. If the Senate votes for nation-wide prohibition after that we shall have to take the bill back and find out where we can place the $520,000,000 that would automatically be stricken out. That would delay the War Revenue bill indefinitely. The action of the House has put the Finance Committee in an embarrassing position and may have the effect of tying up not only the

Our Naval Officers Favor Aggressive Fleet Action

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—American naval officers today showed great interest in the demand of Winston Spencer Churchill, former First Lord of the British Admiralty, for aggressive action by the allied fleets, especially since the entry of America into the war. Officers were inclined to agree with Mr. Churchill.

The first effect of an offensive policy by the Entente and American navies, it was stated, would be to make the Germans man their coast artillery. While the number of men demanded for this would be relatively small, the amount of materials consumed would be considerable, and this accomplishment alone, it was declared, would be more than any other achieved by the allied fleets excepting the closure of the sea to enemy commerce and the protection of allied trade.

It was not believed that the allied navies ought immediately to attack German naval bases. Bases, it was said, are "loaded," but the very strength of land fortifications was said to be their weakness also, as they are fixed and unable to protect other points on the coast.

American officers asserted that should the strength of the allied fleets be used against Germany, the submarine menace would fade like snow in the sun.

BRITISH PRESS ON CLOSER TO LENS

RAIDS AT NUMEROUS POINTS

French Report Unusually Active Gun Fighting on Line North of the Aisne.

LONDON, June 25.—The Canadians southwest of Lens have made substantial progress in the direction of the mining city during the last twenty-four hours, the War Office announced tonight. The advance was made on a front of about one and one-half miles, north and south of the Souchez River.

An Associated Press dispatch from Canadian Headquarters says:

"In a difficult advance toward Lens and amid a confused tangle of wrecked mines, artillery-destroyed miners' houses, railway embankments, and the flooded grounds in the Souchez Valley, a valuable bit of enemy's front line trench, extending over 400 yards north of the river and east of the Bois de Riaumont, was captured during the night by the Canadians, and was firmly incorporated.

"The task of the Canadians was to capture German outposts southwest of Reservoir Hill. The attack was evidently expected. The Germans scuttled, abandoning ground upon which machine-gun fire was immediately turned by Germans located on the hill. This was speedily followed by heavy artillery fire, which continued during the night in the vicinity of the Lens electric station. The enemy's dugouts were searched and found to be empty."

Elsewhere along the British front there were numerous raids, particularly in the region of Bullecourt, Roeux, Loos, and east of Vermelles.

The text of tonight's statement follows:

Our success last night southwest of Lens was followed up during the day on both banks of the Souchez River. Substantial progress was made by our troops in this area on a front of about one and one-half miles.

A raid attempted by the enemy last night southeast of Ypres was completely repulsed by our machine-gun fire.

There was heavy fighting in the air yesterday. Five German airplanes were brought down by our machines, five others were driven down out of control. Another hostile machine was shot down by our anti-aircraft guns. Five of our airplanes are missing.

The early statement said:

Successful enterprises were undertaken by us last night at a number of points on our front. Parties of our troops raided the enemy's trenches in the neighborhood of Epéhy, Bullecourt, Roeux, Loos, and Hooge, killing many Germans and taking several prisoners. In another raid east of Vermelles we captured fifteen prisoners and two trench mortars. Our party remained over two hours in the enemy's trenches, blew up his dugouts, and inflicted heavy casualties on his garrison.

In addition to these raids successful minor operations carried out by us southwest of Lens and northwest of Warneton added to the number of our prisoners and enabled us to gain further ground in both localities.

Lively Fighting, Berlin Says.

BERLIN, June 25, (via London.)—The artillery engagements in the dunes sector in Belgium and between the rivers Yser and Lys increased in intensity yesterday afternoon and continued into the night, Army Headquarters announced today. The text of the official statement reads:

Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht—In the dunes sector and between the Yser and the Lys the artillery engagements increased yesterday afternoon and continued into the night.

From La Bassée Canal to the south bank of the Scarpe the fighting activity was also more lively than on previous days. During the forenoon British attacks north of the Souchez River and east of the Lens-Arras road failed. The enemy renewed his attacks in the evening on both banks of the Souchez, but was driven off.

AMERICAN LINER BEATS OFF U-BOAT IN NIGHT ATTACK

BATTLE OFF IRISH COAST

PASSENGERS REMAIN CALM

British Steamer, Arriving on This Side, Reports Sinking a U-Boat in the Same Waters.

AN ENGLISH PORT, June 25.—American naval gunners successfully fought off a big German submarine which attacked an American passenger liner off the coast of Ireland last night. A torpedo fired by the submarine missed the vessel by less than twenty feet.

The encounter occurred at midnight, after the liner had been in the submarine zone many hours. A large number of the passengers on board were reading in the cabins or lying in chairs on the deck, ready for an emergency.

A staff correspondent of The Associated Press was talking with the Lieutenant in charge of the gun crews when the gunners, who were crowding about the forward guns, and the ship's officers on the bridge, sighted the wake of a torpedo as it went spinning toward the bow. The Lieutenant jumped to his station as the lookout cried, "Torpedo and submarine off starboard bow."

The ship swung around so sharply that the decks were tilted to an angle of 20 degrees. Immediately there came the bark and flash of a gun.

Passengers, binding lifebelts about themselves, swarmed to the decks. The ship's officers hurried among them, counseling calmness. Another gun, this time pointed further astern, was fired, and the projectile in its flight struck a long boom over the side, to which a log line was attached.

The liner at that moment was wallowing between two great waves. The conning tower of the submarine, outlined for a moment against the sky, was all that was visible to the gunners in the darkness.

The gunners soon lost sight of the raider in the darkness, however, and were unable to tell whether any of the shots fired hit the mark.

Two minutes later gunners at the stern of the ship saw a conning tower above the surface of the water, in the wake of the steamer. The vessel was rolling so heavily that the gunners were unable to get their gun pointed before the submarine again disappeared beneath the surface.

Every ounce of steam available was fed to the engines and the ship was quickly out of the danger zone.

BRITISH GUNNER SAW U-BOAT BREAK IN TWO

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 25.—Members of the crew of a British steamship which arrived here today reported having sunk an attacking German submarine. The steamer sent a shell into the U-boat's magazine, causing an explosion which parted the submarine amidships. The British steamer was not injured.

The submarine was five miles distant and running away after having attacked the British vessel nearly 400 miles off the coast of Ireland.

According to the story told by one of the gunners of the British steamer, the submarine was first seen when she sent a shell at the steamer from a distance of about 3,000 yards. It fell short, and the merchantman immediately was swung around so that her stern was toward the U-boat, getting the naval gun at work. Eleven shots were fired in rapid succession and each struck close to the German.

"I knew I had the range after the second shot, and so did the German," said the British gunner.

"The Germans were using their two guns, fore and aft, while we had only one, but the shells were falling short and he started to run. I followed him with shell, and the twelfth, the one that sent him down, struck just abaft the periscope. He was then more than 9,000 yards away.

"We could all see the boat break in two and go down, disappearing within a few minutes. I sent four more shots into the water at the spot where she disappeared to let any of the Boches who might have escaped know that we were still around and would take care of them if they appeared.

"At the same time our battle was going on the wireless operator picked up the call of an American vessel that arrived at an Atlantic port last Friday, and also caught a message that another American ship had been torpedoed and was sinking. The message said that the German was firing on the lifeboats. That vessel was about thirty miles to the south of us, and I do not know how they made out."

The steamer's Captain and other officers would not discuss the battle, but confirmation of the gunner's story was obtained from other members of the crew.

PRESIDENT TAKES CONTROL OF EXPORTS TO MEET OUR OWN AND OUR ALLIES' NEEDS; MAY HALT FOOD BOUGHT BY NEUTRALS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—In explanation of the Executive order creating an Exports Council, President Wilson tonight issued this statement through the Committee on Public Information:

It is important that the country should understand just what is intended in the control of exports, which is about to be undertaken, and since the power is vested by the Congress in the President, I can speak with authority concerning it. The Exports Council will be merely advisory to the President.

There will, of course, be no prohibition of exports. The normal course of trade will be interfered with as little as possible, and, so far as possible, only its abnormal course directed. The whole object will be to direct exports in such a way that they will go first and by preference where they are most needed and most immediately needed, and temporarily to withhold them, if necessary, where they can best be spared.

Our primary duty in the matter of foodstuffs and like necessaries is to see to it that the peoples associated with us in the war get as generous a proportion as possible of our surplus, but it will also be our wish and purpose to supply the neutral nations whose peoples depend upon us for such supplies as nearly in proportion to their need as the amount to be divided permits.

There will thus be little check put upon the volume of exports, and the prices obtained for them will not be affected by this regulation.

This policy will be carried out, not by prohibitive regulations, therefore, but by a system of licensing exports, which will be as simply organized and administered as possible, so as to constitute no impediment to the normal flow of commerce.

In brief, the free play of trade will not be arbitrarily interfered with; it will only be intelligently and systematically directed, in the light of full information with regard to needs and market conditions throughout the world and the necessities of our people at home and our armies and the armies of our associates abroad.

The Government is taking, or has taken, steps to ascertain, for example, just what the available present supply of wheat and corn is remaining from the crops of last year; to learn from each of the countries exporting these foodstuffs from the United States what their purchases in this country now are and where they are stored, and what their needs are, in order that we may adjust things, so far as possible, to our own needs and free stocks; and this information is in course of being rapidly supplied.

The case of wheat and corn will serve as an illustration of all the rest, of supplies of all kinds. Our trade can be successfully and profitably conducted now, the war pushed to a victorious issue, and the needs of our own people and of the other peoples with whom we are still free to trade efficiently met only by systematic direction; and that is what will be attempted. WOODROW WILSON.

Time Extended Until Noon Today to Enable City to Get $50,000,000 Quota.

NATION'S TOTAL $96,000,000

Washington Confident the Fund Will Be Largely Oversubscribed.

Although Red Cross Week officially closed last midnight, the campaign for the $110,000,000 War Fund will be continued in New York City up to noon today, it was announced yesterday at the headquarters of the fund. The extension, it was explained, was granted to enable the city to better its showing. Contributions and pledges of $2,214,168 were reported at noon yesterday by the thirty teams collecting for the fund, but the total was so much smaller than expected that Seward Prosser, Chairman of the Executive Committee, frankly informed the workers that much more would have to be raised to place the city on an equal comparative footing with some of the cities of the country. Washington reported a total last night of $60,650,000 outside of New York City.

"I am loath to inject a discordant note into our work," he said at the close of the luncheon meeting at the Chamber of Commerce, "but the fact is New York City is falling behind the rest of the country. It is not doing its share."

Mr. Prosser said that New York City had raised about $36,000,000, or $14,000,000 less than the $50,000,000 desired. Of this, $19,512,525, according to revised figures later given out by the Publicity Bureau, were in cash contributions and pledges, and $16,480,609 in corporation dividends. Coming on top of rumors that the city had already collected the $40,000,000 originally allotted to it, and was well on its way toward obtaining the $10,000,000 additional needed to cover duplications in crediting corporation dividends, Mr. Prosser's statement startled some of the Red Cross workers.

Urges Supreme Effort.

A survey of the figures received from other sections of the country seemed to justify his statement. Not only had several of the other cities made up their allotment, but at least a half dozen had exceeded it. The managers of the New York campaign had no doubt of the city's ability to raise the $40,000,000 set down as its share, but they consider that the city will not be doing this if it includes all of the corporation dividends declared by organizations having their headquarters in this city. They believe that many of these dividends will be turned over to the fund through other cities, and that in order to make up its fair share New York City should collect at least $50,000,000.

Another reason for the statement made by Mr. Prosser was that some of the workers seemed to have relaxed their efforts because of overconfidence, and needed to be stimulated to a supreme effort to make the campaign a success. Every team member was therefore urged

EXPORTS TO RUSSIA REACH A BILLION

Total in Last Three Years Twice as Much as in the Previous Fifty Years.

MOST OF IT WAR MATERIALS

Merchandise Carried More Than Half Way Around the World to Reach Destination.

What the United States has done to furnish Russia with the sinews of war since the start of the European conflict was shown in a statement issued yesterday by the National City Bank of New York. The compilation made by the bank showed that exports from this country to Russia in the first three years of war would aggregate nearly twice as much as in the fifty years preceding hostilities. Yesterday's forecast set down $1,000,000,000 as the approximate total value of exports to Russia from here since Aug. 1, 1914. The aggregate of American exports in the fifty years preceding the war was about $575,000,000.

Based upon United States Government figures, exports to Russia in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1915, the first year of the war, were $61,000,000. In 1916 they had jumped to $314,000,000, and in the fiscal year 1917, which ends with the present month, the bank estimated the shipments would reach the unprecedented total of $565,000,000.

The bank's statement, in part, said:

"War materials form, of course, the bulk of the exports to Russia, though railway material is also an important factor in the grand total. Gunpowder, of which the exports prior to the war were negligible, amounted to about $57,000,000 in 1916, and while the Government figures do not show the distribution of the gunpowder exported in 1917, they do show a total in the first nine months of the year two and a half times as great as in 1916. Firearms to Russia in 1916 amounted to about $6,000,000, and the United States Government figures for the first nine months of the fiscal year 1917 show a total export of firearms six times as great as in the same period of 1916. Barbed wire in 1916 showed a total of $13,000,000, and the Government figures of exports of barbed wire in 1917 are 30 per cent. greater than in 1916. Railway cars to Russia in 1916 amounted to over $18,000,000, locomotives about $12,000,000, and steel rails and other track material about $12,000,000, though the figures for 1917 are not yet available. Metal working machinery, of which the total to Russia before the war was a little more than $1,000,000, was in 1915 $2,500,000 and in 1916 over $12,000,000. Automobiles amounted to over $12,000,000 in 1915 and approximately $20,000,000 in 1916. Copper amounted to $3,000,000 in 1915 and $9,000,000 in 1916.

"In the requirements of peace, which, of course, formed the chief exports to Russia before the war, there is a marked decline. Agricultural implements, which formed about $7,000,000 of exports to Russia in the year before the war, will apparently amount to less than $500,000 in 1917, and binder twine, which amount-

NAMES ADVISORY COUNCIL

LARGE PLANS FORMULATED

With British Co-operation, Virtual Control of the World's Trade Will Be Possible.

FOOD AND COAL FOREMOST

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Official announcement was made today by Secretary Lansing that President Wilson signed on Friday an Executive order authorizing the creation of an Exports Council, under the powers vested in him by the espionage law. It came as confirmation of the statement to that effect published in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning.

By this action the President assumes authority which finds no precedent in American history, in so far as the vastness of the power vested in him in connection with the agricultural and commercial output of the country is concerned. By the exercise of this power, Mr. Wilson can control all exports from this country.

In a statement issued tonight, supplemental to the Executive order, President Wilson stated that the Exports Council would be "merely advisory to the President," and that there would be no "prohibition of exports."

It was essential, however, he said, that the Government should see that the countries allied with America in the war should receive as generous a part of the surplus of American products as possible, while efforts should be made also to supply neutral nations dependent upon the United States. He predicted that little check would be put upon the volume of exports, and that the prices obtained for them would not be affected.

The President's Order.

The President, however, has authority to determine what this nation or that shall have of the products of America. He can stop or regulate the export of grain or other commodities to any neutral country which permits any of its supply from America to reach Germany.

Department of State, June 25, 1917.
[Executive Order.]

By virtue of authority vested in me by Title VII. of the act approved June 15, 1917, entitled "An Act to punish espionage and better to enforce the criminal laws of the United States, and for other purposes," I hereby vest in the Secretary of Commerce the executive administration of all instructions issued by the President under said Title VII. and of the proclamations thereunder, and the said Secretary is hereby authorized and directed to take such measures as may be necessary to administer and execute the same and to grant or refuse export licenses thereunder, in accordance with those instructions.

I hereby establish an Exports Council, thus constituted, to formulate, for the consideration and approval of the President, policies and make the recommendations necessary to carry out the purposes of this act.

WOODROW WILSON.
The White House, June 22, 1917.

It has been stated that the Secretaries of War and Navy would probably be members of the Exports Council. They were omitted, it is said, because of their present onerous duties. Their arguments as to the needs of the departments, as they may affect the exports, will be heard.

A Series of Proclamations.

The council will hold its first meeting tomorrow morning in the offices of the Department of State. The council will be ready to act at once if it is shown that there is need of stopping the flow of exports of any commodities from this country.

It is stated that members of the exports council will recommend to the President a series of proclamations which will put the law into active operation.

The first proclamation will require the licensing of all coal and fuel shipments, including bunkers, and its purpose is to give the Government first a firm grasp of shipping.

The second, which will provide a system of licensing for every class of exports to European neutral countries, is designed to prevent supplies from reaching Germany.

Proclamations to follow will name specific commodities that may not be shipped anywhere without licenses. The first commodities to be designted will be cereals and other foodstuffs. By degrees the list will be extended until virtually every export commodity is brought under operation of the act.

British-American Control.

The proclamations covering coal and exports to European neutrals are likely to be issued this week. Under an arrangement to be made with the British Government, providing for international shipping control, enforced by export licensing agreements, the United States and Great Britain will have the trade of the world in their hands to direct in the manner best calculated to assist in winning the war.

The neutral export proclamation will be hurried to prevent removal from the United States of large supplies of foodstuffs, bought by the neutrals and now stored in this country, awaiting shipment. The Government is determined to hold neutrals down to necessities, and in enforcing export regulations will virtually take up the burden of the British blockade, now to be enforced from the point of origin of supplies.

For several days while news of the President's approval of the order, creating the council, was withheld, the work of organizing has been going on at high pressure. Agencies of the Government in many parts of the country, including important stations on the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and in the Gulf of Mexico, have been instructed to be ready, and allied and neutral countries, through their representatives have been acquainted with the plan of the Government.

Coincident with the decision taken by the United States to employ the powers granted under the espionage law, the French Government refused to permit a large shipment of wheat for Switzerland to pass through France, pending a decision here. In face of this action, the shipment is being held back.

To Determine Foreign Needs.

Other facts that came out today were that this Government would have twenty agents in foreign countries, who would aid in determining the quantities of our products, which each of the allied or neutral countries needed and to make full reports concerning conditions abroad, which would be used in the guidance of the Exports Council.

To a large extent these agents, it is said, will use British machinery built up during the three years the blockade has been in operation. The export control will absorb the British system of letters of assurance, heretofore required of American shippers before their cargoes are permitted to go to the European neutrals.

There will be agents in all the principal seaport cities and on the Great Lakes to keep an eye on grains which may be shipped. Collectors of Customs will be charged with the duty of preventing unlicensed cargoes from leaving the country.

To facilitate the work of the Exports Council, the President will be asked to provide $150,000 at once. Following this, a request will be made by Secretary Redfield, who will have charge of the administrative work, such as the issuance of licenses, for $570,000 more for the work of the first year.

Every move under the act will be made under Presidential proclamation issued on the advice of the Exports Council, which will meet every day to discuss matters of policy. The three Cabinet members and the Food Administrator will probably name representatives to take care of most of the routine work. These men will probably be Dr. E. E. Pratt of the Department of Commerce, Lester H. Woolsey of the State Department, Assistant Secretary Vrooman of the Department of Agriculture, and a representative of the Food Administration.

Licensing will be done by the Commerce Department's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, of which Dr. Pratt is the head. The bureau will be expanded by the addition of about 300 employes.

The order signed by President Wilson, named the Food Administrator as a member of the council, and it can be stated that Herbert C. Hoover, despite the fact that Congress has not adopted the food administration legislation will be present at the Council tomorrow.

A policy regarding food exports will be formed by the food administration for approval by the Exports Council. After the Department of Agriculture's food survey has been made a program of food apportionment among the allied and neutral countries will be prepared by Mr. Hoover, as head of the administration, and this will govern shipments.

The American food supply, it is made clear, will be used first to feed this country; second, to feed the Allies, and what is left will go to neutrals.

The first concern of the Exports Council, it was said today, would be coal and food, and no time will be lost in adopting means for regulation. Other commodities will be taken under consideration from the first, and full data obtained.

Secretary Redfield explained tonight the probable plan of licensing as follows:

"The quantity of the particular commodity to be exported under license will be determined by the Exports Council, and upon the advice of the departments concerned, and with such facts as may be presented by the trade as far as possible. No new machinery, except that absolutely necessary, is created to carry on the routine work. The responsibility for the administrative work is placed in a responsible executive department. Each interested executive department has a voice in determining the policies of export control. The Secretary of State, on account of the political significance of the consideration of exports, has the final decision as to the policy of export control."

Title VII. of the Espionage Act under which President Wilson will act, provides a fine of $10,000 or two years imprisonment, or both, for a violation of the law, and forfeits ship and cargo to the United States. The President's powers of seizure are thus put in Section 1:

Section 1.—Whenever during the present war the President shall find that the public safety shall so require, and shall make proclamation thereof, it shall be unlawful to export from or ship from or take out of the United States to any country named in such proclamation any article or articles mentioned in such proclamation, except at such time or times and under such regulations and orders and subject to such limitations and exceptions as the President shall prescribe, until otherwise ordered by the President or by Congress:

Provided, however, that no preference shall be given to the ports of one State over those of another.

HOLLAND FEARS EMBARGO.

Dutch Paper Hints That It Might Drive Her Into Germany's Arms.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, June 25.—It is becoming more and more evident that Holland is greatly scared by the reports of the tightening of the blockade by America. The Gazette de Hollande tonight says:

"When journalists and party politicians separated from Europe by the Atlantic start discussing such intricate subjects as the allied blockade and Holland's economic relations with the Central Empires there is great danger of misunderstanding."

It then observes that restricted exportation of breeding cattle has been occasionally permitted. It may be remarked, however, that the figures of these exports which are published are seldom correct; for example, one dealer known to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was permitted to export as many cattle as the total number published as exportable.

The Gazette admits that certain quantities of the surplus of dairy and market-gardening produce are regularly exported to Germany, but only on the basis of fixed division between the Allies and the Central Powers which has been agreed upon, and that Great Britain, France, and the Belgian Relief Commission received half the exportable pork and other meats, as well as potatoes and flour and a quarter of the surplus butter, vegetables, and fruit.

The newspaper asserts that if fodder imports from America are stopped many Dutch supplies to the Allies and the Central Powers will be stopped also, and that the hampering of shipping would make Holland still more dependent on Germany for coal and iron, on which her economic life depends.

"People talk glibly," says the Gazette, "about cutting off or further restricting cereal supplies. Should our imports of fodder be stopped or further restricted the inevitable result would be a big exportation of cattle on a wholesale scale, which is evidently undesirable from the Allies' point of view."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Flying in the interest of the $100,000,000 Red Cross fund, Miss Katherine Stinson piloted her big Curtiss military biplane safely into the National Capital and landed on the Polo Grounds south of the Washington Monument at 7:45 o'clock this evening after a straight sail in three relays from Albany, in which she covered 373 miles in a single day.

It was not only the longest flight made in her five years' of flying by Miss Stinson, a pretty Southern girl, but also the longest aerial flight in a single day that any aviator had made to Washington. The distance from Buffalo to Washington over the route covered by Miss Stinson was 670 miles. This was covered by the aviatrix in two days.

Miss Stinson left Buffalo at 11:50 yesterday morning and arrived at Albany at 6:45 in the evening. Spending the night in Albany, she resumed her journey at 10 o'clock this morning for New York, arriving at Governors Island at 12:15, and leaving at 2 o'clock for Philadelphia. She stopped at Philadelphia from 3:20 to 5:30 o'clock, when she started for Washington.

She was sighted at 7:35 o'clock by a great crowd that had waited for her here for four hours. Ten minutes later, after circling the Washington Monument at an elevation of 3,000 feet, Miss Stinson made a safe landing at the Polo Grounds, which she had never before seen. Her only guides were the tall shaft of the monument and a great white cross of canvas spread at the spot where she was to land.

Miss Stinson did not stop at Baltimore, but crossed that city at a high elevation. She said tonight that she would have stopped at Baltimore if she had had time. As it was, she reached Washington only in the nick of time for safety. Had she been fifteen minutes later she would not have been able from her high position to have seen the great white cross canvas marking her landing point.

Lands Amid Great Throng.

The Polo Grounds were packed with people and automobiles. The crowd was so thick that it took Miss Stinson longer to make the journey of half a mile from the Polo Grounds through the maze of congested automobile traffic to the Traffic Department than it did to fly from Baltimore to Washington, a distance of forty-five miles. She made the journey of 132 miles from Philadelphia to Washington in two hours and five minutes, averaging approximately seventy miles an hour most of the way.

At the Polo Grounds she was met by the uniformed members of the Red Cross Automobile Corps, by Red Cross officials, and by Henry B. F. MacFarland, Chairman of the Red Cross Campaign Committee in Washington, who handed Miss Stinson a check for $50,000. This was the first contribution on Washington's account to the $100,000,000 Red Cross Fund. Miss Stinson reached the Treasury Department shortly after 8 o'clock and delivered not only this check but also the initial contribution of Buffalo to the Red Cross Fund to Secretary McAdoo.

It had been Miss Stinson's purpose to leave Washington by train at 7:45 tonight for Chicago, en route to Calgary, Alberta, Canada, where she has an aviation engagement. Her delay at Philadelphia caused the aviatrix to change her plans. The Red Cross authorities motored her to the Chevy Chase Club for dinner, and she will leave for Chicago probably tomorrow.

Miss Stinson is 21 years old and a native of Mississippi. Her mother, who lives in San Antonio, Texas, sent a message to the Red Cross officials, which was delivered on her arrival, telling them to congratulate her daughter because the mother was certain the girl would "make good."

"She never fails," said the message. There was also delivered to Miss Stinson on her arrival a telegram from a Detroit father asking the aviatrix whether she would undertake to train his daughter to fly.

Miss Stinson weighs only 105 pounds, and is so small of stature that after she landed she had to unbuckle her straps and stand in the biplane before the crowd caught a glimpse of the plucky little woman.

Military aviators here tonight regarded her feat as remarkable. She had never used the machine she flew in or one as large as it before this voyage. It was a 90 horse power tractor, newly finished, and one of a type now being used in both the American and the British army. The propeller is in front of the machine. The planes measure forty-five feet from tip to tip.

Before this voyage Miss Stinson, though she had been flying five years, had never remained longer than about two hours in the air. Yesterday Miss Stinson covered 297 miles between Buffalo and Albany. This morning she covered 145 miles from Albany to New York. Early this afternoon she traveled 91 miles by airline from New York to Philadelphia, and the distance on the third lap from Philadelphia to Washington later in the afternoon was 137 miles.

Brought Message to New York.

When Miss Stinson landed at Governors Island at 12:15 P. M. yesterday she brought with her a message from Buffalo of the amount of money collected for the Red Cross in that city up to the time of her departure. On her way from Albany to New York she bombarded the cities over which she passed with literature of the Red Cross campaign.

The young aviatrix was met at Governors Island by a committee representing the Red Cross, as well as by a committee of the Aero Club of America, including Alan R. Hawley, President of the Aero Club, and Henry Woodhouse, one of the Board of Governors. She brought this message from Buffalo:

> New York Campaign Committee, Red Cross Fund:
> We are giving Miss Katherine Stinson, the aviatrix, a certificate of deposit showing $1,277,533.63 in cash and pledges in our hands to the credit of the National Red Cross War Fund.
> Buffalo's apportionment is $1,500,000. Buffalo is going to oversubscribe. Everybody's doing it. Are you?
> F. S. McGRAW,
> Chairman Buffalo Chapter.

This message was delivered to Miss Stinson for delivery to the Chairman of the Red Cross Campaign Committee at Philadelphia:

> Red Cross week has witnessed in America a national heart expression totally unexampled. The last few hours of this period of sacrifice and consecration are now passing, but the ultimate success of our efforts seems assured in full, even to an overwhelming measure.
> SEWARD PROSSER,
> Chairman Executive Committee.

Miss Stinson resumed her flight at 2 o'clock.

GIVES BULK OF HER FORTUNE.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., June 25.—Not content with giving several large donations to the Red Cross Society of America and France, Mrs. Clara Perkins, charity worker of 1,554 Logan Street, made a will giving the bulk of her fortune estimated at $50,000, equally to the two organizations.

Mrs. Perkins is of German descent, but is thoroughly American in her allegiance to the cause of the United States and France.

to keep at work until noon today, when the final luncheon will take place at the Chamber of Commerce.

The largest total was reported yesterday by Tea No. 6, of which Edgar L. Marston is Captain. It was $538,585, which included a $500,000 contribution from the Carnegie Corporation. The second largest amount was collected by Team No. 12, of which Charles H. Sabin is Captain, and which reported a total of $179,913. Mrs. E. H. Harriman's team took third honors by reporting additional contributions and pledges of $123,000, of which $100,000 was donated by Mrs. Harriman herself. J. Horace Harding's team was fourth with a total for the day of $112,622.

In addition to the $500,000 contribution from the Carnegie Corporation and the $100,000 given by Mrs. Harriman, some of the other big contributions were: Charles D. Barney, $100,000; Central Trust Company, $25,000; Title Guarantee and Trust Company, $25,000; W. R. Grace & Co., $50,000; W. A. Harkness, $25,000; Arthur Ryle, $25,000; Mrs. John W. Mackay, $25,000; B. Altman & Co., $25,000; E. J. Berwind, $25,000; Charles H. Sabin, $25,000; Silk Association of America, $21,355, and H. H. Rogers, $20,000.

Women in Silent Parade.

Two events helped to bring the big Red Cross campaign yesterday to the attention of hundreds of thousands of persons in New York City. One of these was an airplane flight made by Miss Katherine Stinson, 20 years old, from Buffalo to New York City and Washington. The other was the stationary parade along Fifth Avenue. One thousand women took part in the parade. They lined up between Twenty-ninth and Fifty-third Streets and stood in silence from 11 o'clock until 1 o'clock in the afternoon along both sidewalks. It was the first parade of its kind ever given in the city, and was held under the auspices of the National League for Women's Service.

200 Girl Scouts Help.

The women wore white dresses, Red Cross sashes, and the brown hats of the league. There were about forty to a block, twenty standing on each side of the street. Many prominent women took part, but there was no convassing for contributions. Mrs. Robert L. Bigelow, Chairman of the co-operating organization of the League, arranged the parade for the Red Cross. The members were assisted by 200 girl scouts under Miss Caroline Lewis. A large number of colored women also were in line under Miss Elizabeth Frazier. A detail from the Public Library Association, captained by Miss A. E. Langden, stood in front of the Library at Forty-second Street.

Although they did not ask for money, more than $1,000 was given to the women by passersby. One woman who refused to disclose her name handed Miss Grace E. Minn, one of a group representing the Catholic League, a $100 bill. Some of the women who stood in line and the organizations represented by them were:

Captain Helen Bastedo, of the league motor corps; Miss Margaret Sumner Carson, Mrs. Alfred Wagstaff, Jr., Mrs. David Smith, Miss Helen Winne, Miss Ethel Burden, Miss Dorothy Russell, Mrs. Oscar Stevens, Miss Mary Humphrey, Mrs. W. H. H. Smith, Mrs. Roger H. Bacon, all for the National League; Miss Catherine Potter, Girls' Friendly Society; Miss Helaine Magnus, Women's Oriental Society; Miss Teresa O'Donohue, Catholic High School Girls; Mrs. Matilda Vavrick, Bohemian National Alliance; Inwood Branch of the league, Mrs. Mabel E. Hensle; Mrs. William Cumming Story, Daughters of the American Revolution; Miss Carrie Wise, Federation of Sisterhoods; Mrs. J. H. Holden and Mrs. Theodore Dodge, Mayfair War Relief; Miss Emily Chauncey, Vacation War Relief; National Civic Federation, Mrs. Frances McNeill Bacon; League of Catholic Women, Mme. Eleonora de Cisneros; St. Bartholomew's Girls' Club, Women's Military Reserve of the United States, J. B. Greenhut Company, Midday Minute Girls, Women's Auxiliary to Naval Recruiting, Vassar Alumnae, Association Opposed to Women's Suffrage, Art Alliance of America, Mrs. Ripley Hitchcock, People's Institute and Stage Women's War Relief.

Forty women from the motor corps of the league in command of Captain H. Bastedo stood in their khaki uniform between Thirty-fifth Street and Thirty-sixth. Twenty women from Bronxville in charge of Mrs. Caspar Whitney were in the parade.

$12,000 From Catholic Churches.

It was announced yesterday that $760, an amount equivalent to their "holiday pay" on July 4, had been pledged to the fund by the employes of the Equitable Company. Scrubwomen, elevator operators, porters, house mechanics, and engineers will contribute.

More than $12,000 was collected in the Catholic churches on last Sunday for the fund. No figures were obtained as to the amount collected in the Protestant churches, but more than $1,000 was obtained in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church alone. The Catholic church collections were credited to the team captained by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr. The money taken in at the [illegible] will be credited to [illegible] Mrs. James [illegible] at the Red Cross Headquarters was that of a donation of $857 by the employes of Lord & Taylor. Mrs. A. Peterson contributed a Chinese rug worth $2,000 to Mrs. Orme Wilson Jr.'s team, and it will be sold at auction.

In addition to the day's pay pledged to the fund, the employes of John Wanamaker's New York store yesterday promised to give the fund their pay for July 4. They also bought 50,000 subway tickets to increase the contribution of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which will give the fund 10 per cent. of its receipts from the sale of tickets yesterday. Hundreds of other persons also laid in a large supply of tickets, with the result that it was estimated that the company's receipts yesterday from this source was double its normal.

Mr. Prosser received a cable message from Paris announcing that an American, whose name was not disclosed, had agreed to provide the Red Cross with an office building on the Place de la Concorde. It has been frequently reported that Cleveland H. Dodge and George F. Baker would remove the conditions they had originally attached to their gifts of $1,000,000 each to the fund, and this report was confirmed by the managers of the campaign yesterday. Realizing that twenty-three others would not contribute $1,000,000 which they had made a condition of their donation, they formally notified Mr. Prosser yesterday that the condition was withdrawn.

TAFT CONFERS WITH WILSON.

Discuss Possible Changes in Organization's Executive Committee.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Ex-President Taft, Chairman of the Red Cross Central Committee, conferred today with President Wilson about possible changes in the personnel of the organization's Executive Committee and about a closer co-operation between that committee and the War Council.

In view of the fact that the Red Cross will soon be handling a fund of $100,000,000, Mr. Taft believed it necessary that some changes be made. Under the law the committee of seven members is compelled to have five present before it can transact business, and it has been found difficult to obtain that quorum. An effort will be made in making changes to obtain men who will devote their whole time to the Red Cross. Mr. Taft said no reorganization of the Red Cross was necessary.

CAPITAL REPORTS $100,313,000.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Over subscription of the Red Cross Hundred Million Dollar Mercy Fund seemed assured tonight when the eight-day nation-wide campaign closed with final rallies in hundreds of cities.

The country's total outside of New York City tabulated by Red Cross Headquarters late tonight was $64,320,000, and pledges still were pouring in at the rate of about a million an hour. New York's $35,993,000 brings the total over the hundred million mark. Definite figures will not be available until tomorrow, when cities report the results of their last minute efforts, but Red Cross officials tonight said they had no doubt that the totals will show that American generosity has responded in the same spirit as for the Liberty Loan, with millions more than asked.

All through the week additions will be made to the fund, for Campaign Committees in a number of cities gathered such momentum that they insisted on continuing the canvas beyond the fixed time.

Ten million dollars of apparent over subscription may be necessary, it was said tonight, to make the actual collections equal $100,000,000, owing to the possibility of duplicate recording of some corporation Red Cross dividends at their source and also in the locality where stockholders live. The next two or three weeks will be devoted to gathering in the money promised in individual pledges.

Meanwhile Red Cross officials will try to formulate plans for the most efficient expenditure of the millions, large portions of which already are sought by humanitarian interests in France and Russia.

RED CROSS CLUB IN LONDON.

American Committee Takes a House for Use of Nurses Passing Through.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 25.—The American Red Cross took over today a house on Grosvenor Place as a club for American nurses passing through. The club will have sleeping accommodations, dining rooms, and an information bureau. Lady Harcourt, Chairman of the committee in charge, hopes shortly to open in the country a nurses' rest house and start a nurses' hospital. The Red Cross is also starting an orthopedic hospital at St. Katherine's Lodge, a Regent's Park mansion lent by Mrs. William Salomon.

The first meeting of the General Committee of the Red Cross was held today at the headquarters, 40 Grosvenor Gardens, with the object of enlisting the services of as many American helpers as possible. The Red Cross is organizing in business-like fashion, although there is little immediate work. The committees are formed ready to handle every kind of work for American soldiers, sailors, and nurses as the American force in Europe grows. In close co-operation with the American Y. M. C. A. the preparations are being made with efficiency and enthusiasm.

SINN FEIN RIOTER KILLED.

Twenty Others Wounded Before the Cork Uprising Was Quelled.

CORK, June 25.—One man was killed and a score were injured in yesterday's conflict between Sinn Feiners and the police. Serious disorders occurred, including an attack on the jail in an effort to liberate the political prisoners detained there, and attacks on various military recruiting quarters in the centre of the town.

A number of the clergy pleaded in vain with the Sinn Feiners to keep the peace, and finally the police, armed with carbines, bayonets, and revolvers, charged at double quick down Patrick Street. Some of the crowd stood their ground, replying with a fusillade of clubs and stones, but the majority fled into the adjacent streets. The injured were quickly gathered up by stretcher-bearers and taken to the hospital.

The soldiers, who up to this time had been confined to barracks, were now called out. They planted machine guns in the centre of Patrick Street and patrolled the scene of the disturbances until early this morning, when quiet was restored. They then returned to barracks.

OTHER REPORTS RECALLED

Real Situation Hidden in the Past and False Estimates Given to German People.

COPENHAGEN, June 25.—A report sent out today by the German Government for free distribution in the neutral press says that in consequence of the long-desired rainfall the crop prospect in southern and western Germany really is brilliant. In the middle and eastern provinces it is thoroughly satisfactory. The report would deserve more credence if Germany had not followed the same tactics every harvest during the war.

Thus the 1914 crop, which was harvesting when the war started, was described for the encouragement of Germans and for the discouragement of their enemies as a bountiful and unprecedented crop. Many months after, the authoritative exact returns showed that it was merely an ordinary miserable grain harvest.

The drought year of 1915, in some regions justifying description of complete failure, was pictured in newspaper reports as thoroughly satisfactory. Last year, when The Associated Press correspondent vainly tried to telegraph from Germany information from farming circles that grain was running mostly to straw, the official propaganda bureau announced that the yield of grain was exceptionally heavy, though agricultural statistics showed it only 25 per cent. above that of 1915.

Private reports received by The Associated Press up to the end of the second week of June describe prospects for 1917 as anything but brilliant. They say that rains are urgently needed, and if they come opportunely could do much to save suffering Spring grains and improve Winter grain prospects, but in no case could produce better than a bare middle harvest.

An official report today that fodder cut now is far above the average is flatly contradicted by private advices and difficult to reconcile with past weather conditions. Danish crops grown under similar climatic conditions were given as poor to bad in last week's official report.

NO FAMINE IN GERMANY.

Returning Doctors Say, However, People Have Been Hard Hit.

Dr. Frederick Hagler of St. Louis and Dr. Robert Bowen of Chicago, who returned yesterday after serving for several months in one of the German base hospitals on the eastern front, said that Germany was far from facing a famine. The people had been hard hit by the war, they said, and could not obtain rubber and many other things in common use under normal conditions. Automobiles were running on their wheel rims in the streets, and the military motor trucks were equipped with wire mesh tires.

They had no difficulty in getting out of Germany, the doctors explained, as their passports had been made out prior to America's entry into the war, and their papers were not questioned by the German officials at the northern frontier.

Frank L. Judd, an engineer of Buffalo, who also returned on the same liner from Petrograd, said that the Russian soldiers were beginning to realize that they had to go back to the trenches and fight instead of loafing about the streets in the capital. Transportation was the most serious difficulty the new Government had had to contend with, he said. He saw 100,000 tons of food and munitions ready to be sent from Petrograd to the front, but only one-half of the goods could be handled on account of the lack of railroad facilities.

BACKS THOMPSON REBUKE.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 25.—The City Council today approved the minutes of its meeting last Friday, which show that Mayor Thompson denied an appeal from his decision to adjourn the Council, denied a roll call, attempted to adjourn the session under the gavel, relinquished his privilege of presiding, left the session, and refused to return. The approval was by a vote of 47 to 22. This carries record confirmation that the Mayor was wrong in attempting to adjourn the Council.

The Mayor presented a message giving his version of what happened at the meeting. He referred to disorder, riot and rowdyism. While the approval of the minutes was a distinct slap at the Mayor, yet there was a resolution passed calling for his impeachment. The Mayor's forces put up such a hard fight in his behalf before the Council Committee on Judiciary that it was finally voted to defer action to give him an opportunity to make a further defense.

Later in the day State's Attorney Hoyne took the school board controversy to the courts, starting quo warranto proceedings against three of the board's officers. The general aspects of the issue involving the confirmation, and the subsequent reconsideration and ousting of the Thompson board by the Council, will form the basis of a quo waranto petition to be filed against the "New Board" jointly.

INDICTS 134 SLACKERS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 25.—One hundred and thirty-four slackers were indicted today by the Federal Grand Jury at Freeport, Ill. They are from Rockford, Ill., and claim membership in the Independent Order of Good Templars, the Socialist Party, and Industrial Workers of the World. All refused to register for the military draft on June 5 and are avowedly opposed to the Government. Only one is a native-born American. Three of the number are indicted on a conspiracy charge, and when arraigned before Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis pleaded "Not guilty." They are James Cully, Clyde Hough, and Emil Stromer. Their bail was fixed at $25,000 each, which they were unable to furnish, and they were returned to jail. Hough was born in the United States and admits that he is "an agitator for freedom."

The slackers are represented by an imposing array of counsel, headed by Seymour Stedman and John L. Metzer of Chicago. Metzer boasts that "it is a fight to a finish," and that the defendants have unlimited funds back of them. "I have been instructed to do everything within the law not only to free my clients but to nullify the registration and draft law," he said.

That the Constitution of the United States, which the slackers refuse to uphold by becoming soldiers, will be invoked as their defense was indicated when the three conspirators were arraigned.

"We propose to show that the provisions of the Constitution Congress is not empowered to compel its citizens to submit to the draft," said Metzer.

JAILS SKIPPERS AS SPIES.

Norwegian Government Charges They Betrayed Ships to U-Boats.

An agent of the Norwegian Secret Service who arrived yesterday at an Atlantic port brought the news of the arrest in Christiania of two well-known Norwegian Captains engaged in the passenger and freight trade to British ports, on the charge of having given information to German submarine commanders of the sailings of allied and neutral vessels.

These Captains, it was charged, obtained all the information possible about the departure of shipping and, once outside the harbor, communicated with the German submarine commanders by secret signals. Wireless could not be used, as the messages would have been picked up by the allied warships on patrol duty.

When a submarine commander returned to his base in Germany and reported that he had sunk one of the steamships mentioned in the information supplied by the Norwegian Captains, the Intelligence Department at Kiel paid the sum of $80 to the informer.

The people in Christiania, where the two Captains had been locked up for forty days, the Secret Service agent said, were so infuriated against the informers that they would have lynched them if they could have broken into the jail. The men were believed to have given information to the Germans which had caused several Norwegian freight steamships to be sunk with loss of life.

The elder of the two Captains had been for twenty-five years in the North Sea trade and was about to take charge of a fine new passenger vessel. He is well known in shipping circles in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Holland, and England.

The Norwegian said that he believed Norway was waiting for the United States to ask her to enter the war against Germany, and that the Government would offer Christiania as a base for the Allied fleets to operate against Germany in the North Sea.

He said that people were starving in Norway because of Germany's cutting off of food supplies.

UTAH TOWN IS MAROONED.

Price Cut Off from Communication as Result of Breaking of Dam.

SALT LAKE, Utah, June 25.—Communication between Salt Lake City and Price, Utah, which was in the path of the flood sweeping down from the broken Price River Irrigation Dam, ceased at 9 o'clock tonight. Price, a town of 1,500 inhabitants, is believed marooned by the flood.

The great dam gave way this morning, flooding several thousand acres and causing damage to property which, it is estimated, will run into millions of dollars.

The crest of the flood was due at Castle Gate at 8 o'clock. No word has reached here from that place since 7 o'clock. This report that the crest of the flood was due at Castle Gate is taken to mean that the dam has gone completely out.

Forty miles of the Denver & Rio Grande main line, between Colton and Price is under water tonight. The last word from Price was that a bank of water 5 feet high, carrying stones and debris, had reached Kyune, fourteen miles above Price.

EXPORTS TO RUSSIA REACH $1,000,000,000

ed to $2,500,000 the year before the war, is now about $500,000. Sewing machines and typewriters, which aggregated about $2,500,000 in the year before the war, now aggregate $250,000.

"One striking fact in connection with this enormous export to Russia is found in the great distance which the merchandise travels to reach its destination, the distance which it was carried being more than half way round the world. Of the $61,000,000 worth of merchandise exported to Russia in 1915, $23,000,000 worth went via Vladivostok, and of the $314,000,000 in 1916 $130,000,000 was billed to Asiatic Russia, though the proportion is now not quite as great, since the opening of Russia's new port of Kola on the Arctic frontage now gives her an all-the-year-round open port through which she can receive much of the merchandise which was necessarily sent via Vladivostok in Winter in former years.

Total imports of Russia in the calendar year 1916 were $1,416,000,000 and exports $296,000,000. Of the imports $927,000,000 worth was by European frontiers and $480,000,000 by Asiatic frontiers. Of the exports, $242,000,000 was by European frontiers and $54,000,000 by Asiatic frontiers.

Large as shipments to Russia from this country have been during the current year, it was estimated yesterday that hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of war munitions and supplies, automobiles, and railroad equipment were awaiting shipment at terminals here and at other ports awaiting vessels to transport the merchandise across seas. This condition has existed for many months.

MUST BE REPARATION

Says 500,000 American Soldiers Soon Will Be Fighting and Explains Our Army's Discipline.

MOSCOW, June 25.—Elihu Root, head of the American mission which is visiting Russia, today received the Moscow journalists and delivered to them a lecture on the discipline in the American Army.

Mr. Root pointed out that the American officers either were educated in a special military school or had risen from the ranks, in the latter case only after they had passed the required examinations. Such a thing as the election of officers by the men was unknown in the United States. There were no soldiers' committees there and no participation by soldiers in courts-martial.

America, continued Mr. Root, heartily rejoiced at Russia's conquest for freedom. One of the chief motivs of the United States entering the war was a desire to fight shoulder to shoulder with the Russian democracy.

The journalists asked Mr. Root whether the active intervention of the United States in the war would not diminish the material support which that country had previously given the Entente Allies. Mr. Root answered in a negative, saying that all shops working on armament would be taken under Government control and their production greatly increased.

America's Part in War.

"Our active participation in the war," continued Mr. Root, "will consist of operations on land and sea, and the supply to the Allies of materials, arms and financial support."

Admiration was expressed by Mr. Root for the conduct of the Russians since the revolution.

"The Russians," said Mr. Root, "have conducted themselves with the greatest self-control, restraint, and good humor."

He then proceeded to describe his notion of a sound policy for war and peace.

"I consider," he said, "that the only practical method for attaining a proper conclusion of the war is that the Allies fight with all their possible strength, and that the populations of the allied countries support their armies by all conceivable means. If these conditions are fulfilled I am convinced the end of the war will be reached during 1918.

"Personally we Americans are ready to accept all the interpretations of Russia's formula of peace without annexation or contributions, but the American people feel profoundly that the German empire in a most outrageous and most infamous form has violated the rights of Belgium and Serbia and demand that these rights be re-established. Undoubtedly there are other injustices about which America knows little, but which also must be repaired. We consider it just to insist on a full restoration of violated rights of possessions and also reparation for damages."

Our Big Army Soon to Fight.

The headquarters of the War Industrial Committee was visited yesterday by the American mission, which received a cordial welcome. Mr. Root, in answer to an address, said that America was summoning 10,000,000 men to the colors in defense of freedom. His remarks were enthusiastically applauded.

Continuing, Mr. Root told his hearers that half a million Americans soon would be fighting. America's fleet already was annihilating German submarines. Describing America's adaptation to war, Mr. Root praised American workmen for voluntarily working in the nation's interest longer hours than usual. They soon would be filling Russia's order for locomotives and cars.

"Say what Russia wants, and we will come in aid. Our high aims in the war justify the heaviest sacrifices and any one who cannot understand these aims must be unable to understand anything."

Afterward the Americans visited the Moscow Bourse Committee, where they were welcomed by M. Tretiakof, President of the committee. Later they inspected the People's Bank and various munitions workshops, where a rousing reception was given to them. Some of the members went to Sergievsky to visit the famous Trinity Monastery, meeting on the way the Procurator General of the Holy Snyod, M. Lvoff and Church dignitaries, who heartily greeted the Americans.

PETROGRAD, June 24.—Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, U. S. N., and the other naval representatives with the Root mission have gone to Archangel for an inspection of that port. They were accompanied by Captain Newton A. McCully, Naval Attaché to the American Embassy at Petrograd. Captain McCully will go to Kola.

RUSSIA NEEDS FROM US 2,000 LOCOMOTIVES

Minister Lomonosoff Promises to Give Military Success in Return for Them.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—"Locomotives, locomotives, and still more locomotives" are the fundamental needs of Russia today, according to Professor Lomonosoff, Railroad Minister, with the Russian Mission. "Quite frankly I can say to you, our American friends," he said, "give us locomotives and we shall give you military success."

Russia needs at once 1,000 ten-wheel American locomotives to put her idle cars in operation; another thousand, with an appropriate number of cars, to free the congested freight terminals, and another 850 annually to meet the deficiency between Russia's manufacture and her needs for renewal and new construction. The United States is Russia's hope in this huge program, and negotiations are now in progress which, according to Professor Lomonosoff, are most promising.

After saying that the Siberian Railroad was in splendid condition for the immense task put upon it, that coal was available, and that adequate sidings had been completed, he continued:

"Present conditions on railroads in Russia are nothing but an inheritance from our short-sighted old Government. Two-thirds of all our railroads are owned by the State, and to justify itself from the true reproaches of the Duma that our railways are uneconomically managed, the old Government decided to raise their revenues.

"Beginning with 1908, there was almost complete stoppage of freight locomotive orders, so that the money assigned for these orders remained in the Treasury and the revenues given in the railway reports increased. The private railways had to follow this policy as their shareholders did not wish to get less revenue than the Government.

"Such a policy provoked a breakdown of the locomothive works. In 1906 1,280 locomotives were built in Russia, but in 1910 only 195 were ordered, and our works, which are in private possession, were obliged to turn to other manufactures. In 1913 the old Government realized its fault and increased the locomotive orders, but it was too late.

"When the war broke out our railway authorities hoped that after the mobilization had been completed the railway traffic would diminish. But in reality the contrary happened. Although we lost 4,000 miles of railways occupied by the Germans the traffic on our railways increased by 10,700,000,000 ton miles, or by 20 per cent. This is due to the increase of the transport distances.

"For instance, there were only ten or fifteen cars daily running between Vladivostok and the centre of Russia; now, due to the fraternal help of the United States, we are sending from Vladivostok several hundred loaded cars every day which must make a 6,111-mile run.

"Another example is the transport of coal. In peace times the Petrograd and Riga districts used English coal brought on ships; now we have to transport these enormous quantities of coal by rail from the South of Russia, a distance of 1,000 miles. All these reasons brought on a 'locomotive' hunger. Although in the Summer of 1916 we got 400 excellent American locomotives, this 'hunger' reached its critical stage last Winter."

GERMAN PROPAGANDA BUSY IN RUSSIA

Who Pays the Agents and How the Payer Receives His Money Puzzles the Government.

By HERBERT BAILEY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, June 22.—General Scott, of the American mission, in a talk with War Minister Kerensky today asked what evidence was procurable of German intrigue in Russia. The members of the mission, having perceived what German intrigue has accomplished in the United States where the organization of means of communication and serveillance are the finest possible, are very curious to see the effect of its work in disorganized Russia.

They have not far to go, however. On the Nevsky Prospect, ten minutes from the Winter Palace, little arguing, expostulating assemblies can be found even as late as 3 o'clock in the morning. They are arguing about the war. Questions why Russia should shed blood in a new offensive to fill the pockets of Anglo-French capitalists can be heard. Assertions that the Germans are the best friends of Russia resound. German agents, traitors, and their dupes are at work, and the click of German gold can almost be heard. Happily, generally there is some one capable of presenting the patriotic standpoint, although I am afraid the German agents in the campaign of deception, arguing the cons and pros, always leave the pro man triumphant.

It is the higher intrigue, particularly in the sphere of politics and finance, however, which absorbs interest. It is wondered by what means Germany finances her agents. A story that $250,000,000 was transmitted to a Petrograd bank from Germany, as reported in the afternoon newspapers here a few days ago, is not credited, as it rests on no real evidence, but it is obvious and admitted by the authorities that German agents are at work in Petrograd. Who pays them and how does the payer receive his cash? These questions every one, including the Government, is asking.

DUMA ASKED TO QUIT THE TAURIDE PALACE

PETROGRAD, June 25.—Premier Lvoff has written to M. Rodzianko, President of the Duma, requesting evacuation as soon as possible of the Tauride Palace, which has been used for public business since the revolution, with a view to making necessary preparations in connection with the Constituent Assembly which is to decide on the future form of government. M. Rodzianko agreed on condition that the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates previously be removed from the palace. He asked transference to the Marie Palace of documents relating to the Duma.

According to a newspaper report, the Government has decided to issue a decree dissolving the Duma.

The palace of the former Dowager Empress will be handed over to the Ministry of Supplies.

During a round-up of deserters last night at Simferopal, in the Crimea, shooting occurred and men on both sides were wounded. There was a large number of arrests. Increasing numbers of deserters are returning daily to the colors.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The dissolution of the Duma and the Council of Empire, urged by the Pan-Russian conference of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates was explained by members of the Russian mission here today as merely another step in the building up of a new Government in Russia. It does not indicate the slightest hostility, it was said, between the councils and the other parts of the Government.

The Duma, it was explained, ceased to exist when, after its dissolution by the Czar and its later extraordinary sessions, it created out of itself the Provisional Government. To this Government, it intrusted complete legislative, executive, and judicial powers, and with its birth the Duma itself was dissolved. Since then it has met only once for a decennial ceremonial and has had absolutely no part in the Government.

The Council of Empire was even less representative than the Duma, it was stated, as it was composed of appointees of the Czar selected from various classes, such as capital, education, agriculture, and former Ministers. Ever since the revolution, most of the members of the council have remained at home on their estates.

Special Ambassador Bakhmetieff of the mission will address the Senate tomorrow with special reference to the foreign relations of the new Provisional Russian Government. It is understood to be the purpose of the new Government to announce broad principles of diplomacy under which the present war should be conducted without going into too great detail as to their specific application.

One of the main reasons why Russia has proposed a conference of the Allies is understood to be the uncertainty there as to just what treaties Russia is now bound by. The former Czar is said to have signed many international agreements without consultation or subsequent reference to his Ministers, and it is thought possible that some of the allied nations may be holding Russia to engagements which the present Russian Government has never seen.

The General Staff has established a commission under the Presidency of a woman. The aim of the commission will be to carry out a scheme for universal conscription of woman labor, excepting only women now engaged in agricultural work or employed in the making of munitions.

THREW HIS SWORD INTO SEA.

Koltschak Refused to Give Up to Mutineers Weapon Won in War.

PETROGRAD, June 25.—Admiral Koltchak, who was removed from the command of the Black Sea fleet by his mutinous men, declares that the outbreak, which is now at an end, was fomented by delegates from the Baltic fleet. At a meeting attended by 15,000 sailors it was resolved to arrest and search all officers of the fleet, including the Admiral and his chief of staff, on the ground that they were propagating a counter-revolution.

The crew of the flagship demanded that Admiral Koltchak surrender his sword. He refused, saying: "The Japanese left me this sword when we evacuated Port Arthur. I won this sword in the Japanese war, and will not give it to you." He threw the sword into the sea.

The mutineers sent wireless messages to all ships to disarm officers. Admiral Koltchak sent wireless instructions to the officers not to resist, so that bloodshed might be avoided. It was finally decided not to arrest the officers, although the men insisted that Admiral Koltchak resign his command.

Pershing to Attend Paris Opera.

PARIS, June 25.—Major General John J. Pershing, commander of the American forces in France, and his staff, will attend a special performance at the Opera Wednesday. The function will be given for the benefit of the Rumanian Red Cross.

QUESTION PRIEST ON COCCHI'S TALE

house. A man's voice answered the telephone.

"Yes, this is Father Morretto," it said. "No, I cannot see you. I have gone to bed. I will see you in the morning."

It was after this conversation, which occurred shortly after midnight, that Second Deputy Police Commissioner Lord arrived at the mission, and was told, as the others had been told, that Father Morretto had gone to bed and could not be disturbed, but after a talk with the Sister in charge arrangements were made for Mr. Lord and Assistant District Attorney Rorke to interview the priest a little later. Mrs. Humiston insisted that she should be admitted to the conference. Mr. Lord would not agree to this.

In the course of half an hour Mr. Lord and Mr. Rorke were admitted. After the interview Mr. Lord said that the priest had told of seeing Cocchi, who came to confession in the middle of February. He said that Cocchi was greatly agitated, and that after confession he had left without telling where he was going.

The priest added, according to Commissioner Lord, that Mr. Cruger and a young man had called on him later and asked if Cocchi had been to see him. As neither Mr. Cruger nor the young man had any official standing, the priest said, according to Mr. Lord, that he did not think they were entitled to the information, and told them that Cocchi had not been to see him.

Mr. Rorke sent for a stenographer to take down Father Morretto's statement.

At 2 o'clock this morning Mr. Lord and other officials left the priest's house. There was nothing to add to the earlier statement, Mr. Lord said. A detective, he continued, would remain in the house, and the priest, under subpoena, would be questioned this morning in the District Attorney's office.

COCCHI TELLS HOW HE SLEW RUTH CRUGER

First Stifled His Struggling Victim; Blow Then Felled Her.

BOLOGNA, Italy, June 25.—When Alfredo Cocchi, who has confessed to the murder of Ruth Cruger, the New York schoolgirl, returned to Bologna, the police say that his relatives were surprised and even fearful that something serious had occurred. In reply to questions Cocchi said at that time that he had left New York because of the jealousy of his wife, and also because he desired to join the colors. Shortly afterward a letter arrived from Cocchi's wife, in which she is said to have asserted that Cocchi had eloped with a girl 18 years old, after borrowing $15, her total possessions.

Cocchi nervously denied this allegation, asserting that the charge was due to the "usual imagination" of his wife. He told, however, at that time about Miss Cruger going to his shop to have her skates sharpened. When further particulars arrived, Cocchi wept, declaring that he was a victim of persecution. He did not confess, however.

On May 31 Mrs. Cocchi wrote home again, saying that she was being detained as a material witness against her husband, and was in desperate straits. Her younger son, Athos, she said, was "almost dead from privation and fright."

During the examination by the criminal authorities here, when Cocchi said that he had sailed from New York on Feb. 17, the Judge asked him to explain what he had done during the two days after his disappearance and before he embarked. Cocchi, it is said, tried to change the subject. He said he had sailed aboard a British ship as a mechanic.

Ruth Cruger Was Smothered.

The Judge then pressed Cocchi more closely, and Cocchi even gave some details of the crime. He said he had smothered Miss Cruger to prevent her from shrieking, but as she had struggled he struck her. In falling, he added, Miss Cruger must have struck some vital spot, because he suddenly discovered that she was dead. In an attempt to conceal the crime he carried the body into the cellar and buried it in a hole which had been used to store gasoline.

Later, according to the police, Cocchi said he spent two days and one night before sailing for Italy in the house of a priest in Carleton [Charlton] Street, New York.

Earlier in the investigation, according to unofficial information, Cocchi said:

"My machine shop gave me a satisfactory position. I earned sometimes $100 a week. I had never seen Ruth Cruger before she came to my shop to have her skates sharpened. From the very beginning Ruth did all in her power to attract my attention. I felt something strange when her dark, penetrating eyes fixed on mine.

"I was still more disconcerted when she came again Feb. 13 to get her skates. An overpowering attraction for the young woman seized me. What happened afterward seems like a dream. My memory at this point fails me utterly.

"In view of the facts which have been presented, it must be true I attacked and killed her. But God help me, I didn't mean to. My will power could not resist any more. When I returned home I was like a person in a trance. I remembered speaking of this peculiar mental condition and thought I was ill.

"I began to realize the gravity of my position the morning of Feb. 15 when newspaper reporters came to my shop to make inquiries and policemen questioned me. I felt then as if I were lost. My only anxiety was to escape. I secured a passport which I kept among my papers and succeeded in reaching Italy. On my arrival I was overcome by remorse. I cannot myself believe that my hitherto unblemished life has been destroyed forever.

"This is my first offense, but it is of such a nature that I cannot believe it to be true. The greatest punishment is to think what suffering and agony my wife and children are undergoing, as notwithstanding our misunderstandings we love each other most tenderly."

The police authorities, who are still investigating the history of Cocchi, have brought to light the following additional details concerning him: When Cocchi left Italy for the United States he was in love with Maria Magrina, a servant in the Cocchi family, according to the police. Shortly after his arrival in New York, Cocchi, they say, wrote her that business was going well and promised to marry her immediately if she would come to the United States.

Despite the hesitation of her relatives, the girl insisted on going to New York. She was accompanied by a woman friend. A few weeks after her arrival, still according to the police, Cocchi's bride wrote home, charging Cocchi with unfaithfulness. She reported that the husband of a woman with whom he had been friendly had had Cocchi arrested, but that the man later obtained Cocchi's release when he gave a promise to reform.

Cocchi was upbraided by his own relatives and those of his wife for failure to mend his ways. He wrote home humble confessions of his wrongdoings, but urged his relatives to endeavor to induce his wife to be less jealous of him. He even suggested that they come to the United States and endeavor to restore peace in his family.

Cocchi Depressed and Sullen.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, June 25.—Alfredo Cocchi, the murderer of Ruth Cruger, the New York schoolgirl, who is now in jail at Bologna, is much depressed and sullen. He will not answer questions put to him, but says he will justify himself at his trial.

None of his family is permitted to visit him, which is one of his grievances. He is continually asking his jailer to be allowed to see his father, if only for a moment, as he has a message which he wishes to give him for his wife in America. Cocchi's great worry now is the length of time which will pass before he is brought to trial, as the Italian Government must ascertain whether the prisoner is an American citizen or still an Italian subject. The trial thus may be postponed for months.

"I would rather know the worst at once than live in this uncertainty," Cocchi is quoted as saying.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The State Department has requested the Italian Government to forward a copy of the confession of Alfredo Cocchi. The Italian Foreign Office previously had merely notified the State Department of the arrest of the fugitive.

The confession of Cocchi was said to simplify the case considerably as far as its international aspects were concerned, as it would not now be necessary for the United States to furnish evidence of the murder, a confession being sufficient in Italy.

Government officials said today that despite promised complications, resulting from Cocchi's opposition to extradition and insistence upon trial in Italy, the Italian Government would order the prisoner's extradition.

POLICE WERE DEAF TO PLEAS OF SISTER

Helen Cruger Visited Headquarters in Vain—Her Suspicions of Cocchi Ignored.

Miss Helen Cruger, the eldest sister of the murdered Ruth, and Henry D. Cruger, her father, took the witness stand yesterday before Leonard M. Wallstein, Commissioner of Accounts, who is investigating the Police Department in its connection with the Cruger case, and told of the complete failure of their repeated efforts in the days following Ruth's disappearance to persuade Detective Sergeant John L. Lagarenne and other detectives assigned to the case to abandon their theory that Ruth had gone away voluntarily with an unidentified man in a taxicab and to work on the hypothesis, at least, that Alfredo Cocchi might know something of the girl's disappearance. The father and daughter gave their testimony simply and quietly, apparently under great strain, in a room of Commissioner Wallstein's office in the Municipal Building that was crowded with eagerly listening men and women.

Miss Cruger testified that her confidence in Ruth's character and her conviction, based on evidence which she, and not the detectives, had obtained, that the detectives were not handling the case properly led her to obtain a letter of introduction to Police Inspector Joseph A. Faurot, the commanding officer of the Detective Division, from ex-Deputy Police Commissioner Douglas I. McKay, and that she went to Inspector Fourot's office in Police Headquarters with this letter and, the Inspector being out, left the letter for him after telling her full story to Lieutenant William Funston, his aid. This part of Miss Cruger's testimony was the first evidence on Commissioner Wallstein's record to show that the attention of officials at Police Headquarters had been definitely called to the Cruger case and the fact that the detectives of the Fourth Branch Bureau were persistently adhering to their statements that Ruth had gone away in a taxicab with a man despite the appeals, demands and evidence from members of the Cruger family which indicated that she had met with foul play and tended to implicate Alfredo Cocchi. Other evidence that the case was taken to headquarters will be recorded later in the hearing.

What effect Miss Cruger's visit to Inspector Faurot's office had upon the detective work on the case has not yet been brought out, but, so far as Miss Cruger and her father were able to observe, according to their testimony, it had none. They told how their justifiable suspicions of Cocchi were received by Lagarenne with the statement that the Italian was "a reputable business man;" how their request that Cocchi and his premises be subjected to inquiry and surveillance was denied on the ground that the police had no right to take any action against the man; how, while they were making every effort to have clues followed that ultimately led to the discovery of Ruth's body in Cocchi's cellar, Lagarenne referred to Cocchi familiarly as "Al," and volunteered explanations for the man's sudden departure within forty-eight hours after Ruth's disappearance.

Quick Recourse to the Police.

Another feature of yesterday's hearing was the testimony of Alfred M. Brown, Mr. Cruger's employer, that he reported Ruth's disappearance to the West 125th Street Police Station about 9:15 o'clock on the evening of Feb. 13, or less than eight hours after the girl was last seen by her sisters; that he reported it to the West 100th Street Station an hour or two later, and that he made a formal and complete report to the Fourth Branch Detective Bureau shortly after the midnight following, giving a description of Ruth, telling all he knew of her character and the circumstances of her disappearance, and asking that a general alarm be sent out for her and that the police take whatever other measures they thought advisable in making an immediate and thorough search for her.

Miss Cruger's testimony was the most impressive of the day. She appeared in the afternoon, dressed in a simple black and white checked dress, and throughout her examination was quiet and modest. Persons who observed her were heard to remark that the detectives who talked to her in regard to their search for Ruth should have been strongly disinclined to jump to the conclusion that the sister of such a young woman voluntarily had abandoned her home to go away secretly with a man. Before Miss Cruger took the stand Commissioner Wallstein, in accordance with her wishes, requested the newspaper photographers present not to take any pictures of her, and, so far as is known, his request was universally observed.

The most important part of Miss Cruger's testimony began with her account of her visits to Cocchi's shop on the morning following Ruth's disappearance. She said that she went there because Ruth once had mentioned seeing a sign in the window to the effect that skates were sharpened there and she knew it to be in the neighborhood where Ruth had gone marketing in the morning of Feb. 13, when she took her skates out to be sharpened. Recounting her first visit to the shop at 9:30 o'clock, Miss Cruger said:

Found Cocchi's Shop Closed.

"I found the store closed, locked. There was a sign in the door made of a hand pointing on which was written, 'Downstairs.' I did not make any attempt to go downstairs, though, because there were no stairs—only a stepladder. The door to the shop was fastened with an ordinary lock. There was a thing for a padlock on it, but the padlock was not there at that time."

It is possible that when Miss Cruger visited the shop the first time Cocchi was at work in his cellar burying her sister's body and that if she had climbed down the stepladder which led from the sidewalk in front of the shop she would have encountered him and met Ruth's fate. That Cocchi had been so hurried before 9:30 o'clock that he had forgotten the sign and neglected to fasten the door as securely as he might was indicated when Miss Cruger made her second visit to his place, between 10:30 and 11 o'clock of the same morning.

"I found then," she testified, "that the sign was out of the door and there was a padlock on the door, which was fastened."

She was accompanied this time by a private detective named Kilpatrick, who had been engaged by her father, but she went to the shop alone for the third time at 12:45 o'clock, and found it as she had on the second visit. Miss Cruger went to the shop for the fourth time that day at 2:30 o'clock, and found it open. She was met inside by a man whom she later identified as Cocchi, and several women, who seemed to be there to have baby carriages repaired, were present, although Cocchi was working on a bicycle. Telling of her interview with the man, Miss Cruger said:

"I asked him if my sister had left her skates there to be sharpened the day before, and he said a young lady had left a pair of skates to be sharpened in the morning, and I asked him if she had called for them and he said, 'Yes.' I said, 'What kind of skates were they?' and he described them, and said right away, 'They were fastened on shoes like you have on.' I noticed at the time that he was very quick in making that comparison. He said she was the only lady that had left any skates and called for them there that day. I asked him what time she had called for them, and he said about 1:20. I said, 'Was she a dark and attractive girl?' and he said, 'Yes.'

Discoveries Reported to Detectives.

Miss Cruger did not discuss any further details with Cocchi, but hurried to her home and reported the interview to her father, who, according to his testimony, at once telephoned to the Fourth Branch Detective Bureau the facts of Miss Helen's discovery without, however, saying that the shop had been found closed on three visits to it. On the following morning, Thursday, Detective Lagarenne called at the Cruger home, and, according to Miss Cruger, she told him all of the details of her four visits to Cocchi's shop. When asked by Commissioner Wallstein how Lagarenne had received her information, Miss Cruger said:

"Some one—I don't recall whether it was he or not (implying that it might have been another detective)—said that a man like that had repair jobs in the neighborhood and he might go off to attend to them, and he didn't have enough business to keep some one there to have the store open all the time."

As Cocchi was seen by his wife, according to reports, as late as 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Miss Cruger's talk with Detective Lagarenne, the police could have laid hands on him if they had acted promptly on the information which she gave them.

Continuing her testimony, Miss Cruger said that Lagarenne came again to her house on Thursday afternoon and told her the taxicab story by which he explained Ruth's disappearance, adding that he thought that there was "a very strong probability" that the girl who entered the taxicab with the unidentified man was Ruth. Asked by Commissioner Wallstein what comment she made to this, Miss Cruger replied:

"I think I said that I was sure that it was not she; that she would not have gotten in a taxi."

It was on the following day, Friday, Feb. 16, that Miss Cruger went to Police Headquarters in company with Frederick Ewing, her employer, and presented the following letter to a police Lieutenant, whose name she could not remember, but who later was identified by Commissioner Wallstein as Lieutenant Funston:

> Dear Inspector: This will introduce to you Mr. Frederick Ewing of the Mexican Petroleum Company, 120 Broadway, in whose office is employed Miss Helen Cruger, the sister of the missing Miss Ruth Cruger. As I understand it, Miss Helen Cruger is anxious to confer with you regarding the disappearance of her sister and the search being taken to locate her.
> I shall be very much obliged to you for your careful attention to these people. Mr. Ewing is a warm personal friend of mine, and anything you can do to help in the matter which is of interest to him will be cordially appreciated by me.
> Sincerely, D. I. McKAY.

Tried to Interest the Police.

The following questions by Commissioner Wallstein and answers by Miss Cruger show how she tried to put the police on the right track in the search for her sister:

Q.—What did you say to this Lieutenant and what did he say to you? A.—I told him the whole story from the beginning, and I tried to point out that this was not one of the ninety-nine cases in which the police said the girls always were found. I told him that that was the line they were working on and I argued that point with him. I told him all the reasons why they should not regard this as one of the ninety-nine cases.

Q.—Reasons based upon your knowledge of your sister's character? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you mention to this Lieutenant the visits that you had made to the Cocchi shop? A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—What did the man who was interviewing you say as to that or any other item of information that you gave him? A.—I don't remember what he said.

Q.—Upon what did you base your statement that this was not one of the ninety-nine cases of missing girls? What did you refer to there particularly?

Miss Cruger's embarrassment was evident. "I don't quite understand you," she replied. Commissioner Wallstein deftly helped her out.

Q.—You say you told this official at Police Headquarters that you were eager that they should not regard this case as one of the ninety-nine cases of missing girls? A.—The police, when they came—that was their whole attitude, that this was just one of the regular cases.

Q.—Of girls who went voluntarily away? A.—Yes, Sir.

On the same day, or possibly Friday, Feb. 17, Detective Sergeants Lagarenne and McGee again went to the Cruger home and told Miss Helen of Cocchi's disappearance.

"I asked them," she testified, "why they could not have watched Cocchi, and they said that he was—they could not watch him—there was nothing the matter with him, there was no reason why they should. They said he was a respectable business man there. I said that even if he was he should have been watched, that no matter who he was, if a thing like that had happened—if he was the last person—he should have been watched."

Testimony of Ruth Cruger's Father.

The principal points of Mr. Cruger's testimony were: That he had received word of Ruth's disappearance at 7 P. M. on Feb. 13, when Mr. Brown, who had been summoned by Miss Helen, telephoned him from New York; that, after talking over the long-distance telephone several times with Mr. Brown and George H. Olney, who were conducting the search, he left Boston at midnight and arrived in New York at 7 A. M.; that he talked with Kilpatrick, the private detective, shortly after his arrival at his home; that he communicated by telephone with the Fourth Branch Bureau that afternoon and told the man who answered of his daughter's discovery that Ruth had been last seen at Cocchi's shop; that he saw a newspaper reporter on the same afternoon and asked him to give all possible publicity to the story of Ruth's disappearance; that he told other reporters the next morning that, in his belief, Ruth had met with foul play as a result of her visit to Cocchi's place of business; and that he went, shortly afterward, to the Fourth Branch Bureau and asked Lagarenne to make "a careful search of Cocchi's shop and all those ramshackle buildings around it and all those vacant lots."

"You people will feel pretty cheap," Mr. Cruger said he told Lagarenne, "if the girl's body is found in or around the shop."

Mr. Cruger said that he learned of Cocchi's disappearance on Thursday evening from Martin Donnelly, a private detective, and that when he next saw Lagarenne on Saturday he asked why Cocchi had not been watched.

"Lagarenne replied," he testified, "that there was no reason—they had no right to hold that man or do anything with him, even to watch him. And he went on to say that he was a perfectly reputable business man and had been there a year and a half, and they had no right to do anything at all about it. He said there was no charge against him. I said, 'Well, what did he go away for?' He said, 'He had trouble with his wife; he was not happy, and he may have gone away on account of family troubles, or he may have gone away on account of financial troubles,' and he said that the newspaper reporters and private detectives worried him. And I said, 'Lagarenne, the record of this case is being made up now, and there is going to be an answer some time.'"

It was in this conversation, according to Mr. Cruger, that Lagarenne referred to Cocchi as "Al." He said that, unless his memory was in error, he told Lagarenne that he had information to the effect that Cocchi was not a reputable business man, and he added that newspaper reporters had told him that Cocchi had an unsavory reputation.

Mr. Brown's testimony consisted of his narration of his efforts to find Ruth Cruger on the night of her disappearance and to arouse the police in the search for her. He told of visiting without success hospitals and an apartment in 116th Street, where a young man lived. He made inquiries and reports at the West 125th and 100th Street Stations, and, by telephone, at Police Headquarters. When he went to the Fourth Branch Bureau at midnight a man who, he thought, was Lieutenant Brown, told him that a general alarm could not be sent out for twenty-four hours. He remonstrated somewhat at this, but finally left the matter in the hands of the police, urging them to do everything possible to find the girl, for whose character he vouched. He sought to avoid publicity, but authorized the detectives even to make the affair public if that would help. He left a picture of Ruth Cruger at the bureau after giving a description of the girl.

Detective Sergeant Lagarenne was the last witness of the day. He said he was 35 years old, married, with a 5-year-old daughter, had worked ten years as a salesman for Olberman, Danbrook & Co. before entering the Police Department in October, 1905; had a record in the department which included slight punishments for two minor offenses and commendation for excellent work in connection with the arrest and conviction of a murderer; had been assigned to the duty of searching for missing persons about a year ago without previous experience in the work.

Mr. Wallstein wanted to know how many missing persons Lagarenne had looked for with and without success in the last year, but the detective could remember the total number as only "about seventy-five," and could give no idea from memory of his record of successes. Commissioner Wallstein had just reached the Cruger case in his examination of the witness when he excused Lagarenne for the day. The investigation will be resumed this morning at 10:15 o'clock in Commissioner Wallstein's office, when Lagarenne will continue his testimony.

It was learned yesterday that, if Commissioner Wallstein comes to the conclusion, after hearing their side of the case, that any of the detectives in the Police Department were negligent in their duty, he will report his opinion to Police Commissioner Woods at once, recommending that the delinquents be brought to trial, without waiting for his final findings as a result of the entire investigation.

MRS. LA RUE TELLS OF DRUG AND KIDNAPPERS

Made Unconscious in Hotel, She Says, and Kept in Cellar Until She Gave Up Diamonds.

Inspector Faurot and a large part of his staff spent yesterday investigating an amazing story of murder, blackmail, and white slavery, told at the Polyclinic Hospital by mysterious Mrs. La Rue, who jumped out of the third story of her apartment at 215 West Eightieth Street a week ago this morning, and who said she had jumped to escape an attempt to murder her because she had aided in the discovery of the body of Ruth Cruger.

Mrs. La Rue's story was that in the latter part of May she was drugged in one of the best-known hotels in New York City, kidnapped, and taken to a cellar, where she was held a prisoner and cruelly used until she had parted with her diamonds, which were worth more than $30,000. After her escape at the sacrifice of her jewels, Mrs. La Rue told her story to Mrs. Grace Humiston, who had previously acted as her lawyer. She said that in the cellar where she was held were two young women who had been abducted by the same band, and a third, who had been killed. Mrs. La Rue further said that the body of the dead woman had been pointed out to her by one of her captors, who said: "This is what happens to you if you ever tell anything of this."

After telling this story, Mrs. La Rue begged Mrs. Humiston to dig up the basement of Cocchi's shop, a work which the woman lawyer had already determined upon. What she had heard and seen in the basement during her imprisonment, which lasted several days, convinced the La Rue woman that she was in the hands of a band composed largely of foreigners and organized for the purpose of kidnapping girls to sell them and wealthy women to force them to pay heavy ransoms in order to escape disgrace and torture. Further information which she obtained later convinced Mrs. Humiston that the band was one which had abducted white girls and sent them to South American cities for immoral purposes.

After Mrs. La Rue had told her story with all its details, Assistant District Attorney A. J. Rorke said that it was the most "astonishing story that he had ever heard," and a little later he said that many of the essential details of it had been verified. A police official, who heard her story, said that, if it was not true, it was "the best developed case of dementia he had ever heard." This police official was one of a score or more working on the case with all their might yesterday.

The facts which corroborated the story of Mrs. La Rue, who is 23 years old and handsome, are that her acquaintances when she lived at 137 West Eighty-second Street and at 215 West Eightieth Street said that they had heard her talking to a broker who was commissioned to sell some of her diamonds, which are said to number fifty, one being a 10-carat stone; that she disappeared for a week during the latter part of May, and that her acquaintance with two men going by the title of "Count" has been traced. According to her story, some of the men in the alleged band carry on their work in the best hotels in New York, where they were said to be sent for the purpose of entrapping wealthy women.

In Fear of Betrayed Men.

David Rose, the landlord at 215 West Eightieth Street; Jose A. del Campo, ex-Chilean Consul at Mobile, and a young woman companion of Mrs. La Rue corroborated the fact that for several days before her jump from the window she was in fear of her life from the men she said she had betrayed. That the attack on her was not a product of hysteria was indicated by the discovery at the Polyclinic Hospital of marks of a man's hand on her throat.

Among the effects of the young woman in her apartment, which is guarded day and night by police detectives, is the card of a "Count Raflasky." Another man known as a "Count," living near Central Park, was found to have been acquainted with the young woman. It was reported at his apartment yesterday that he had left for the country. In connection with the case, the police are looking for a Mexican named Valdes, who was known as a wealthy oil man, and is believed to have been in the house on the night that Mrs. La Rue jumped from the window. Another man being sought so that he may be questioned is an American named Agnew, who was with the young woman on the evening before the attack on her, but is thought to have no connection with the story of horror which she has told the police. The American left this city for the South shortly after the night of the attack.

The police were mystified by the disappearance, immediately after that of the girl, of her woman companion, Miss Mercedes Espenosa, who lived with her at the Hotel Endicott and at 137 West Eighty-second Street. She was traced to an apartment house near 108th Street and Central Park West, but she left this place on last Friday, carefully concealing her movements. She was located later by Mrs. Humiston at a town in Massachusetts and has told her story to Mrs. Humiston.

Mrs. La Rue, whose first name is Louise, not Consuelo, as was originally given, comes of a Buenos Aires family, but has been living until about a year ago at San Francisco with her sister, mother, and stepfather. Her family is described as wealthy, but it has not been established whether the diamonds which were in her possession belonged to her or were held by her for others.

Detectives working on the case have not admitted that they credit her story. Yesterday they questioned Mr. Rose, her former landlord; the janitress at this building, and a number of Latin Americans. Detectives under Inspector Faurot took to the Latin-American friends of Mrs. La Rue an enlarged picture of Alfredo Cocchi and asked them if they had ever seen him before. When a Latin American asked why he was questioned about Cocchi, the detective, who was Dennis J. Mahoney of the Fourth Branch, said:

"There is some reason to believe that he got his passport through an attaché of a Latin-American Consul."

Sent to South America.

It was after her questioning of Mrs. La Rue that Mrs. Humiston went to Police Headquarters with Inspector Faurot and obtained a warrant for the arrest of a man who is accused of winning the affections of young girls and taking them to Argentina, where he is alleged to have sold them. After her investigation of the traffic in American girls between this port and South American cities, Mrs. Humiston made arrangements for an investigation of the conditions of abducted white girls in cities of South America by a man who is to make a tour of two years, visiting all the large cities of the Southern Continent. Mrs. Humiston conferred for a total of six hours yesterday and the day before with Jose A. del Campo, the former Chilean official. Mr. del Campo said:

"This traffic in American girls is one which has been going on for years, in spite of efforts in various Latin American countries to break it up. It was carried on by a scheme so well worked out that no girl can easily guard against it. Girls of previous good character are the victims. The method of abducting them is well known in South American ports and is called the 'uncle game.'

"A man of middle age or past middle age comes to an American city—and this has been practiced in the South more extensively than in New York—with several prepossessing young men. Sometimes he employs young Americans if he knows they will do the work. The young man meets a girl of the desired type, courts her respectfully, but always keeps at a great distance.

"After he has won her love he says he must go to South America, and the usual story is that he cannot marry her here because he would be disinherited under the laws of his country if he did so. Then the 'uncle' comes in. He usually makes a fuss, but finally agrees to give his aid to the match and to act as chaperon for the couple on their trip south.

"The girl nearly always runs away without the consent of her parents, but she goes voluntarily. On the steamer she is treated with respect and is forced to take no step against her will until she reaches the South American port. There she is usually sold for from $1,000 to $3,000, and, after the wealthy man discards her, she is sold again. On each trip the 'uncle' and his supposed nephews, who are called 'traps,' bring home several victims.

"This traffic was pretty well broken up in the Argentine a few years ago, and the members of the organization who were not arrested went to Chile and infested the cities there. The enslaving of American girls in this manner for a while almost ceased, but since the war has kept the Latin-American authorities busy on other matters I believe it has been resumed on a considerable scale."

Father Signs Affidavit.

Henry D. Cruger, father of Ruth Cruger, accompanied by Terence J. McManus, his counsel, called at the District Attorney's office yesterday and signed an affidavit which will be sent to the Italian Government with the other extradition papers. Judge William H. Wadhams of General Sessions, and Assistant District Attorney Alexander Rorke later went by auto to the Cruger home with a similar affidavit for Mrs. Cruger to sign.

The interview with Lieutenant Vincenzo Ludovico, an attaché of the Italian Military Commission, appearing in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, created widespread interest at the District Attorney's office. It was announced as a result of the article that Assistant District Attorney William Harmon Black would hold a conference with Lieutenant Ludovico, who is in civil life a lawyer of note, some day this week.

Governor Whitman telegraphed to District Attorney Swann yesterday, seeking to learn whether Cocchi had ever applied for naturalization in this country. The Governor said that the Italian Minister of Justice had requested this information of the State Department in Washington. A search of the records made by members of the District Attorney's staff failed to find any mention of Cocchi's name. Mrs. Cocchi, who was examined again yesterday, said she did not believe her husband had ever applied for first papers. Mrs. Cocchi was decidedly cheerful yesterday, so much so that Assistant District Attorney Dooling was led to ask her the reason.

"Well, you know I am more like the French than the Italians; they never stay gloomy long," she was quoted as saying. "I was raised among the French."

Mrs. Cocchi, according to Mr. Dooling, testified that Cocchi had inherited some of his bad traits from his father. Several years ago, she said, Cocchi's father attacked her one morning after her husband had left for his business. She reported the matter to the police.

A policeman was sent around to investigate, Mrs. Cocchi declared, but no official action ever was taken in the matter. She has promised to furnish Mr. Dooling with the policeman's number, which, she said, she preserved in a prayer book. When she told her husband of the attack, Mrs. Cocchi said, he bceame furious and immediately arranged for the return of his father to Italy, where he still is. Mr. Dooling also questioned several of Cocchi's customers, who said that they could not get in the repair shop on the afternoon of Feb. 13, nor any time during the next three days.

District Attorney Swann said that he expected to show today that an effort had been made to sidetrack the investigation of the Cruger murder immediately after Cocchi's flight. He said that Mrs. Cocchi, according to his information, did not have any part in this move. He refused to discuss the matter until today.

Supreme Court Justice Ford yesterday afternoon sustained the writ of habeas corpus sued out by Edward Miehling, attorney for Victor Blady, a chauffeur, who has been detained by the police as a material witness in the Cruger murder. In discharging Blady from custody, Justice Ford said a study of the affidavit showed that Blady was held as a witness only, and there was nothing to show he was a necessary or material witness. Assistant District Attorney John G. Dyer moved for a re-committment of the chauffeur on a new affidavit sworn to by Assistant District Attorney John R. Fitzpatrick.

Justice Ford, in denying this motion, said the affidavit showed that Blady was in Cocchi's shop four and one-half hours after the time the murder is believed to have been committed on Feb. 13. "Cocchi," he said, "kept a repair shop and this man Blady had a motor cycle there. There may have been hundreds of people who entered the shop after the murder."

EXCITED WOMAN WIRES

To Mitchel and Other Mayors Warning of Air Raid She Imagines.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 25.—Warning that New York was to be subjected to an airplane attack tonight was sent from the telegraph office in the Union Station here late today to Mayor Mitchel of New York by a well-dressed woman who occupied a Pullman section in a train passing through Baltimore on its way from Washington to Chicago. Another message similarly worded was sent by her to a Mrs. Sparks of Montclair, N. J.

A boy messenger who was going through the street received the message from the woman, who seemed considerably excited. She handed him a $5 note and told him to have the message sent to as many of the persons on a list she gave him as the money would pay for. The list included the names of Mayors of several towns in the vicinity of New York.

Benjamin Sherr, the operator who sent the message, said the one to Mayor Mitchel was, in effect, as follows:

"For God's sake, be careful; airplane raid to be made in New York tonight."

The message to Mrs. Sparks was the same, except that it told her she would be in no danger.

The police were communicated with, but expressed the opinion that the woman either was playing a practical joke or was mentally unbalanced.

NEW YORK BEQUESTS ANNULLED BY COURT

Hoge Unbalanced, Judge Holds, and Actors' Fund and Museum Gifts Go to Nephew.

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, June 25.—Holding, on the testimony of witnesses, that the late John Hoge, millionaire, was of unsound mind when he wrote a codicil to his will bequeathing New York property worth $600,000 to the Actors' Fund of America, and other New York property vaued at $1,100,000 to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Probate Court today refused to admit the codicil to probate. A nephew will receive the property as residuary legatee.

The estate was valued at $4,000,000.

Bodies of Alexander and Miss Jones Identified by Scholz.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 25.—The mystery surrounding the death of a man and woman in a prominent hotel here last night remained unsolved today. Their identity was confirmed today by Alexander J. Scholz of New York, who said the man was Frederick Alexander, believed to have been an officer on a United States cable ship, and the woman Louise E. Jones. Scholz said the woman left her apartments in the Scholz home in New York last Saturday, saying she was to marry Alexander in Philadelphia the same day. The couple registered as man and wife.

Alexander was found dead on a bed last night, and the woman was found on a couch with a bullet through her head. Superficial examination by physicians showed no marks on the man's body, nor any trace that he had died of poison. Pending a thorough examination by the Coroner's physician the authorities are holding to the theory that Alexander died from natural causes and that the woman killed herself while hysterical.

Scholz told the police that last Friday a man, said to be Lieutenant R. B. Colton of the cable ship Joseph Henry, telephoned the Scholz home that Alexander was to sail for a European port today. Scholz said Miss Jones formerly lived in or near Saratoga, N. Y., was a graduated nurse, had no near relatives, and had a small income from her parents' estate.

Louise Jones lived at the boarding house of Alexander Scholz, 104 West 123d Street, for two years. A man introduced as Frederick Alexander had called frequently to see her. He wore the uniform of an officer in the United States Navy, and said he was on service with the cable ship Joseph Henry at Norfolk, Va. When Miss Jones left the Scholz home Saturday, saying she was to be married to Mr. Alexander, she said that after a few days in Philadelphia she would return to New York, while her husband would sail for France.

Mr. Scholz went to Philadelphia yesterday to get a letter left for him by Miss Jones. The envelope contained only the key to her rooms in the Scholz house.

ALBANIANS HERE CALLED.

Ordered to Proceed to Saloniki to Await Developments.

Albanians residing in all parts of the United States have received orders from the representatives of their Government to proceed at once to the Atlantic seaboard, where accommodations will be provided to take them to a contingent of Albanians, consisting of 250 men of military age, sailed recently for the Orient via a French port, making a total of 550 who have left this country since the orders were received.

Albanians from various parts of Europe and North Africa, including Egypt, are also being sent to Saloniki to await developments.

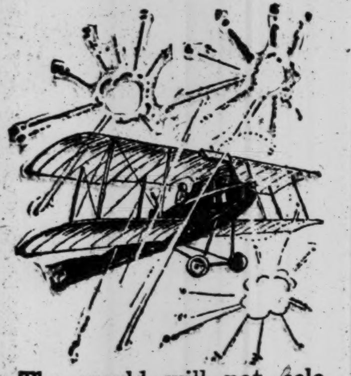
The Sky-Rockets of History



The world will not celebrate a quiet Fourth. The sky-rockets of history—the bombs which will reverberate through future centuries—are in the air.

Ten millions—the flower of young American manhood—are about to answer the roll-call.

America will give them a glorious send-off on this most glorious of all our Fourths!

Every parent, every citizen will show them that our hearts are beating with theirs.

At house parties in the country—at the camp—with a roadside motor luncheon—on the golf links—at the beach—they will be heroes.

All the rest, like true sportsmen, must extend the hand of camaraderie and congratulation.

Let us help you, if we can!

NEW CABINET CRISIS THREATENS BRITAIN

Hysteria Over Air Raid and Resentment at Northcliffe's Mission the Causes.

PRESSING FOR REPRISALS

Friends of Northcliffe Fear He Has Impaired His Influence by Accepting Office.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 25.—England seems nearer to a Government crisis at this moment than at any time since the Asquith Ministry fell, though the whole thing may soon assume its proper proportions as a tempest in a teapot.

There are two main sources of disturbance to the usually serene British mind—the air raid on London and the appointment of Lord Northcliffe as Commissioner in America. Neither matter is of first importance, but both are extremely irritating to a large section of the public, and all sections of the public with cherished grievances take advantage of the occasion to throw them into the balance against the Government.

For example, The Morning Post, disgruntled over the Irish question and the suggestion of the elevation to office of its pet abomination, Winston Churchill, promptly brings up its artillery to the charge. The Liberal press and leaders who are clinging to the hope that Asquith will come back and the huge crowd of spoils-seekers and camp-followers — called in England "tapers and tadpoles"—of that political faith take part in the attack, which thus combines both the Tory and Liberal elements in opposition to Lloyd George.

Hysteria Over Air Raids.

To take up the two causes of offense on their merits, the anger of England over the air raids is probably precisely the object sought by Germany. The damage done by the recent raid and all the damage by past air raids added together are militarily negligible. It would not amount to as much as a before-breakfast skirmish almost any morning on the Somme. The fact that it brings the war to the doorstep of the civilian population of London ought, as in the past, to serve as a stimulant to war energy. The contained sobriety with which air attacks have been treated heretofore seems to have given place to excited anger. The Government is implored to withdraw enough attention and resources from the fighting front to protect London entirely from air raids, and heated demand is made for reprisal in kind.

From a war point of view, of course, not one ounce of strength should be taken from real fighting to make security more safe for Londoners. Air raiding will have to become vastly more ruinous before it ranks as a war danger. The killing of innocent women and children is something to stir people to renewed effort, but not to bring airplanes and soldiers home from the front, where decisions affecting every woman and child in the empire are being fought for hand to hand.

As for reprisals on German towns, the policy is at least doubtful. First, it negatives the moral effect of the German outrages. Secondly, on the practical side there are serious difficulties. The question is often asked why Paris is not raided by Zeppelins and airplanes. The last Zeppelin to head this way fell 11,000 feet in eleven seconds at Compiègne four months ago, and there was scarcely a piece of it left as big as a rat-trap. Perhaps Germany refrains from raids on Paris for political reasons. Anyway, Paris is immune, because air raiders must navigate a sky alive with hostile craft. To cross the North Sea from Germany is an entirely different thing from passing above the battle lines in France, where fighting machines by the thousand are constantly on the watch. The same obstacle presents itself measurably to attacks on German cities. The hysterical seriousness with which the subject has been pressed in England is unworthy of the traditional mental calm of the British race.

Anger Over Northcliffe's Mission.

To pass to the second irritant: Lord Northcliffe is paying the penalty that every editor must pay for accepting office. There can be scarcely a doubt that he was persuaded of the patriotism of his act in accepting the American mission, but it has subjected his past activities to misunderstanding and given his enemies—most of whom were made in the good cause of public service—a handle to their antagonism. No one need waste sympathy on Lord Northcliffe; he is able to take care of himself. But his appointment is proving an embarrassment to the Government which will continue as long as he holds office. His identification with the Government will make a point of vulnerability that will constantly invite attack.

His consenting to serve in an office which, though important as an office, seems by comparison with such an editorship as Northcliffe's insignificant, puzzles all except those who know the extremely human quality that lies at the bottom of Northcliffe's character. Lord Northcliffe is a fighter without fear. When he goes into a contest he puts aside his sensibilities, closes his ears to counsels of moderation, and therefore never seems to experience a reaction. He may go on now to a finish, regardless of consequences, but those who know and appreciate his peculiar qualifications will hope for his return to his editorial duties.

For him to sacrifice his own usefulness in a vastly inferior service, to subject himself and every word published in his papers to misunderstanding and to embarrass a great and efficient Government at the very crisis of the war might be quite as desirable to Berlin as the winning of a battle.

BULGAR PREMIER OPTIMISTIC

Sees No Danger from Greece, Whose Action Was Anticipated.

VIENNA, June 25, (via London.)—M. Radoslavoff, the Bulgarian Premier, left Vienna Saturday evening. He expressed to the Neue Freie Presse his satisfaction with regard to his visit and also spoke in terms of great admiration for the young Emperor. He referred to the rock-like firmness of the alliance of the two countries and said the position on all battle fronts was excellent.

He said he was firmly convinced that the military strength of the Entente had not been increased by events in Greece, for which, he said, the Bulgarians were adequately prepared.

BRITISH WAR BILL $38,760,000 DAILY

Bonar Law Says America's Entrance Is Now Felt—Some Advances Recoverable.

LONDON, June 25.—The total national expenditure for the nine weeks from Oct. 8 to Dec. 9 last was on a daily average of £6,615,000, says a statement in detail prepared for the House of Commons by Andrew Bonar Law, the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

For the five weeks from April 1 to May 5, 1917, the statement shows the daily average of expenditure was £7,971,000, while for the five weeks from May 6 to June 9 it was £7,582,000. For the ten weeks from April 1 to June 9 the expenditure is shown to have averaged £7,752,000.

For the respective periods set forth the actual war expenditure daily, the Chancellor states, was £5,714,000, £7,457,000, £5,989,000 and £6,723,000.

The increase in expenditure for army service, says the statement, is in part attributable to payments and advances which are ultimately recoverable. The expenditure for munitions was affected by temporary causes, such as more rapid delivery made on the termination of certain orders, but notwithstanding this the Chancellor fears there will be some excess, under the heads of army and munitions, over the figures of the budget estimate.

Regarding loans to the Allies, continues the statement, the Government was still liable during the opening weeks of the current year to fulfil commitments undertaken before the entry of America into the war. The advantage of America's entrance, he explained, was now being felt.

HINTS AT FINANCIAL PERILS.

London Times Warns of Liberty Loan's Effect on British Market.

LONDON, June 25.—Commenting on the astonishing success of the Liberty Loan, the financial editor of The Times refers to it as having very great significance and being only an earnest of what is still to come.

"Confident as we may well be, however, in the financial strength of the United States," continues the editor, "let nobody here be so foolish as to think everything has been made plain sailing for us in the matter of money by American co-operation. It is no substitute for the efforts called for from ourselves, and yet there is some danger of slackness here, not only among the public, but through the idea that a provision of American money relieves us of much of our own responsibility. It will do that, we firmly believe, but only by willing co-operation, which will need unchecked assistance in our own effort.

"It would be a short-sighted view of our own money market to ignore the fact that an unexampled drain on the monetary resources of the United States may still affect it in ways not immediately obvious to those who regard the Liberty Loan merely as supplying cheap money for allied war chests."

DUKE OF TECK'S NEW TITLE.

King George's Brother-in-Law Is Now Marquis of Cambridge.

LONDON, June 25.—The Times learns that in view of the recent decision of King George that those Princes of his family who are his subjects and bear German names and titles should relinquish them, the Duke of Teck takes the title of the Marquis of Cambridge, and Prince Alexander of Battenberg becomes the Marquis of Carisbrooke.

BAN ON LIQUOR IN FRANCE.

All Drinks Containing Over 18 Degrees of Alcohol Forbidden.

PARIS, June 25.—M. Malvy, Minister of the Interior, as the result of a Cabinet meeting, has addressed to the prefects of all the departments in France instructions to forbid the sale at retail of spiritous liquors testing over 18 degrees of alcohol in cafés and saloons, except during the hours when the principal meals are served. Adult males can procure liquors during these hours, but women and minors under 18 years will be unable to get them at any hour. Bottled goods may be sold only in two-litre quantities, M. Malvy seeking thus to exclude those desiring to purchase small bottles.

Excluded from the scope of the proposed regulations are beer, wines, cider, imitation wines and liquors, and all other aromatic wines not possessing over 18 per cent. of alcohol, and liquors prepared from fresh fruits not possessing over 23 per cent. of alcohol.

Press Asserts That 'American' Peace Delegates Are Duly Accredited.

COPENHAGEN, June 25.—German newspapers for obvious reasons continue to treat the three Socialists, Goldfarb, Reinstein, and Davidovitch, who recently arrived at Stockholm from the United States, as thoroughly representative Americans qualified to speak for Socialism and even the labor movement in America.

Vorwärts, the German Socialist organ of Berlin, prints a statement on their qualifications in answer to a criticism from America. Their interviews and declarations are eagerly snapped up by Pan Germans as well as Socialist writers.

3 CZECH REGIMENTS DESERTED AUSTRIA

NOW FIGHTING FOR RUSSIA

Czech Prisoners of War Also Said to Have Volunteered for Service Against Austria.

AMSTERDAM, June 25.—Three Czech regiments have deserted to the Russians, according to a statement made on Saturday to a committee of Deputies from Southern Austria by F. von Georgi, Minister of Defense in the retiring Austrian Cabinet, as published in the Lokal-Anzeiger and Tabeblatt of Berlin. The statement was made during a discussion of the demand of the Czech Deputies for the release of Deputy Klofac, who was sentenced to death on the charge of attempting to reconcile Russia and Bohemia. The sentence of Herr Klofac, who is head of the Czech Union, was canceled by Emperor Charles, but he is still held in prison.

Herr von Georgi said Czech legions had been formed in all the armies of Austria's enemies, and that of all the Czechs of military age who were in Russia when the war began only three had returned to Austria. He also said that Herr Pavlu, formerly director of the Bohemian newspaper Narodni Listy of Prague, had boasted publicly in Russia that when an Ensign in the Austrian Army he had deserted to the Russians after his companions had killed Austrian outposts.

Herr von Georgi's statements are said to have made a great sensation. The Czech Deputies, angered by them, charged that they had been made in a vengeful spirit on account of the fact that the Ministry had been forced to resign.

COPENHAGEN, June 25.—The disclosures of the retiring Austrian Minister of Defense, F. von Georgi, before a Reichsrat committee that three Bohemian regiments had gone over to the enemy in a body, and his statement that Czech prisoners of war had volunteered for service against Austria-Hungary in considerable numbers, constitute only a part of the anti-Austrian demonstrations of Bohemian troops, who through long continued conflicts with the Germans for dominance in Bohemia have felt in a way more closely allied with the Russians than with Germany's vassal State Austria.

It is a fact freely admitted in Austria-Hungary, although the newspapers have never previously been permitted to refer plainly to it, that from the beginning of the war Bohemians deserted en masse at every opportunity. Certain regiments, as early as the Spring of 1915, had to be decimated because of their conduct in the face of the enemy. The Royal Bohemian Bodyguard Regiment was permanently disbanded at that time and its colors sent to the arsenal in Vienna.

It was at about this period that the correspondent saw a naïve letter from a Bohemian prisoner in Serbia advising his comrades not to desert while in Serbia, as the conditions of residence there were too unpleasant.

HOW ITALIANS TOOK PEAK.

Stormed Ortigara in Face of Heavy Fire—Held It Under Hail of Iron.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, June 25.—The conquest of the highest peak of Ortigara gives the Italians the whole of that mountain region. The Alpini, some contingents of infantry, Bersaglieri, and engineer soldiers who wanted to have the glory of the laborious conquest, participated in the attack. The plan of advance was admirably executed. With great dash the soldiers dashed forward while machine guns sprayed the zone of assault. At a few minutes before 7 in the morning the Peak of Ortigara was conquered. Then the most terrible ordeal of Italian resistance began, that of keeping the conquered positions. The Austrian artillery opened a deadly fire. There was not an inch of ground where shells, almost all of big calibre, did not fall. There was no way of saving one's self from the hail of iron and steel.

The soldiers placed themselves in holes made by high explosives and waited motionless for the hurricane to pass. The enemy's fire continued the whole day. The Alpini, infantry, and Bersaglieri resisted, sublimely sacrificing themselves without ceding a step. They would all rather have died than give up precious Ortigara, the sacred place of so many of their companions.

ROME, June 25.—The War Office issued the following statement this evening:

The artillery firing yesterday was generally weak. Minor encounters between reconnoitring parties took place. An enemy attack in the Bacher Valley was easily repulsed.

Parley on Prisoners of War.

THE HAGUE, June 25.—The British Commission headed by Lord Newton has arrived here to discuss with German delegates headed by General Friedrich the question of war prisoners of of both countries. The prison camps, reprisals and matters connected with the exchange of interned prisoners, post, the exchange of interned prisoners past be considered. The Netherlands Government will be represented by Baron von Vredenvrich.

ARMY OF BELGIUM LARGER THAN EVER

Has Won from Germany in Africa Twice the Area Lost in Europe, Says Gen. Le Clercq.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The Belgian Army is larger, better equipped, and more determined today than it was at the beginning of the war, said Lieut. Gen. Le Clercq, military member of the Belgian mission, in an address tonight to the National Press Club. The General gave a graphic description of how twice, at Liége and at the Yser, his countrymen held up Germany's hordes while the Allies united in the rear, and told of the joy which the Belgian soldiers would experience on sight of the American khaki.

Besides rehabilitating their army after terrible losses, the General said, his country has set up munitions factories, one at Havre, with 15,000 Belgian workmen, and two at Richmond and Letchworth in England with 35,000, while the Royal Belgian Lloyd, with $30,000,000 capital, assured transportation at sea.

The Belgian Army, he stated, now occupied a front of twenty-two miles, with eight divisions, including two of cavalry.

At Liége, the General said, his countrymen, barely 100,000 strong, met three times as many Germans, inflicted losses admitted by Germany to total 42,714 and paralyzed for thirteen days the invasion which after forty years of preparation was expected to be irresistible.

"The Germans had organized a formidable war machine," he added. "The resistance of Belgium at Liége was the little grain of sand which threw the whole machinery out of gear at the very commencement."

After picturing fighting at the Yser and the inundation of Flanders to drive out the foe, the General concluded:

"In Africa, too we have met the Germans. Our colonial army, 18,000 colored troopers before the war, was increased to 23,000 and dedicated itself to inflicting merited punishment for the unjust invasion of the mother country. Belgium has gained a territory of incalculable value, with a population of 8,000,000, an area twice as large as Belgium itself, and offering favorable commercial resources."

DOUBLE CENSORSHIP FOR OUR WAR NEWS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—A double censorship upon news from the American front in France is being planned by the War Department, it was learned today. One censor will be at General Pershing's headquarters and another in Washington. Officials here feel that there would be greater security for information that it is not desired to make public if the War Department as well as General Pershing's headquarters passed upon the news dispatches.

Officials said today that it had not been decided how many American correspondents would be permitted to go to the front for the American press. The number, it was said, would be small. Four, the number originally suggested, was thought by some military men to be too many. One reason given was limited cable facilities.

It could not be learned today whether the Government plans to censor also news of the American Army's operations in France reported through British and French newspapers and news associations. It is likely that much of the information obtained by American correspondents will be available almost simultaneously at the British and French War Offices.

It was recalled today that the Army War College had recommended a censorship prohibiting criticism of commanders as being prejudicial to the interests of the army and affording the people an opportunity by popular clamor to compel the removal of general officers. Whether this recommendation will be carried out through the censorship to be devised is not known. No such rule obtains in England, where the widest latitude is allowed in discussing the merits and demerits of commanding officers. Campaigns are discussed with freedom in the British press.

ADOR TO SUCCEED HOFFMANN

Certain to be Chosen Swiss Foreign Minister, Berne Dispatch Says.

PARIS, June 25.—A Havas dispatch from Berne says that present indications point certainly to the election of Gustave Ador, President of the International Red Cross, as member of the Federal Council to succeed Dr. Hoffmann and as head of the Political Department and Chief of Foreign Affairs until the end of 1917. The President of the Confederation, Edmund Schulthess, will then take over the conduct of political affairs in accordance with a long-established custom forces attacked our positions near Hulluch, but were repulsed during nocturnal hand-to-hand fighting and by our fire.

This solution of the Hoffmann problem, the dispatch adds, has been made necessary by the opposition of the German-Swiss elements, and is in the nature of a compromise.

By the use of small detachments the British also made vain attempts at several other places between the sea and the Somme to force their way into our trenches.

Front of the German Crown Prince—The French twice attacked the lines recently won and held by us near Vauxaillon. Both attacks were futile. The storming waves of the enemy, advancing over open ground, suffered heavy losses under our fire.

The artillery activity was lively not only in this fighting area but also near Ailles, east of Craonne, west of Suippes, near Ripont and on the left bank of the Meuse.

Front of Duke Albrecht—There were no important developments.

Three airplanes and three captive balloons belonging to the enemy were shot down yesterday.

Guns Active on French Front.

PARIS, June 25.—The War Office issued the following statement this afternoon:

Unusually active artillery fighting continued during the night in the sector between La Royère and Froidmont Farms, and also near Hurtebise and east of Chevreux. Two surprise attacks against our trenches east of Chevreux cost the enemy losses without any other result.

German attacks on our outposts in the Woevre and in the region of St. Mihiel were checked completely.

Everywhere else the night passed quietly.

Tonight's report says:

There was sustained fire by the artillery of both sides north of the Laffaux Mill and in the Cerny, Craonne, and Chevreux sectors. Twelve hundred shells were dropped upon Rheims.

GREETING FROM RUMANIA.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Secretary Lansing today received from Dr. Basile Lucaci, chief of the Rumanian Mission to the United States, which has just arrived at "a port in the United States" and is en route to Washington, a message of greeting to the Government and people of this country. The message read:

"The patriotic national mission sent by the Rumanian Government, on touching the soil of the United States of America, made sacred by the spirit of liberty, feels itself compelled to express its sentiments of admiration and great esteem to the great President of the glorious republic, to his Government, and to his generous people. Your noble and heroic act has produced a mighty feeling of joy and satisfaction throughout the civilized world; it guarantees the final victory of civilization and also the existence and development of the small nations.

"We find it only natural that the Rumanians in Europe and in America, inspired by the example of the great President, take part in the glorious struggle of the civilized nations from which shall result our liberty and national unity.

"Long live the great Republic, her President and Government. May her glorious army be crowned with the laurels of victory on land and on sea, for civilization, for liberty, and for the rights of peoples. The Rumanians will follow [illegible]

RUSSIAN FIRE INCREASING.

Sharp Fighting on Lower Galician and Carpathian Fronts.

BERLIN, June 25, (via London.)—There was sharp fighting yesterday between the Teutons and Russians on the battlefronts in Southeastern Galicia and in the Carpathian Mountains, says the official statement issued today by the German War Department. On the Eastern Macedonian front there were several clashes between British and Bulgarian detachments. The text of the statement reads:

Eastern Theatre—There was a lively fire on the upper Stripa and between the Zlota Lipa and the Narayuvka. There our thrusting troops brought a number of prisoners out of the enemy trenches. Fighting activity in the Carpathians north of Kirlibaba was more lively than formerly.

Macedonian Front—Between Lake Doiran and the Struma plain there were encounters on several occasions between English raiding detachments and Bulgarian posts.

PETROGRAD, June 25.—The official communication issued by the War Office today says:

Western and Rumanian Fronts.—Unchanged.

On the Caucasus front we occupied a series of heights. On Bargin Summit, thirty miles southwest of Ushnue, the Turks attempted to attack but were repulsed by our fire. West of Semnes we forced the Kurds from positions west of the summit of Ashkan.

VIENNA, June 25, (via London.)—The following official communication was issued today:

There has been very lively artillery activity at many points in the eastern theatre. In the Narayuvka-Zvorow sector the enemy's fire has appreciably increased and continues with systematic regularity. Northeast of Brzezany an enemy captive balloon was set afire by our shells.

PARIS, June 24.—The following concerning operations in Macedonia was issued by the War Office tonight:

Army of the East—The artillery was active in the Monastir region. An enemy company was repulsed to the north of Pozar.

TROOPS SHOOT CRIMINALS.

Twenty Killed and Many Wounded in Another Conflict at Tomsk.

Another clash between soldiers of the Russian Government and hundreds of criminals released at the outbreak of the revolution occurred in Tomsk on Sunday, according to the Petrograd correspondent of The Jewish Daily Forward, who, wiring under yesterday's date, says:

"Twenty killed and many wounded as the result of another skirmish between the forces of the Provisional Government and the forces of anarchy. Hundreds of criminals liberated after the revolution have made the capital of the Province of Tomsk their headquarters and have held the population in terror for a long while. The Labor Council and the local authorities have proclaimed martial law and have arrested 200 criminals.

"Order was restored, but before that was accomplished the Government troops had to fire, resulting in the above toll of dead and wounded.

"Both sections of the Russian Government—the progressives, headed by Rodzianko, President of the Duma, and the radicals, headed by War Minister Kerensky—are trying hard to win the co-operation of the All-Russian Cossack Congress, now being held in Petrograd. Delegations from the Don, Ural, and the Caucasian Cossacks have swelled the membership of the congress to more than 500. Their deliberations were opened with an address by Purishdevit Purishkevich. the only leader of the reactionaries who was converted to the new order."

RUSSIAN LOAN PILING UP.

Finance Minister Plans to Tax War Profits 70 to 90 Per Cent.

PETROGRAD, June 25.—Subscriptions to the 2,000,000,000 ruble Russian "Liberty Loan" today approached the 1,500,000,000 ruble mark.

Bills have been submitted to the Russian Provisional Government by the Ministry of Finance dealing with an increase of as much as 30 per cent. in the progressive income tax on incomes exceeding 400,000 rubles and a tax on profits of industries supplying war material of 70 to 90 per cent.

The Government has instructed the Minister of Supplies to proceed with the organization and distribution among the population of cloth, boots, petroleum, soap, and other necessities at prices which must cover the cost of manufacture, transportation, and distribution.

A fund will be put at the Minister's disposal by the State. The Ministry will, where necessary, proceed itself to manufacture the needed goods. The existing provincial organizations created by the Provisional Government April 7, for distributing food, will in the future also produce and distribute manufactured articles.

merchantman which was being attacked by a submarine when the American craft snatched the Britisher's wireless distress call from the air.

"Submarine shelling us," was the first message the destroyer picked up. The position showed the British vessel was ninety miles away, which meant a run of five hours through high seas for the destroyer.

The American craft was just getting under full speed when her wireless sounded the second and final message. It read: "Abandoning ship."

Only floating wreckage greeted the American bluejackets when they reached the scene, but they patrolled the vicinity for two days in the hope of finding some survivors. Owing to the high seas it seems doubtful if any of the sunken vessel's crew were rescued by passing ships.

3 LOST ON BRITISH STEAMER.

Armed American Ship Drives U-Boat Away from Scene of Sinking.

MONTREAL, June 25.—The British steamship Ortolan, a vessel of 2,148 tons, owned by the General Steam Navigation Company of London, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine on June 14, and three members of her crew lost their lives, according to survivors of the ship who arrived here today. The Ortolan when torpedoed was on her way from Genoa to Liverpool. She was sunk without warning, and not until the crew were in their lifeboats did they sight the U-boat.

An armed American vessel which was about four miles away, came to the scene of the sinking and fired several shots at the submarine.

ARGENTINE STEAMER SUNK.

Legation at Madrid Is Asked to Investigate the Sinking.

BUENOS AIRES, June 25.—The Argentine steamer Toro has been torpedoed off Gibraltar, according to information received by a steamer today. The captain and crew of the steamer are Argentineans. The Toro was bound for Genoa with a cargo of Argentine products. The Foreign Minister has sent a message to the Legation at Madrid to institute an inquiry into the matter.

The steamer Toro was of 1,141 tons gross. She was last reported leaving Buenos Aires early in May bound for Italy.

IRISH ENVOYS BEGIN CONFERENCES HERE

T. P. O'Connor and Richard Hazleton Discuss Home Rule with New England Leaders.

BIG THRONG GREETS THEM

Consolidation of All Irishmen in Cause of the Allies Aim of the Mission.

The series of conferences with prominent Irishmen by which T. P. O'Connor, Nationalist leader in Parliament, and his colleague, Richard Hazleton, hope to be able to carry back to the Irish convention the correct sentiment of America in regard to Home Rule was started last night at the Hotel Knickerbocker upon the arrival from Boston of T. B. Fitzgerald and Michael J. Jordan, respectively Treasurer and Secretary of the United Irish League of America.

Fitzgerald and Jordan, who were empowered to speak for the league in the New England States, joined the Irish envoys at 8 o'clock, and were in conference for nearly three hours. At the end of the meeting Mr. Hazleton declined to tell what the nature of the Bostonians' report had been, saying that it was Mr. O'Connor's desire that nothing be published concerning the progress of the mission for at least three days.

Mr. O'Connor's first day in New York in seven years was divided thus: one hour for luncheon with a friend; the rest of the time in standing with feet planted far apart in his room wringing the hands of the hundreds of friends who called to wish him well. Incidentally, one of the callers insisted that the desk clerk send his card up to the "President of Ireland," rather than to plain Mr. O'Connor.

"The Germans seem to be very anxious for peace," he said, replying to a question as to when the war would end," but the terms they offer just now, just as the terms they offered before, are not suitable to the allied powers. They have taken a stand similar to the one taken by the burglar, who, when brought before a Judge admitted his guilt, but wanted to keep the jewelry. The Central Powers want a "scot-free" peace, a peace they know cannot and will not be granted to them."

Mr. O'Connor said that he would try to consolidate all Irishmen in support of the Allies. He divided the sentiment in Ireland into three classes: pro-Irish, pro-English, and the so-called pro-German, the last being, in Mr. O'Connor's opinion, a sentiment formed not on love of Germany, but rather on an inveterate pacifism. It is the intention of the commissioners to employ their time over here by paying visits to as many as possible of the principal cities, staying several days in each place and receiving reports from the local leaders.

"I have come here," he said, "to lay before the men of my race and the friends of Ireland of all races the realities and the issues in Ireland. In the United States remains the most potent factor in working out the liberation of Ireland and of all the nationalities in the world."

Today, the conferences will be continued with delegates from Philadelphia and up-State cities in attendance. Toward the latter part of the week, the missioners will go to Washington where Mr. O'Connor will see the President. His call at the White House, however, will not be in any sense an official one, it was explained, Mr. O'Connor going there merely to pay his respects.

CUT COST OF CARE FOR POOR

V. Everit Macy Reports on Work as Westchester Superintendent.

V. Everit Macy, Superintendent of the Poor of Westchester County from Nov. 1, 1915, to Dec. 31, 1916, when the office of Superintendent of the Poor was superseded by that of Commissioner of Charities and Corrections, in a report which has just been issued reviews the work of his office during that period, which has attracted the attention of social welfare workers throughout the United States.

During his fourteen months' incumbency, Mr. Macy supervised the care of 807 persons in the Westchester almshouse, of 1,340 patients in the free hospitals, and of 1,156 children in the Child Welfare Department. He had transferred to State institutions 251 tuberculosis, feeble-minded, epileptic, deaf, dumb, crippled, and otherwise defective persons. At the close of his incumbency there were 40 per cent. fewer almshouse inmates and 75 per cent. more hospital cases than formerly.

In the fourteen months Mr. Macy expended $318,323.84, of which $2,918.28 was collected from various sources, $1,850.82 from the parents and relatives of children in institutions, $666.25 from patients in hospitals and almshouse inmates, in amounts ranging from $0.50 a week to $0.50 a day per individual, and $401.21 from sales. Mr. Macy reduced the per capita cost to the county of almshouse and hospital inmates from $8.14 a week to $3.04. About $10,000 worth of farm produce was raised on the institution farm.

In the Child Welfare Department, supervised by Miss Ruth Taylor, 81½ per cent. of cases reported were settled without the need of committing children to institutions.

TRY SOLDIER FOR MURDER.

Lindsley Rejected His Counsel's Plan for a Compromise.

John O. Lindsley, known to his associates as Yellow Jack, a member of the First Infantry of New Jersey, now in the United States service, was placed on trial in Newark yesterday for murder. On the night of June 7 Lindsley, in full service uniform, entered the saloon of Matteo Monica in the Vailsburg district of Newark. He had been drinking. Monica refused to sell him any liquor. At the closing hour he asked the soldier to leave, but the latter is said to have insisted that he would not go until liquor was served to him. He had to be put out, and as he went through the door he drew his service revolver and shot Monica, who died later in a hospital. Lindsley went to the home of a sister in East Orange, and was arrested there.

When the case was called yesterday Frank M. McDermit, his counsel, asked for a conference with Prosecutor Henry H. Harrison, and then offered on behalf of his client to plead guilty to manslaughter. This offer was formally refused by the State. After another conference with his client Mr. McDermit offered a plea of guilty of murder in the second degree. This was refused, but following another conference an offer to plead non vault to the charge of murder in the first degree was agreed to. This is allowable under the new law, which makes the infliction of the death penalty optional with the jury. When a man pleads non vault it is the same as if the jury found him guilty in the first degree and advised life imprisonment. When all the arrangements had been made for the reception of this plea Lindsley refused to assent. The trial was then moved.

FOUR MORE ON TRIAL FOR BAFF MURDER

TEN JURORS ARE OBTAINED

"Chicken Moe," Who Pleaded Guilty, Will Testify for the Prosecution.

Ten jurors were selected yesterday out of a panel of eighty-nine talesmen to try Joseph and Jacob Cohen, David Jacobs, and Abraham Graff on the charge of instigating the murder of Barnet Baff, the wholesale chicken dealer, who was shot in West Washington Market on the night of Nov. 24, 1914. Baff was the most successful man in his business, and his methods aroused much resentment among his many competitors. The four defendants and Moses Rosenstein, known as "Chicken Moe," who was indicted with them, were rival dealers, and are accused of having hired the Italian gunmen who actually did the shooting. Rosenstein pleaded guilty to manslaughter last week, and is expected to be an important witness for the State.

Other witnesses who are counted on by the prosecution are Antonio Cardinale, who is alleged to be the man who hired the gunmen for the persons who wanted Baff put out of the way; Frank Ferrara, driver of the car in which the killers escaped, convicted in February, 1916, and now in the death house at Sing Sing, and Giuseppe Archiello, also in the death house, who was found guilty of having done the actual shooting.

Two months ago Governor Whitman relieved District Attorney Swann of the work of prosecution and assigned Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker to the case. He will be assisted by Deputy Attorney General James O'Malley, who as Assistant District Attorney conducted the prosecution of the gunmen who did the killing, and by Assistant District Attorney George Brothers, who was assigned to aid the prosecution by Mr. Swann.

Frank Moss, former Assistant District Attorney, is chief counsel for the defense, assisted by Alfred J. Gilchrist and Harry Copp. One of the questions which he asked the talesmen as they were examined was whether they would be influenced to vote for conviction if it should be brought out that "certain persons holding high official positions" were interested in getting a conviction. None of them admitted that this would affect their verdict, and the principal factor in the delay was Mr. O'Malley's inquiry as to possible objections to capital punishment, and as to whether they would accept testimony given by accomplices who turned State's evidence.

The first juror and foreman was chosen after eleven talesmen had been rejected. He was Thomas H. Elliott, an importer of 114 East Sixteenth Street, who lives at 529 West 111th Street. The other jurors selected were William Sherwood, roofer, 170 West Ninety-seventh Street; W. Lewis Musson, clerk, 231 West Twenty-first Street; Richard C. Rassell, secretary, 281 West 119th Street; Samuel B. Thorne, real estate dealer, 3,505 Broadway; Walter H. Grace, cashier, 1,377 Broadway; Henry F. Van Loan, real estate dealer, 2,010 Fifth Avenue; Everitt Jackson, auditor, 18 East Fifty-seventh Street; Edward J. Crotty, clerk, 64 West 104th Street, and Samuel A. Kross, clerk, of 7 West 126th Street.

An additional venire of seventy-five talesmen has been ordered to report at 10 o'clock this morning.

HENRY HIRSHMAN MISSING.

Secretary of Yale Knitting Mills Disappeared Friday, Brother Reports.

Isidor E. Hirshman, Vice President of the Yale Knitting Mills, of 514 Broadway, reported to the police yesterday that his brother, Henry Hirshman, Secretary of the company, had disappeared on Friday. He had been ill for several months.

When he left his home, at 1,462 Fiftieth Street, Brooklyn, on Friday morning, Mr. Hirshman asked his wife to take care of his watch and check book, but she told him he ought to take them with him. After he reached his office he put the watch in a drawer and left, saying he was going to a barber shop. He did not return, and a search of the hospitals has failed to disclose a record of his appearance at any institution.

Mr. Hirshman is described as being five feet seven inches in height, and weighing 145 pounds. He had brown eyes and black hair and mustache, slightly tinged with gray. He wore a blue serge suit, a silk shirt, tan Oxfords, white socks, and a Panama hat.

STUDENTS COMMAND DRILL.

Regular Officers at Madison Act in Advisory Capacity.

Special to The New York Times.

SACKET HARBOR, N. Y., June 25.—The seventh week of the training at Madison Barracks is now well under way with the most favorable weather yet experienced. A warm sun, accompanied by cool breezes from the lake, made today pass pleasantly.

The nine infantry student companies were at their work like regulars early in the day. Very little hiking was done. Most of the morning was occupied by company drill and field work. This form of drill concluded at 12 o'clock. At 1:30 o'clock the infantry candidates were at it again, this time in battalion formation, and marched and countermarched about the parade ground until 5 o'clock, when the battalion parade was held. The Eleventh Coast Artillery Band played while the men passed the reviewing officers in step like West Pointers. Students commanded the companies, the regular army officers ordinarily in command acting merely in advisory capacities.

The field artillery candidates spent the day receiving instructions in the use of the pistols they now carry. They have discarded the heavy army rifles. Their work embraces a knowledge of higher mathematics, and many of the men find that they have to do considerable brushing up. The New York State Field Artillery battalion is expected to arrive at any time with three-inch guns.

Few cases are reported at the post hospital, and the general health of the men is said to be excellent. There are still a few of the candidates who have not rid themselves of colds and slight touches of the grip.

Colonel J. B. Erwin, attached to the General Staff at Governors Island, visited the camp headquarters in the afternoon on business. He will visit each of the camps in this department.

Marion E. Mapes of Montreal, for the last four years a student at Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., received a commission as Second Lieutenant today. He is to continue his training, and will not be called into active service until the camp terminates.

Colonel William R. Sample, the camp commander, at the request of the Watertown Chamber of Commerce visited Pine Plains, near Watertown, yesterday in order to be able to advise departmental heads later on in regard to that site. Rumors have been in circulation that Pine Plains, which was formerly the State camp for the National Guard, might be used now by the Government.

FRENCH OFFICERS AT CAMP.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., June 25.—The first formal inspection at the training camp took place today at retreat, when thirteen officers of the French Aviation Corps walked down the lines of several companies drawn up on the parade ground. The ceremony ended when the Twelfth Coast Artillery band played the "Marseillaise," followed by "The Star-Spangled Banner," as the post flag was hauled slowly down.

The visiting party consisted of the following: Captain Dourif, Lieutenants Gauthier, de Seyssel, Ducas, Marquisan, de Maudat, Prevost, Montariol, Le Maitre, Mayresse, Laffly, and Eliot Cowdin and Frederick Prince of the Lafayette Escadrille. They were accompanied by Major H. C. Stebbins, Officers' Reserve Corps, of the Adjutant General's Department.

The French officers are on a tour of inspection of the various officers' training camps before taking up their duties as instructors at American aviation schools. Although they were at West Point yesterday, they expressed their admiration of the Plattsburg students' marching. They seemed almost incredulous when told that the men had been training only five weeks. The aviators were shown about the camp by French-speaking officers and students, while Cowdin and Prince found many Harvard classmates among the men.

Most of the day was spent on the rifle range, where New England companies were firing at 500 yards. Practically all of the visiting officers shot at the targets. One French aviator, who had never handled the United States Army Springfield rifle, and who confessed that he had not shot with a rifle for years, lay prone and made three successive bullseyes at 500 yards, while students, who had been making threes and fours, looked on with amazement.

The Frenchmen had nothing but praise for the students' mess, where they ate at noon. Returning from the rifle range, they had tea at the camp Hostesses' House, which is crowded with students' families here for the Summer. The aviators left Plattsburg tonight to visit other training camps.

Bozeman Bulger, a former member of The New York Evening World staff and magazine writer, was sworn in today as a Major of the Infantry Officers' Reserve Corps.

Piper Murder Trial Sept. 18.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 25.—Dr. William J. Condon will be brought to trial on Sept. 18 on the charge of killing John V. Piper, Prosecutor Stricker announced today. He will be indicted on Friday of this week, and will remain in the Mercer County Jail until tried. Russel E. Watson, his attorney, has refused to outline the defense, but he has detectives at work. It is alleged that Piper's body was concealed in Dr. Condon's home for four months.

PROHIBITION FIGHT FOR THE SENATE

War Revenue bill but also the Food bill for a long time."

Senator Chamberlain agreed with Senator Simmons that the House anti-liquor amendment had thrown the Senate's work of the last two weeks into chaos.

"I don't know how long it will take to get this liquor legislation out of the way," he said. "It is not a matter so simple as merely shutting off the manufacture of alcoholic beverages and authorizing the President to commandeer the stocks of distilled spirits. The House amendment strikes out a large source of revenue, presenting a problem that the Senate must solve.

"I don't see how we are going to escape prohibition, now that it has been passed by the House and sent along to the Senate. It may be that a compromise can be effected that will placate the anti-liquor element in the Senate. In any event it's going to be a hard fight."

"How do you stand on the proposal for nation-wide prohibition?" he was asked.

"I am from a prohibition State," replied Senator Chamberlain. "That's my answer. But if the inclination of millions of citizens is to be considered, it may be that a compromise will be agreed upon."

One point emphasized by the "drys" as indicating how the Senate may be expected to stand is that twenty-five States are "dry" and that their Senators, with consistency, cannot vote against prohibition. But this reckoning did not stand the acid test when applied to the attitude of Senator Simmons, a prohibitionist from the "dry" State of North Carolina, Gore of prohibition Oklahoma, and others who are opposed to prohibiting beer and light wines.

"I don't know what to think of it," said Senator Smith of Michigan, whose State is to be "dry" next year. "As my State has voted for prohibition I see no alternative but for me to support this House amendment, even though I feel that it is inadvisable at this time. The House has 'passed the buck' to the Senate."

Times Editorial Read.

Senator Brandegee of Connecticut early in the day had THE NEW YORK TIMES editorial of today on "Untimely Zeal for Prohibition" read into the Senate record, without comment. Later the Senator, in an interview, said he was in full sympathy with the suggestion of THE TIMES that the Senate "should keep the provisions of the bill restricting the use of foodstuffs in the manufacture of alcoholic liquors within reasonable bounds."

"The House ran amuck with this liquor matter," said Senator Brandegee. "It passed an amendment without the slightest regard for the attitude of millions of Americans. It jammed through a measure late at night that was ill-considered and most unwise. What is to become of the hundreds of thousands of workmen employed in making beer and wine? What is to become of the heavy investment of the brewers and wine makers? The House made no provision for the employes who would be thrown out of work. It failed to make provision for the Government paying for the properties throw into the discard by this legislation.

"I favor tolerance in liquor legislation, as, I believe, the majority of Congress do. This House measure is unfair and ought to be defeated. What the Senate will do with it I have no idea. The chances are it will pass, but I hope it will be modified so as to allow the manufacture and use of beers and light wines. I hope enough Senators will have the courage of their convictions to vote that way."

Probable Changes.

The sub-committee is expected to finish its work on the bill by Wednesday so that the bill may be substituted that day for the measure now under debate. Material changes which the Administration leaders have agreed to accept and which the sub-committee may adopt, are expected to allay opposition to a large degree. These amendments propose:

Extension of Government control over food, feed, and fuels, as provided in the Lever bill, to many other basic articles, including iron and steel and their products, oil, copper, lead, zinc, aluminium, platinum, farm implements, fertilizers and binding twine.

Elimination of the provision for regulation of consumption so as to insure that the food administration shall not regulate individual rations.

Inclusion of a new section to insure that control of a farmer's production or storage of his own products cannot be attempted.

An addition to the licensing section to make clear that the charges to be fixed shall relate to storage and other middlemen's handling.

Aside from difficulties ahead over prohibition, opponents of the bill promise to continue their fight on the licensing plan, minimum price fixing, the provision for Government purchases of foodstuffs, the section authorizing the President to commandeer factories and other plants and mines. Majority and minority committee reports are looked for.

A half dozen amendments to the bill were introduced today. Senator Lewis, Democrat, of Illinois, offered a substitute bill proposing that the President have general broad authority to issue regulations for control of foodstuffs, specifically enumerating those held for "monopolization," or "unjust prices."

Several measures which have been before the Senate as part of the war legislation also were offered as amendments. Senator Walsh put in his bill permitting the Government to lease coal and oil lands. The bill giving the President power to direct priority in railroad shipments was offered as an amendment by Senator Ransdell. Senator Wadsworth tacked on the Trading with the Enemy bill, and Senator Cummins proposed amendments declaring every product, including foodstuffs, cotton, coal, and steel subject to control and requisition should it become necessary.

Senate Continues Food Debate.

While the Senate waited for the Food bill to come from the House it listened to a debate by Senators Reed of Missouri and Ransdell of Louisiana on the original measure. Senator Reed ended a three-day attack on the bill with bitter criticism of the proposal to put the food administration into the hands of Herbert C. Hoover and of the provision to punish farmers who hold foodstuffs for the market.

"We have all the law we need to punish hoarders," said Mr. Reed. "A food dictator with power to put farmers in jail who may keep food products on hand to keep their families over the Winter is something we don't want. We have law enough to get after the unscrupulous food speculators if the Department of Justice will act. There is nothing in the way of food control that this bill provides that cannot be accomplished under existing law. So why pass something simply to have a food dictator?"

Senator Ransdell prophesied that the war would last three years more, and that the country would find ample need, as it went on, for food control. Coming from a cotton-growing State, he was willing to have cotton put within the scope of the bill if the Government thought it necessary.

GIBBONS CONDEMNS PROHIBITION CLAUSE

Could Not Be Enforced, Cardinal Says—Will Urge Catholics to Conserve Food.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 25.—Herbert C. Hoover, prospective national food administrator, had a long conference with Cardinal Gibbons at the Cardinal's residence last evening on the plans for the solution of the food problem. Cardinal Gibbons said today that as a result of the conference he would issue a letter to be read in all the Catholic churches of this archdiocese next Sunday in which he would ask all Catholics to take an active part in the food saving campaign projected by Mr. Hoover.

The Cardinal was asked to comment on the "bone dry" amendment to the Food Administration bill.

"I do not believe in the national prohibition of light wines and beer," he said, "and am of the opinion that such a law could not be enforced. I am opposed to any State-wide or nation-wide prohibition measure. A law of this kind interferes with the personal liberty and rights of the people and creates hypocrisy on the part of the public.

"If the people of any particular country district find conditions such that to have local option would mean the betterment of the community, they should close the saloons in that district. But when it comes to having prohibition in large cities it is a bad thing. Prohibition in any of the large cities is practically impossible of enforcement, however far-reaching the attempts to carry out the law, notwithstanding reports that the law has been carried out successfully in certain localities. The history of the world down to the present time demonstrates that the people always have indulged in intoxicants—and always will—irrespective of any restraining power that it is attempted to saddle upon them."

WARSAW STUDENTS STRIKE.

German Governor Closes University and Polytichnic Institute.

BERLIN, June 24, (via London, June 25.)—The Vossische Zeitung learns that General Hans H. von Beseler, Governor General of German occupied territory in Russia, has closed Warsaw University and the Polytechnic Institute because of a student strike last May. As the result of a street row several students were arrested for disturbing the peace and resisting the authorities, but subsequently were liberated. The entire student body then proclaimed a sympathy strike on the ground that their dignity and national honor had been offended.

After official notice had been given that both institutions would be permanently closed unless the strike were called off, the students returned to their classes, but refused to pay tuition fees. The episode occurred at a time when the German authorities were negotiating for the transfer of schools to the local administration.

General von Beseler notified the Polish representatives he could not continue negotiations unless the action of the students regarding their refusal to pay tuition money were rescinded. At a mass meeting of students it was decided to decline recognition of the new directors proposed to head the university and the institute. The students also voted to continue to refuse payment of fees. His patience exhausted, General von Beseler closed both institutions.

SUMMONS GUARD ARTILLERY

War Department to Send Militiamen to Officers' Camps.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Governors of various States were notified today by the War Department that the services of batteries of field artillery from the National Guard would be required at the officers' training camps in connection with the training of the field artillery companies that have now been formed among the prospective officers.

The First Regiment, New York Field Artillery, goes to Plattsburg; one battalion of the Second New York Field Artillery to Madison Barracks; regimental headquarters and one battalion of the Second New York Field Artillery to Fort Niagara; one battalion Virginia Field Artillery to Fort Oglethorpe; one battalion Georgia Field Artillery to Fort McPherson; one battalion Ohio and one battalion Indiana Field Artillery to Fort Benjamin Harrison; First Regiment Illinois Field Artillery to Fort Sheridan; one battalion Iowa Field Artillery to Fort Logan H. Roots; one battalion and regimental headquarters Minnesota Field Artillery to Fort Snelling; one battalion Minnesota Field Artillery to Fort Riley, and one battalion California Field Artillery to the Presidio, San Francisco.

CLOSE NEWPORT RESORTS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 25.—Five disorderly houses and two gambling resorts, of which Secretary Daniels complained to Governor Beeckman last week, were closed tonight. The police received orders to see that the women were sent out of the city, which has been done.

Tonight a naval guard is posted outside of each of the resorts thus closed, and the Newport police are also watching them.

ADMITS COAL MEN TALKED PRICE FIXING

Secretary of Operators' Association Says Subject Was Discussed Here in January.

PRICE OF $3 QUOTED LATER

Prosecutor Reads Letters from Operators to Agents Giving Cost of Product to the Trade.

Something of what occurred at the meeting of the smokeless coal operators in the Waldorf-Astoria on Jan. 3, 1917, when it is charged by the Government that an agreement was made to raise the price of coal, was told yesterday by W. R. J. Zimmerman, Secretary of the Smokeless Coal Operators' Association, who testified at the trial of the 51 individuals and 102 corporations who are charged with a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The trial is before Judge Grubb of the Federal District Court.

Mr. Zimmerman said that the operators present at the meeting discussed the increased cost of producing coal and the high cost of materials and labor. Rovert P. Stephenson, the prosecutor, asked if any of the operators suggested fixing a price for coal, and the witness replied that Robert H. Gross, President of the New River Company and the White Oak Coal Company, thought that a minimum price of $3 net at the mines would be a reasonable price. George H. Caperton, President of the Scotia Coal and Coke Company and the Slab Fork Coal Company suggested a price of $2.50 a ton. Thomas E. Houston of the Houston Coal and Coke Company, the Houston Collieries Company, and the Keystone Coal and Coke Company, the witness said, presided at the meeting.

It developed that coal operators not members of the association participated in the conference.

The witness said that the price of coal during 1916 had been $1.25 and $1.35 a ton. The day following the meeting the witness sent out the price lists which had been agreed upon at the meeting. This list called for a minimum price of $3 at the mine, beginning April 1, 1917, and provision was made for subsequent increases. Copies of the prices agreed upon were handed around to the jurors. They showed these changes:

Run of mine—tidewater	$3.00	$4.75
Lump and egg	1.60	3.75
Slack	1.25	3.00
Run of mine—connecting railways	1.25	3.00
Lake lump and egg	1.70	3.75
Nut	1.45	3.50
Pea	1.25	3.00
Slack—lake	1.15	3.00

The prosecutor read to the jury many letters from coal operators to their agents, quoting the prices agreed upon, which they declared would prevail in the trade.

A letter from the Smokeless Fuel Company of this city to T. E. Houston of the Houston Coal Company, said in brief:

> In accordance with your circular of Feb. 24, which we regret to see has not been replied to. We immediately cabled our people to quote bunker coal at $3.30, trimming additional. In view of the cargo price which is to be put into effect on next year's business, we believe that the bunker feature ought to carry the additional compensation.

That some friction occurred between the operators because some of them were paying larger commissions than those agreed upon appeared late in the day's proceedings. The operators wrote letters to one another about this, and there was also trouble between them in reference to cars. In some of the letters charges of bad faith were made. The trial will be continued today.

FAVORS HIGHER COAL RATES

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today approved an increase of 15 cents a ton in freight rates on bituminous coal from Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Ohio producing fields to points east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio River. These tariffs were exceptions to those filed by the carriers in asking for a flat 15 per cent. increase.

The approval of the tariffs is the result of informal hearings before the commission's Suspension Board June 8 on coal, coke, and iron rates in official classification territory. The rates will become effective July 1.

Railroad men professed to see in the decision a favorable attitude toward granting general relief to the Eastern carriers in their plea for a 15 per cent. increase in all freight rates.

One Business News Item Paid for the PUBLIC LEDGER 20 Years

A business man recently told of reading an item in the Business Section of the Public Ledger which, printed there exclusively, saved him enough money to pay for the Ledger twenty years.

Any business man who reads the Public Ledger Business Section for one year, and THINKS while he reads, may save thousands—or learn ways to increase and improve his business to a like extent.

And this applies to almost EVERY business in the United States. No matter what YOUR business is the Public Ledger prints news of it at least once a week—and like as not that news appears exclusively in the Ledger.

But when it is combined with a great daily newspaper, with exclusive London Times cable service, and a host of special news sources, in addition to all regular news channels, the Public Ledger Business Section is a unique and unusually comprehensive source of business information.

Business men and their families find constantly increasing reason for buying—and relying upon—the Public Ledger.

PASTORS VOLUNTEER TO BOOM RECRUITING

START REGULAR ARMY WEEK

At a meeting at the City Hall at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the preachers of New York were formed into an auxiliary organization to second the efforts of the recruiting battalion of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense to signalize "Regular Army Week" by filling New York's quota of men for the army before Saturday night. About fifty clergymen of all denominations attended, and, after listening to addresses by Mayor Mitchel and by Alexander J. Hemphill, Chairman of the Recruiting Committee of the Mayor's Committee, organized on the spot as an auxiliary corps in the recruiting campaign.

This corps will get into action tonight, when six prominent clergymen will tour the city in as many automobiles, each with a bugler, holding impromptu meetings on any street corner where a crowd can be gathered. Each preacher will be followed by another automobile to bring to headquarters the recruits he may win for the service. Bishop L. B. Wilson of the Methodist Episcopal Church has volunteered to lead the clergymen's recruiting battalion tonight, and other speakers will be the Rev. Dr. Oliver P. Barnhill of the Marble Collegiate Church, the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, the Rev. Edgar C. Tullar of the Sixth Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn; the Rev. John Deans of the Borough Park Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, and the Rev. Dr. Allan MacRossie of St. Andrew's Methodist Episcopal Church.

The clergymen plan to continue their canvass every night this week, with at least six volunteer speakers a night. In addition to this, plans are being made for open-air meetings for men, on the steps of various churches at noon, and a plan is being discussed to employ Billy Sunday's tabernacle for a monster recruiting meeting, in which all the churches will co-operate. The Rev. Robert F. Y. Pierce, the "Bishop of Wall Street," promised to give a series of talks on recruiting at his noonday services on the steps of the Stock Exchange building.

Yesterday, the first real recruiting day of "Regular Army Week," brought results enough better than those of previous Mondays to encourage Colonel R. D. Walsh, in charge of army recruiting. Two hundred and twenty men enlisted in the metropolitan district. This is a decided gain, but a daily quota of 412 is needed to supply the men by Saturday night.

Adjt. Gen. McCain, U. S. A., sent a telegram yesterday to Colonel Walsh, to be used in his campaign of the week, as a slogan. It reads:

Enlist now! Your President calls you! The army wants you! The country needs you! Come on, you loyal Americans, and let's help free the world, that our children may live in peace.

Sergeant John Hafner, the "live wire" of the regular army recruiting forces in New York, cruised yesterday from the Battery to Mulberry Street with a squadron of two motor buses, supplied by the Mayor's Committee. One bus carried a band and the Sergeant; the other was for recruits. It had over twenty passengers when it returned to headquarters at 280 Broadway, and this result was considered so promising that today there will be four buses and two bands, making one squadron for the west side and one for the east side. Hafner went down to Coney Island on Sunday, and in a few hours obtained pledges to enlist from twenty-six men.

The Mayor's Committee yesterday opened a new recruiting station in Borough Hall, Staten Island. The committee also sponsored a number of open-air meetings, notably at Broad and Wall Streets, where Colonel Walsh himself presided, and another in Union Square, alongside the navy's recruiting station, the "U. S. S. Recruit." Still another was held by the "Mid-day Minute Men" at 57 Chambers Street. At this meeting eleven volunteers were obtained.

The Marine Corps also enjoyed a successful day yesterday, enlisting twenty-seven men. From June 1 to 22 the Eastern Recruiting Division of the Marines has enlisted 1,313 men, 250 of them in New York. The corps now lacks only 2,400 men of its full strength, and Major Evans, recruiting officer in New York, advises those who wish to join to lose no time, or they may be too late.

A draft of 110 newly enlisted apprentice seamen, all New York boys who have just joined the navy, will be sent to the Newport Training Station tomorrow, and Lieut. Commander Taylor, in charge of naval recruiting in this city, has planned to give them a send-off. There will be a farewell dinner by the Women's Auxiliary for Naval Recruiting, and the men will then be marched down Broadway in a parade, headed by a band, to the "U. S. S. Recruit," in Union Square, where they will be addressed by the Rev. Christian F. Reisner and by Dudley Field Malone, Collector of the Port.

Divisional headquarters of the New York National Guard yesterday received notification of the substitution of the Second Field Artillery, New York, for the Third, which had previously been ordered into service for training duty at Fort Niagara and Madison Barracks. It is understood the reason for this change is the fact that the Third is not yet at full war strength. Company A, Twenty-second Engineers, of New York, ordered into service at the same time as the Third Field Artillery, was mustered in yesterday and entrained for "somewhere in the State." The company is to be employed, it is understood, in preparing one of the National Guard mobilization camps for service when the entire guard is called.

A special office has been opened to recruit men for the fleet of patrol vessels, which is being fitted out by the International Mercantile Marine Company as auxiliary to the United States Navy, by Commander F. N. Freeman, U. S. N., in the offices of the International Mercantile Marine Company at 9 Broadway. Commander Freeman hopes to enlist men who have served in the line of the navy.

DOCTORS FOR MEDICAL DRAFT.

Physicians Who Have Volunteered Approve Reserve Corps Plan.

Approval of a proposed selective draft of physicians and surgeons for the Medical Reserve Corps, as urged by Majors Karl Connell and Richard Derby and Captain Frederick Van Buren of the New York Committee of National Defense, Medical Section, in a report to the Council of National Defense at Washington, was expressed yesterday by a number of physicians here who have not volunteered their services. A member of the New York Academy of Medicine said:

"We must protect the boys sent to the front. We've got to care for them in the best possible manner, and if that cannot be done by volunteers from the medical profession, then let us have the draft, by all means."

Several other physicians pronounced as impracticable the arrangements made by the various medical societies for their care of the practice of physicians serving with the armed forces. It is not the fault of the medical societies, which had devised the plan of having 50 per cent. of the profits of a physician's practice turned over to his family, but is a matter of the personal equation. Patients do not always accept the services of the physicians left in charge of the practice of their absent colleagues, it was said.

It was said yesterday that volunteer medical recruiting had largely increased at the headquarters in the Academy of Medicine.

WOMEN PREPARE FOR WAR.

Sixty-eight Begin Course at Mrs. Dike's Efficiency School.

Sixty-eight young women registered at the efficiency school conducted by Mrs. F. H. Dike, under the auspices of the Women's Section of the Navy League, on the second floor of the Candler Building, last evening, where they will learn telegraphy and be put into places at the close of a six-months' course. The $5 fee which each girl pays entitles her also to instruction in first aid on Monday and Thursday evenings, before the regular work of the evening begins, and military drill by a regular army officer at the close of the work on Monday and Wednesday evenings.

The girls were surprised last night to find that they were obliged to take a little examination in general efficiency before their class work began. Asa G. Candler, Mayor of Atlanta, Ga., has given the use of the entire floor for the school, and Professor F. H. Dike, Mrs. Dike's husband, who was formerly professor of French in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will give free instruction in French to men going to the front every Monday and Wednesday evening.

WIN PRIZES FOR POSTERS.

Henry A. Wise Wood, Chairman of the Conference Committee on National Preparedness, announced yesterday the winners of the prizes offered for the best recruiting posters for the army and navy. More than 250 designs had been sent in by artists, and officials in the Army and Navy Departments were asked to aid in making the final choice of winners.

ARMY BEGINS DRIVE FOR 70,000 RECRUITS

ONLY 915 JOINED IN 2 DAYS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The regular army today began its big drive for the 70,000 men needed to bring its forces up to the full war strength of 293,000 men. President Wilson, by Executive proclamation, has set this week aside as regular army recruiting week, and every effort will be made to stimulate recruiting, in which there was a discouraging slump last week.

Patriotic and civic societies, newspapers, and other semi-public agencies everywhere are making a gratifying response to the Government's appeal for support in the recruiting campaign, and the War Department officials believe the next few days will see a boom for the regulars unparalled in the nation's history.

Reports from all over the country indicate that the daily newspapers, as requested by Secretary Baker, are taking hold of the work vigorously and are bringing home forcibly to eligibles the necessity of quick expansion of the regular establishment. Many of them are pointing out that enlistment with the regulars not only would give men eligible for the draft an earlier opportunity for service abroad, but would insure that they go to the front under experienced officers of the line and with equipment selected before the great demands of the army have to be met.

Officials are emphasizing the fact that the plan of enlistments for the war only offers an opportunity also for a man over 31 and less than 40 to do his share along with the younger men subject to draft. President Wilson's proclamation setting aside the recruiting week, it is pointed out, virtually amounts to a call for volunteers among men of this class.

The recruiting figures for today, which are expected to show the first results of the publicity campaign, will not be available until tomorrow. During Saturday and Sunday only 915 men were obtained. This brought the total number of recruits since April 1 up to 124,949 out of a total of 183,898 needed on that date to raise the army to full war strength. The following bulletin was telegraphed today by the Adjutant General of the army to all army recruiting officers in the United States with instructions to give it the greatest practicable publicity:

Enlist now. Your President calls you. The army wants you; the country needs you. Come on you loyal Americans and let's help free the world that our children may live in peace.

Sell Unclaimed Goods for $7,241.

An auction of unclaimed and abandoned imported merchandise held at the Appraiser's Annex, 612 Washington Street, yesterday by Special Deputy Collector J. H. Storey, representing Collector of the Port Dudley Field Malone, brought the Government $7,241.50. The offerings comprised dry and "wet" goods, jewelry, millinery articles, and a big assortment of miscellaneous articles. Altogether 601 lots of goods were sold, while 125 lots returned by the Appraiser of the port as of "no commercial value" were given away to those willing

WANTS ALIENS DRAFTED INTO CONSCRIPT ARMY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—A resolution to amend the army draft law by authorizing the President to exempt from service abroad persons of Austrian and German descent who request to be relieved of such service, was introduced today by Representative Britten of Illinois. Mr. Britten does not propose that such persons shall be exempt from military duty, but provides that they shall be assigned to duty in American soil or American waters.

Mr. Britten said he had interviewed high army officers on this point, and "in every instance have been told that the character of such a soldier would be of little value to his comrades, and, on the contrary, might prove of incalculable injury in a close fight. Let these men be conscripted into a branch of the service that will not compel them to send lead into a trench which may contain their nearest of kin, and where their loyalty will not be questioned."

Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston protested today to Provost General Crowder that under present plans for drafting the new national army aliens and foreigners who have declared their intention to become citizens will be exempted, and that this will force an additional burden on the States to maintain their quota proportion of conscripted men. General Crowder told him legislation would be necessary to reach such men, or the Allies must approve a plan to permit the United States to conscript them.

Mr. Fitzgerald later talked with President Wilson and with Secretary Lansing and received assurances that the question would be taken up tomorrow by the Cabinet. It was understood tonight that Attorney General Gregory will be asked for a opninion on the power of the United States, without legislation or diplomatic arrangements, to draft aliens or those who have expressed intention to become citizens.

Official war registration returns with Niagara County, N. Y., and three Wyoming precincts missing, made public today, show a total enrollment of 9,569,382, or approximately 96 per cent. of the Census Bureau's estimate. The apparent shortage is more than offset by the number of men in the army and navy who were not required to register.

There was nothing in the returns, said Census Bureau officials, to indicate that there had been any general attempt at evasion of registration by any important element in the population.

Military Equipment For the Fourth

Probably the most conspicuous 4th of July since 1776 will be that of 1917.

As if fate had willed it so, the nation is again at war, and for the same principles that caused the same people to take up arms 141 years ago.

The 4th will doubtless be a record day for enlistments. Americans need but the spirit of the day to fire their patriotism.

ATHENA UNDERWEAR

FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN

Women find that it is made to fit them exactly without being stretched into shape and with no unnecessary and annoying folds of fabric at any point. The shoulder straps stay in place, there is just the right fullness over the bust and at the hips, and the perfect fit at the waist prevents wrinkling under the corset. The patented seat and non-strain gusset provide ease and comfort to be found in no other undergarment.

All ATHENA garments are made full over the bust and narrow across the back.

CORD TIRES

BEHOLD the cord that has made cord tires mean durability, easy-riding comfort, mileage, and gasoline saving economy to knowing automobile owners. Behold CABLE CORD, the unique cord made especially for the patent-protected two-ply Silvertown Cord Tires, and found ONLY in them.

Note the SIZE of CABLE CORD, its SUPPLE STRENGTH, and the TWO layers of it CROSS WRAPPED into a sinewy tire body.

Wrought of many threads the size of the "cords" of WEB TIRES, strong enough to swing the weight of a man, CABLE CORD gives Silvertowns a flexible strength which, yielding to the blows of a rough road, comes back without jolt or jar.

Fused with rubber as a cobbler's waxed end is waxed—a perfect weld of cord and rubber 40 PER CENT. RUBBER—CABLE CORD keeps Silvertown Tires immune to tire fever (internal friction), the destroyer of many ply tires.

What If Your Bookkeeper Should Go?

Ask Clarence N. Brown, of Nath'l Fisher & Co., Manufacturing Shoe Wholesalers, 144-146 Duane Street, that question and he'll answer, "Nothing easier!—We'll put one of the office stenographers at the ledger posting."

Burroughs Direct-to-Ledger Posting has prepared him for this or any such emergency—for the Burroughs Machine is so simple in operation that anyone who can read can operate it successfully.

Burroughs Direct-to-Ledger Posting brought perfect accuracy into Nath'l Fisher & Co's bookkeeping department—automatic adding and subtracting, a daily proof of posting, and trial balances that balance at the first addition.

It brought uniform neatness, speedy and up-to-the-minute work, daily balance of all accounts.

Yet even more than any of these advantages the simplicity of Burroughs Direct-to-Ledger Posting appeals to the firm, for it makes everyone in the office a bookkeeper.

With Burroughs Ledger Posting Machines card or loose leaf ledgers can be used.

Nath'l Fisher & Co. is one of the hundreds of Burroughs Direct-to-Ledger Posting boosters in and around New York. We can give you some very interesting information about any of these installations. A 'phone call will bring a Burroughs man to your office at any time

TAMMANY IS SILENT ON M'CABE ATTACK

MITCHEL WANTS VACATION

The attack of Patrick E. McCabe, leader of the Albany County Democracy, upon Tammany Hall, in which he called for the retirement of Charles F. Murphy as leader of the local organization before the municipal campaign goes any further, brought forth no comment from Democratic leaders here yesterday. Mr. Murphy refused to speak, but around Tammany Hall it was pointed out that McCabe and Murphy have been at odds for some time and that the former is anxious to build an up-State organization that would be independent of Tammany.

The Tammany leaders will meet in a few days to discuss a candidate for Mayor. It is recognized by the leaders that there is a shortage of Mayoralty timber in the organization, and it was said yesterday that there is a possibility of nominating Bainbridge Colby. Mr. Colby is a Progressive-Democrat, having supported and worked for the election of President Wilson last year.

Frank L. Dowling, President of the Board of Aldermen, who will be Tammany's candidate for that position this year, took up the cudgels yesterday in behalf of Tammany, answering the statement of William Hamlin Childs, Chairman of the Fusion Executive Committee, who declared that four more years of Fusion government were required to "guarantee the completion of the administration's present plans" for city betterment.

"What present plans does Mr. Childs refer to?" asked Mr. Dowling. "Does he mean the west side improvement project? The marginal railroad in Brooklyn? Or, the erection of a beautiful civic centre in Manhattan on the $13,000,000 Court House site that is now costing $2,000 a day interest? Does Mr. Childs mean that some more municipal buildings in Brooklyn will be torn down so that the city can have the opportunity to pay more rentals to private owners for housing city offices? Or perhaps the unfinished business is to bring up the tax rate to $2.50 per $100 of valuation.

"In 1909, under McClellan, the tax rate was $1.68 for Manhattan and the Bronx, $1.74 for Brooklyn, and $1.73 for Richmond. In 1917, under Mitchel, the tax rate is $2.02 for Manhattan, $2.08 for the Bronx, $2.07 for Brooklyn, $2.08 for Queens, and $2.12 for Richmond. The city budget under McClellan was $156,545,148. In 1917, under Mitchel, it is $211,114,126. Maybe Mr. Childs means they want to improve on that budget increase."

When Mayor Mitchel was informed of Mr. Dowling's remarks, all he would say was: "Huh. Has a political tinge to it, hasn't it?" The Mayor refused to discuss the political situation, but said he was thinking of his vacation, although he did not expect to start until July 7.

"Where are you going?" he was asked.

"I don't know any more than you do," was the reply. "When I go I'm going to get in a car and go."

"Somewhere in the country?"

"You have it," was his response. "Somewhere in America."

The Mayor had two political callers yesterday, Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the New York Republican County Committee, and John J. Knewitz, Chairman of the Bronx County Committee. Neither would discuss their conference, but it was learned that both feel confident that the Mayor will announce his candidacy for renomination on the Fusion ticket within a short time. The Fusion committee does not fear, it was said, that a police scandal will develop out of the Cruger case of sufficient proportions to affect the municipal campaign.

The element in the Republican organization in Brooklyn opposed to the renomination of Mayor Mitchel gained a recruit yesterday in Michael J. Dady, who declared that Mayor Mitchel could not carry the city, and that Brooklyn will respond more enthusiastically to Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey. The Cropsey contingent is being led by Republican County Chairman Jacob L. Livingston of Brooklyn, but United States Senator William M. Calder and others are opposed to the plan.

HAIL MARCUS M. MARKS AS MAYOR FOR FUSION

Borough President Tells Hearers He Will Serve in Whatever Capacity the City Needs Him.

In a speech in which he expressed his willingness to serve in whatever capacity is deemed to be to the best interests of the city, Borough President Marcus M. Marks last night spoke before the Committee on Nominations of the Federation of Independent Voters. Mr. Marks, who had been introduced as a strong possibility for the Fusion nomination for Mayor, attacked what he termed the precipitate actions of the Board of Estimate in the New York Central matter, the garbage plant on Staten Island, and the building of the Court House.

Speaking of his differences with the Board of Estimate, he said that for the twenty years prior to his advent in public life he had been a conciliator, but that his experiences with three members of the board have made him a fighter. He summarized his efforts as Borough President, and said the penalty one must pay for independence was shown in the fact that in a certain year appropriations for his office for the repavement of streets were considerably reduced.

ENDS WESTERN UNION BAN.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—Through negotiations that have been virtually completed, the Western Union Company will again erect telegraph lines along the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad from Pittsburgh to New York, beginning July 1. Since 1902 the Postal has been the only telegraph company that has had the privilege of sending commercial messages along the lines of the Pennsylvania.

As a result of the fight between the Gould interests and the Pennsylvania, every pole of the Western Union was cut down along the Pennsylvania lines from New York to Pittsburgh May 21, 1902, by order of the late A. J. Cassatt, then President of the railroad company. Later the Western Union removed its wires and poles on subsidiary lines of the Pennsylvania. At that time it was estimated that the telegraph company lost 15,000 miles of wire, 90,000 poles and other equipment valued at $750,000. The annual revenue lost was estimated at $350,000.

The cost of constructing the new lines to carry on the Western Union business is estimated at $2,000,000. This is explained by the high cost of materials and labor compared with the cost in 1902.

Woman Has Guard for Her Jewels.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 25.—A guard of detectives was provided for Mrs. Alice Gerry Griswold when she came to the Hotel Dennis last night, bringing jewels of great value received through the Baltimore Custom House from the executors of the estate of a sister, who died abroad. It is said the duties on the gems amounted to [illegible]. Among the jewels is a tiara said to have been at one time the property of Queen Victoria of England.

CONVICT POLICE OF ELECTION FRAUDS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 25.—Samuel V. Perrott, Chief of the Indianapolis Police, and five others were found guilty of a conspiracy to commit election frauds in connection with the 1914 registration and election by the verdict of a jury returned tonight in the United States District Court here.

The others convicted were Roy A. Pope, Police Captain; Wayland Sanders and Morton C. Hulse, Police Sergeants; Lee Stringer, City Detective, and Herman F. Adam, City Inspector of Weights and Measures. A seventh defendant, Frank M. Johnson, a patrolman, was acquitted.

Seven others indicted pleaded guilty some time ago.

The jury's verdict was reached after three hours of deliberation. The indictment charged violation of Section 19 of the Federal Penal Code, which provides imprisonment and fine for participants in a conspiracy to injure persons in the exercise of civil rights. One count of the indictment alleged the prevention of men from voting and the other charged an injury to candidates for Federal office in that a fair election was prevented by the conspiracy.

The case grew out of a civil suit for damages for the alleged prevention of a negro from voting, in which the 1914 political conditions in one city precinct were exposed.

CHEAP COAL FOR RAILROAD.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—What practically amounts to a proposal that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company shall buy 6,000,000 tons of soft coal at $2.85 per gross ton at the mines is about to be laid before operators of mines in Pennsylvania territory as the result of a conference held today. About seventy-five producers and shippers over the Pennsylvania system met in the Bellevue-Stratford for the purpose of taking concerted action against the method of placing cars at the mines. According to the statements of these operators, it has been the custom of the Pennsylvania to place cars during the last three days of each week for its own coal supply only.

It was said that the operators, in the interest of getting a car supply for the first three days of the week, have been loading for the railroad at prices set by the railroad officials. These prices, it was said today, were often much below the market rate.

The railroad, which last year consumed about 11,000,000 tons and will require this year about 13,000,000, has contracted for a little less than 7,000,000 tons for delivery during the coal year beginning April 1. Failure to contract for more tonnage before April 1 was due to the fact that the railroad declined to pay the coal men's prices.

NO JOINT ACTION ON OIL.

Only Friendly Negotiations About American Interests in Mexico.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Secretary Lansing denied today that the United States, Great Britain and France were taking joint action with respect to the oil fields of Mexico. He said the United States had never taken joint action concerning Mexico, nor even discussed it with any other power.

Mr. Lansing added that friendly negotiations with the Mexican Government on the question of American oil interests had been in progress for six months. The correspondence related to what are considered by the State Department to be heavy assessments and taxation imposed upon those interests.

It was also authoritatively stated that the landing of American troops or marines in Mexico for the protection of oil fields had not been discussed.

KING "8"

Don't Hold Off—Buy Your Car Now!

If you are delaying your purchase "to see what's going to happen," you are depriving yourself of a car at the best time to buy and confessing a lack of confidence in the greatness and stability of the United States.

Consider the reasons why you should buy NOW

Cost

Not for years, if ever, will motor cars be lower in price than they are today. Every material entering into their construction is advancing in price so rapidly that only frequent price increases on the part of automobile manufacturers save them from loss. There is absolutely no prospect of materials being cheaper either during the war or in the after period of reconstruction.

Buy Now or Go Without

There is a probable shortage of cars in prospect both because of a lack of material due to the Government's vast purchases and because the Federal authorities may find it necessary to utilize the equipment of many automobile plants for the manufacture of war supplies.

Health Should Be Your First Economy

To refrain from purchasing a car which will take you and your family into the country for fresh air and relaxation is the falsest kind of economy.

Will the War Affect Business?

Yes! The biggest business men in the country have declared that we are entering an era of unprecedented prosperity. The Government has already begun the expenditure of SEVEN BILLION DOLLARS for construction and supplies of all kinds. Labor has never before been so highly paid. Food Conservation Boards promise to keep the cost of living at a reasonable figure. You can choose no safer or saner time to enjoy a car.

Do You Fear Excessive Taxes?

If you have followed the United States Senate's revision of the "War Tax" bill you must already realize that nothing really excessive in the way of taxes will fall upon the average individual.

Government Will Not Commandeer Your Car

This absolute assurance has been received from Washington. A car purchased now will remain in your hands for your enjoyment and convenience.

Six Reasons Why Your Choice Should Be a KING

(1.) RELIABILITY—Adopted by the United States Government for armored cars. Now giving efficient service all over America and in fifty-two foreign countries. Guaranteed STOCK car ran 10,850 miles without stopping the motor at Sheepshead Bay under OFFICIAL American Automobile Association supervision. Same car has since made sixteen other notable "sealed-in-high-gear" and "non-motor-stop" tests from coast to coast and now has over 33,000 miles to its credit.

(2.) PERFORMANCE—The many advantages of the eight-cylinder type of motor are now too well known to require lengthy exposition. The Eight has four power impulses per revolution; the Six, three; and the Four, two. This continuous flow of overlapping power pulsations results in a flexibility which practically does away with gear-shifting and assures quick "get-away," hills on "high," and top speed from a standing start without touching the gear lever.

(3.) ECONOMY—We thoroughly believe we can demonstrate to every prospective purchaser that the King is the most economical car for its power and size now being offered. Its fuel consumption is amazingly low, considering its remarkable performance on hills, heavy roads and in congested city traffic. Its light weight and liquid flow of power make it easy on tires.

(4.) COMFORT—The King was the first car in America with Cantilever Springs. This suspension keeps the car clinging to the road even at great speed. The cushions are scientifically tilted to fit the body and insure maximum comfort. Lack of vibration, the result of "flowing" power, adds still further to the car's comfort. The short, compact V-type motor gives long body room with the "short-turning" advantages of a 120-inch wheel base.

(5.) BEAUTY—The four King bodies are remarkable for long, graceful lines and elegance of finish. The "Foursome" model particularly is distinguished for its style and dash, and its "destroyer" lines are now being followed by many other companies. For those who desire the Sport type of car with long, low, rakish lines, yet designed in perfect taste, this King fears no competition. Narrow and "racy," it seats four in comfort, has lengthy leg-room, is equipped with four doors and has two front "bucket" seats.

(6.) PRICE—After a thorough demonstration of the KING we believe you will ask yourself two questions—"Could I possibly get more by paying more?" and "Can I afford to pay less?" We honestly do not know of a single car in the King's price class which can better our car in any phase of road performance. Exactly how long the King will remain at its present price we do not know—but another general advance is now on the way. DON'T HOLD OFF! Try out the King at once. Try out the other cars you have in mind. We expect to sell you a King if you will give us a chance to "show you." But if you don't buy a King—buy some other car. And, as a matter of good business, BUY NOW!

Baker's Home Run Bat Raises Havoc in Last Encounter—Schang Potent at Third.

The Yankees again took all the victories in sight at the Polo Grounds yesterday, winning two more games from the downtrodden Athletics. The first tilt was a thrilling little pichers' battle between George Mogridge and Bill Seibold, one of Connie Mack's kindergarten class, in which the Yank flinger did some pitching de luxe, while the Donovan lads behind him got one lonesome run, which looked as big as the Bunker Hill Monument by the time the game was over. After this 1 to 0 victory the Yanks took the second game, 7 to 5, the Athletics failing to show any signs of consciousness until late in the game.

About 8,000 fans came out to see if the Athletics are really as bad as they have been painted, and most of them were satisfied that they are. Manager Mack announced two or three seasons ago that he had made his club all over again and would soon have another great team. Not with the aid of a Lick telescope is this great team in sight yet. Mack tried Wallie Schang, the catcher, at third base yesterday, and Schang proved as great a wonder as he is behind the bat. Li Hung flipped the ball over to McInnis several times so fast that it almost carried Stuffy off his pins.

Mogridge Wins Pitchers' Duel.

The first game was as neatly played as a ball game can be, and not a single error marred the pastime. Not even Ping Bodie in left field made an error. Mogridge gave the Athletics only two hits, a scratch infield tap by McInnis and a clean single to left by Strunk. Only in the seventh inning did the Mackmen get a runner as far as third base, and so few of them got to second that it was an event in their lives. Young Seibold did some pretty nice pegging himself, and fanned eight of the Donovan clubbers, including such wielders as Baker, who whiffed twice; Pipp, and Terrible Tim Hendryx.

It was the reliable Pipp and the just as reliable Peckinpaugh, however, that made up the merry combination which broke through the White Elephant's curves in the seventh inning. Seibold was sending them up to the plate so fast that the ball looked about as big as the head of a pin, when Pipp wallopped one of them and sent it on a ride to right for two bases. Miller tried to bunt, but instead he popped to McInnis. After Baker had fanned, Peckinpaugh jammed a ripping double to left and sent Pipp home with the joyous run.

Baker more than made up for his shortcomings of the first game by whaling the ball in the second encounter. His triple sent a couple of runs over in the first inning and he drove in another runner ahead of him in the fifth, when he plastered a home run off the right-field stand.

Rube Schauer, who will be remembered as having been a member of the Giants at one time, made his first New York appearance as an Athletic pitcher. Rube is still the same old Rube, and can lose a game just as easily in one of Mack's baseball suits as he could in one of McGraw's.

Rube holds the distinction of having the wildest wild pitch known to major league baseball. It has been known to settle as high up as the second tier of the grand stand, and he can throw as high over first base as any one in the game. He had no wild pitches on tap yesterday, which right away marked it as a big occasion in Rube's career.

Schang Shocks Schocker

Urban Shocker did the flinging for the Yanks until he showed signs of weakness in the eighth. Said weakness was plainly evident when Wallie Schange hoisted a home run up among the $2 box seats in the grand stand. The Athletics threatened Russell in the ninth, but he pulled out safely.

Schauer showed that he was perfectly normal in the first, when Hendryx walked. Terrible Tim went to third on High's single, and after Maisel went out at first, Pipp walked and filled the bases. As Miller was forcing High at third Hendryx scored. Then Baker's three-base smash to right sent Pipp and Miller home.

In the third, hits by Grover and Schauer, aided by a base on balls, filled the sacks for the Mackmen, and a run in the person of Grover.

Maisel was safe in the last of the third on Witt's error, and went to third on High's single. [illegible] Pipp's mighty sacrifice fly to deep right centre [illegible] scored Maisel. When Miller [illegible] a home run. The Yanks got [illegible] in the eighth on a [illegible] squeeze play, Shocker [illegible] Peckinpaugh did the squeezing and [illegible].

A walk, a hit by Schang and McInnis gave the Mackmen another in the sixth, and Gooch's double, followed by two outs, added another in the seventh. Strunk singled in the eighth, and Schang's home run landed the pair over the plate.

M'GRAW BACK, BUT PHILS BEAT GIANTS

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—John McGraw and his Giants met an immovable object today when they encountered the Phillies, led by Eppa Rixey, the tall Virginian. Rixey held the Giants to two hits, one of which was of the scratch variety, and did not allow a man to reach second. From this it may be gathered that the Giants did not have a chance to win the ball game. The score was Philadelphia 2, Giants 0.

When New York lost the ball game they also lost the lead, the Phillies going into first place, a position they enjoy by virtue of the fact that they have won one more game than the Giants. McGraw made his first appearance on the field of play in sixteen days, his suspension having expired this morning. As an inspiration, McGraw was something of a failure, and, after remaining on the coaching lines during the first inning, disappeared and was seen no more.

Rixey was unbeatable. He had everything that a pitcher needs and then some. Only three times did Giant spikes dent first base, and they never got any further. In the second, Zimmerman started with a walk, but was forced by Fletcher, and then Robertson hit into a double play. In the fifth, Robertson got the first hit, after two were out, a slow roller to Niehoff, but he languished, as Niehoff dashed into right field and took Holke's fly.

The second hit came in the ninth inning, and it was accomplished by Rariden, the first man up. Lobert handled Anderson's stick and sent a hard drive to right centre, which looked good for two bases until "Wooden Shoes" Cravath put on a surprising dash of speed and got his hands on it. Rixey then showed how good he was by fanning Burns and Herzog. Kauff ended the game with a grounder to Bancroft.

Anderson pitched a fine game, allowing only seven hits, and had he been able to keep them scattered the game might have been deadlocked.

The first Philly tally came in the second inning. Whitted led with a hard drive to left, which Burns got by a wonderful diving one-handed catch. Luderus then doubled to right and crossed the plate on Killifer's single, which all but amputated one of Zim's legs. Rixey followed with a single, but Paskert's out ended the inning.

The Quakers bunched two more hits with a sacrifice in the third, a performance which accounted for their second run. Bancroft opened the drive with a single which bounded away from Herzog. Stock advanced the runner with a sacrifice and Whitted's single admitted him.

Rixey was aided by some remarkable fielding, featuring Cravath, Niehoff, and Stock, the latter's play on Kauff's torrid drive in the seventh being the high light of the game. Stock leaped in the air, knocked the ball down with his gloved hand, and then recovered the sphere in time to throw out the fleet Benny.

MANY WIN BY DEFAULT.

Players Advance by Easy Method in Bronxville Tennis Event.

There were too many defaults yesterday in the metropolitan tennis tournament at Bronxville to lend a spirit of keen competition to the event. Few of the more prominent players clashed. Among those who advanced to the second round by reason of defaults were S. Haword Voshell, the national indoor champion; Dr. William Rosenbaum, and Ralph L. Baggs, while Harold Throckmorton captured a third round bracket due to the same cause.

The best match of the day, from the point of view of keen competition, was that in which Henry Bassford defeated Ingo Hartman with the score 9—7, 4—6, 6—0. Frederick B. Alexander, former internationalist, once again showed that his skill was far from the ebb tide. He triumphed with ease over Allen Tobey by a score of 6—3, 6—1. E. W. Putnam played through two rounds yesterday. In the first he defeated R. C. Rogers at 6—4, 6—4, and in the second, vanquished A. D. Britton at 6—4, 8—6.

The summaries:

First Round—G. Warner won from C. Burrows by default, R. L. Baggs won from F. Anderson, Jr., by default; Dr. William Rosenbaum won from Benjamin Letson by default, G. Cannon won from V. De Zerega by default; E. Drummond defeated F. Lawrence, 6—4, 6—2; H. Suter defeated J. G. Porter, 6—4, 6—4; B. T. Houck defeated W. H. Putnam, 6—3, 6—4; Harold Taylor won from Roy Richey by default, Allan Behr defeated C. Donaldson, 6—4, 6—2; George Throckmorton won from Arthur Cragin by default; Frederick B. Alexander defeated Allen Tobey, 6—3, 6—1; J. G. Cannon, Jr., won from H. Mollenhauer by default.

Second Round.—Harold Throckmorton won from H. S. Fleming by default, Henry Bassford defeated Ingo Hartman, 9—7, 4—6, 6—0; H. Stevens won from G. Cannon by default, H. Suter defeated E. Drummond, 6—2, 6—2; E. W. Putnam defeated A. D. Britton, 6—4, 8—6; Allan Behr defeated Harold Taylor, 6—4, 6—3; Count Salm defeated J. Hardy, 6—2, 6—3; Leonard Beekman won from S. W. Merrihew by default.

ROBINS WREST TWO FROM BRAVES AGAIN

Brooklyn Comes from Behind in Both Games—Umpires Eject Stengel and Smith.

Battling hard throughout the afternoon, the champion Robins yesterday duplicated their performance of Saturday, and took both games of a double-header from the Boston Braves at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, the first by a score of 3 to 2 and the closing session by 4 to 2. Both contests were of the hit-and-miss variety, with a display of erratic playing, alternated with brilliant fielding.

The players of both teams disported themselves in holiday fashion, and, while there were some glittering misplays, the players battled every inch of the way, and frequent skirmishes between them and the umpires, Orth and Rigler, helped to enliven proceedings.

In the sixth inning of the first game Olson, the first man up, singled to left, and Jimmy Johnston, playing in place of Jake Daubert, who had injured his leg in the third inning, forced him on a decidedly close play at second, Rudolph to Rawlings. The play was so close, in fact, that Umpire Orth at first ruled Olson safe, when it appeared that Rawlings had been pulled off the bag, but later, on protest from the Bostonese, reversed his decision.

In the second fray this selfsame Orth got into hot water almost with the beginning of hostilities, and throughout he was the target for tirades from both benches. In the first inning, working behind the plate, he called a questionable decision on Casey Stengel, which started a row, ending with the banishment of the right fielder. On what later proved to be his third strike Stengel, in getting away from the ball, sort of struck at it, and Orth called a ball. This aroused the ire of the Braves, and they yelled long and loud, until finally Orth appealed to the judgment of Rigler, the field mentor, who said that it must have been a strike.

This aroused Stengel, who sent his bat flying in the direction of Rigler at second base, and was requested to depart from the pastime. In the seventh Orth found it necessary to eject Red Smith, the Boston third baseman, from the conflict for remarks from the Boston bench.

In both games the Robins came from behind to win, and this was particularly true of the opening spasm, when, with a splendid ninth-inning rally, the team from across the bridge tallied two runs, which gave Rube Marquard the honors of an interesting pitchers' duel over smiling Dick Rudolph.

The elongated Rube worked in admirable fashion, despite the fact that disheartening errors aided the Boston clan considerably. After Kelly had popped to Cutshaw, starting the first game, Massey singled to left, and moved along on Wilhoit's hit to short. Fitzpatrick fouled to Daubert, and when Wheat muffed Konetchy's fly to left Massey scored from second.

The Robins went along until the fourth inning, getting a hit each frame, before they came on even terms with the opposition, and then a triple to left by Stengel, on which he scored when Wheat was being thrown out, manufactured the first Robin run. In the fifth an error by Hickman threatened to result disastrously, but Marquard got safely through and was master until the ninth frame. Then another Boston run was scored, when Konetchy tripled to centre and scored on a single by Rawlings.

In their half of the eighth the Robins had the bases loaded, but George Cutshaw failed to come through with a wallop. In the ninth, however, things happened. Mike Mowrey started with a triple to centre, and scored on Meyer's single to the same field. Smythe then ran for the Indian, and Marquard came through with a neat sacrifice and Olson was purposely walked. On a fielder's choice Smythe moved up to third, scoring when Massey let Hickman's grounder go through him.

In the second game the Robins triumphed over one of their most-feared rival twirlers when they swamped Lefty George Tyler under a 4 to 2 defeat. Larry Cheney, with his moist ball, came out triumphant over the redoubtable Boston twirler, although in the early stages of the game the veteran Larry looked anything but steady.

The Braves started off with a run in the first, when Olson fumbled Kelly's grounder, which was followed by singles by Massey and Fitzpatrick, Kelly scoring on the latter. In the second inning Olson again erred, this time by handling Smith's grounder badly, and Cheney uncorked a wild pitch which sent Smith home from third.

The Robins got one in the second, when Wheat singled, stole second, and scored on Mowrey's single, and in the fourth lusty wallops by Cutshaw, Mowrey, and Olson, with a sacrifice by Miller, manufactured two more runs. In the seventh a single by Olson and a triple by Hy Myers, who replaced Stengel, gave the Robins their last tally.

LEWIS GETS DECISION.

CHAMPIONS LOSE IN RING.

Jampol and Cassidy Beaten in N. Y. A. C. Amateur Bouts.

Two surprises were furnished last night in the amateur boxing tournament held in the gymnasium of the New York Athletic Club, when two holders of New York State amateur boxing championship titles were beaten. The first of these happenings came in the 120-pound class, when Irving Jampol, Bronxdale A. C., was forced to admit the superiority of Adam Hill, Yoerger's Boxing School, in the first round of their scheduled three-round set-to in the final contest of this division. The State champion was floored cleanly three times before he retired.

In the 135-pound class Frank Cassidy, Ozanam A. A., State title-holder at this weight, went down in defeat at the hands of F. Verona, Brondale A. C., after four slam-bang rounds. At the conclusion of the regulation three rounds the judges were unable to agree upon a winner and an extra two-minute period was ordered by Referee George Schwegler. The judges again failed to agree at the expiration of this session and the referee then awarded the honors to Verona.

Archie Walker, Irish-American A. C., 108-pound metropolitan champion, was the winner of the prize in the 110-pound competition, and William Morris, East Side House, former national 125-pound champion, won the honors of his class. In the 115-pound class the prize went to F. Zellner, Trinity Club.

WILLARD SUED BY CURLEY.

Latter Claims That Champion Repudiated His Contract.

John Curley, fight promoter, got an order yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Ford directing Jess Willard to show cause today why Willard's Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, which Willard recently bought for a price said to be $105,000, should not be restrained from giving exhibitions in this State.

Curley contends that under the three-year contract Willard signed with him in 1914 the defendant is under contract to him, but has repudiated it. Curley is also suing for $20,000 damages. The order was served on Willard and his partner, Tom Jones, by telegraph, at Rochester yesterday.

To Present Pennant to Dodgers.

The championship pennant of the National League, won by the Brooklyn team in 1916, will be raised by the Brooklyn and New York teams on Tuesday, July 3, at Ebbets Field. On behalf of the National League, the flag will be presented to Manager Robinson and the players of the Brooklyn team at the home plate at 3:15. Both teams will be escorted to the centre field flagpole by Shannon's Marine Band and will hoist the pennant. Souvenirs will be presented to the ladies.

WALKER LEADS BOY GOLFERS AT NASSAU

Staten Island Lad Returns Low Score of 79 in Interscholastic Tournament.

A. L. Walker, Jr., of the Richmond County Country Club, headed a representative gathering of schoolboy golfers over the links of the Nassau County Country Club yesterday, when he won the qualifying round of the ninth interscholastic championship with the commendable card of 41, 38—79. While such a mark as this at Nassau is indicative of some fine golf, the result was not entirely satisfying to this proficient Staten Island player. Not long ago in a practice round of the course he made a 75, and this was the record which he hoped to equal yesterday. A bit of unsteadiness on the green, however, robbed him of the opportunity. In making his practice round of 75 Walker went out in 33, while yesterday it took him 41.

The scores of the first sixteen in the championship division showed a wide variance of skill, which was further brought out when the first round of match play was concluded, several of the contenders being forced to bow in defeat by rather one-sided scores. J. W. Sweetser of Exeter was second to Walker, with an 80, and in third place there was Sidney Scott of Hill School, with an 82. The last of those to earn a place in the first division, C. Schmertz of Lawrenceville and D. K. Taylor, also of Lawrenceville, each had 104.

Walker, the medalist, has earned an enviable reputation as a golfer, and at the Richmond County Country Club, where he is a junior member, holds the junior record for the course, 72. Not long ago he clipped a few strokes from the record of the Lake Placid course.

Tome School was well represented in the championship division, and in the point trophy with a score of 371, while Lawrenceville stood at 375 in second place.

MAY RESTORE FOOTBALL.

Coach of Minnesota Eleven Expects Sport to be Resumed.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 25.—The University of Minnesota will take up football again next Fall, in the opinion of Dr. Henry L. Williams, coach of the Gopher Eleven. Abandonment of athletics for the period of the war at Minnesota was voted by the Board of Athletic Control last Spring, but there has been a general change of sentiment at the institution since the stand taken by President Wilson in favor of athletics being continued.

Steps have been taken to have the matter reconsidered, and it is understood the board members are in favor of it.

NEW MARK IN HANDICAP

WHITNEY TRIUMPHS IN RACING CLASSIC

NEW WORLD'S RECORD MADE

Brooklyn Handicap.

Value to winner, $4,850.

Won by Borrow, Harry Payne Whitney's b. g., aged, 117 pounds, by Hamburg-Forget, 7 to 2, 6 to 5, and 3 to 5, (W. Knapp.)

Second—Regret, Harry Payne Whitney's ch. m., 5, 122, 7 to 2, 6 to 5, and 3 to 5, (F. Robinson.)

Third—Old Rosebud, H. C. Applegate's b. g., 6, 120, 8 to 1, 3 to 1, and even, (D. Conelly.)

Distance, one mile and a furlong; time, 1:49 2-5, new world's record. Won in 1916 by Friar Rock.

Harry Payne Whitney was well repaid for many defeats on the turf stoically borne this season when he made racing history by running first and second for the Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct yesterday with the old campaigner, Borrow, and Regret, the queen of the turf. Moreover, the dazzling speed of Regret and the finishing powers of Borrow resulted in the accomplishment of a world's record of 1:49 2-5 for the mile and an eighth, which is the present distance of the Brooklyn Handicap.

It is unfortunate that these figures could not be credited to each of the Whitney candidates, for without the superlative pacemaking of Regret, the easygoing Borrow never would have been within hailing distance of that time. As it was Regret might have been clocked in the same time as the winner for she was only a nose behind her stable mate as he caught the eye of the judge. A length behind the Whitney wonders the rejuvenated Old Rosebud finished, with the lightly weighted Chiclet in fourth place, two lengths in front of Roamer. Behind were the best of the handicap division, those of the West as well as those of the East.

Roamer, which lately redeemed himself by capturing the Excelsior Handicap, was crowded back out of the money mainly through the efforts of the peerless Regret. This sensational daughter of Broomstick, which did not meet defeat until last year, was primed for a supreme effort by Trainer James Rowe. The pace she set was startling and she carried it through the trying journey without regard for the struggling thoroughbreds behind her.

It was the sad fate of Roamer to find his record broken in the same race that Regret developed speed which kept this noted front runner out of his usual place at the head of the procession. As a three-year-old Roamer had electrified the sporting world by carrying 124 pounds and running a mile and a furlong at Laurel in 1:49 3-5. This eclipsed the best time made in England, Australia, and Canada, and stood unchallenged as a world's mark until the Whitney pair demolished it in the sensational race on the Aqueduct track. Naturally the best record for the race fell, Borrow's time supplanting the 1:50 credited to Friar Rock in the handicap of last year.

Cheers Greet Winner.

The cheers that greeted the winner and his gallant stable mate, for all recognized that Regret had played a great part in the victory, were not only spontaneous but heartfelt. Borrow, always a sterling racehorse, has been a courageous performer for years, and his brilliant finishes have added excitement to many a hard-fought race. Yet it has been his portion in all the stellar events to find a horse just good enough to beat him. Now, when nine years old, an age that finds many racehorses in the sere and yellow, the gallant old son of Hamburg and the notable mare Forget, achieves his greatest triumph in leading home the best field of the year, and probably the best that ever went to the post for the Brooklyn Handicap.

True, Borrow had the better of the weights when measured against his old opponent Roamer, which he used to meet on almost even terms. This difference was made more noticeable by the five-pound penalty that Roamer incurred by winning the Excelsior Handicap. Regret, however, claimed little from the cracks of the year. Her 122 pounds placed her on even terms with the Suburban winner, Boots, and Omar Khayyam, the most recent winner of the Kentucky Derby, while the only horse that conceded her weight, according to the scale, was Roamer, and he only gave her a scant pound.

The entries for the Brooklyn were far in advance of those for the other big handicaps of the season in the matter of class and representation of the racing centres of the country. Omar Khayyam, the imported three-year-old that won the Kentucky Derby, was making his first appearance of the East for this season. Old Rosebud, another Kentucky Derby winner, has come back to the races as a six-year-old in form that warranted his repeating his turf triumphs, while the easy victory of Boots in the Suburban Handicap was sufficient guarantee of his quality and, in fact, led him to be installed favorite in the great field.

Ormesdale, winner of the Metropolitan Handicap, and Stromboli, victor in the Kings County, were also in the lineup with many lesser lights of the handicap division. For only one of this collection of stars could excuses be made after the Whitney pair had gathered the laurels of the day. This was Omar Khayyam, the $26,100 beauty recently added to the stable of Wilfred Viau. Omar Khayyam refused to break with the rest and, being left flatfooted, never had a chance to get on even terms with the fleetfooted thoroughbreds in front of him. He finished next to last, but judgment on his ability must be reserved until he has a chance to show his real worth.

Record Crowd for Track.

The remarkable field engaged in the handicap and the element of uncertainty as to the winner were sufficient to attract the largest crowd that ever attended the races at Aqueduct. In the old days when Aqueduct opened the metropolitan circuit it was not necessary to prepare for a great outpouring of sportsmen, and the throng yesterday overtaxed the capacity of the stands. Even the exclusive clubhouse was jammed throughout the afternoon, and when the Brooklyn Handicap contenders were sent on their way there was an overflow into the inner field of those who wished to see the race and could find no vantage point on the stand or lawn.

That old Father Time was in for a bad day of it was made clear in the first race, in which crack sprinters were engaged. These stepped the six and a half furlongs in 1:18, equaling the record made by James R. Keene's Maskette in 1910 and showing the quality of James Butler's High Noon, which carried 135 pounds and was only beaten by a head by the Beverwyck Stable's Ima Frank, which had but 106 pounds up.

There had been hopes of seeing August Belmont's brilliant two-year-old Luculite in the Hudson Stakes, which preceded the big race, but the Chairman of The Jockey Club declined to incur further penalties with his champion and depended on his second string, Drastic. The choice was a happy one, for with the favorite, George W. Loft's Papp, worn out by refractory actions before the start, Drastic was able to come along at the finish and capture the stake by two lengths from Gifford A. Cochran's Bughouse, the leader in the early part of the race.

There was a rush to the paddock to [illegible] saddled.

and many experts observed that none looked in better fettle than old Borrow. The massive frame of Boots also denoted great strength, while Omar Khayyam drew murmurs of approval from many good judges. After the parade Boots was the first to break into a canter on his way to the post, while the others followed in a more leisurely fashion. There was a little delay, caused mostly by the viciousness of Old Koenig. Then the barrier shot up and the light blue silks of Whitney were carried forward by Regret, so that in less than 100 yards Ormesdale, on the inside, had been deprived of the lead.

With bounding strides the pride of the Whitney stable increased her advantage, while the followers of Omar Khayyam grieved as he was seen floundering around at the start. Ormesdale and Chiclet, both carrying light weights, tried vainly to hang on to the flying leader, and then old Roamer shot out of the bunch to race into fourth place as the cavalcade approached the end of the back stretch. The lightning pace set by Regret gave none a chance to dispute her speed and the clockers marveled as she clicked off the five furlongs in a minute and continued to six furlongs in 1:12 3-5.

Regret Is in Lead.

Regret led by two lengths as she turned into the home stretch, and Robinson was content to let her go along at her own sweet will. Roamer had done his best and failed to hold the terrific speed, which was maintained by the leader until she passed the mile post in the remarkable figures of 1:36 2-5. Conelly was urging Old Rosebud then and he joined the group chasing the beautiful chestnut mare.

Regret appeared to hang a little in her stride at the eighth pole, but the Whitney cohorts were cheered then by the sight of Borrow, steaming along through a clear lane on the inside. Willie Knapp shot the old gelding through a small hole and a sixteenth from home the Whitney colors were both first and second.

There was no time for sentimental delay to let Regret carve her way to victory. Both boys rode hard on the Whitney entries, and they crossed the line with Borrow's nose just in front of the great mare, that only relinquished the fruits of victory to her stable mate. Old Rosebud was a length and a half in front of Chiclet, which was two lengths before the tired Roamer. Boots was sixth. Then came Clematis II., Stromboli, Ormesdale, Omar Khayyam, and Old Koenig.

GIFT TO BREEDING BUREAU.

Jockey Club Body Gets Three Fine Thoroughbred Sires.

The Breeding Bureau of The Jockey Club has been presented with three young thoroughbred sires which should do much to improve the quality of the horses in the communities to which they will be sent. Two of the number came from A. K. Macomber, who donated the French-bred three-year-old Le Chevesne, by Arc de Triomphe, out of La Fleche, and the two-year-old Peronne, by Ossary, out of Orsino. Both are fine individuals, bay in color, and they are beautifully bred.

Oscar Lewisohn contributed a fine type of thoroughbred sire in Roderick the 2d, by Desmond, a son of St. Simon. The dam of Roderick the 2d was Dodragh, by Hackler, the sire of the Liverpool Grand National winner, Covert Coat, and other famous jumpers. Desmond was owned by Lord Dunraven, and he was one of the highest priced sires at stud in Ireland. Mr. Lewisohn is authority for the statement that Roderick the 2d was sold for $20,000 as a yearling. The horse is now four years old, and will be sent to the Ashantee Stud of Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth at Avon, in this State.

Le Chevesne will have a home at the Rhinebeck estate of L. Gordon Hamersley in the Millbrook Hunt district, in the vicinity of Poughkeepsie, while Peronne will be allotted to Harry W. Shoemaker, who has a fine farm in the vicinity of Reading, Penn.

TO HOLD EDISON CO. TO RATE AGREEMENT

CORPORATION FILES BRIEF

Wants Present Rate Continued for the Rest of the Year—Case May Go to Courts.

The New York Edison Company, which has been trying to induce the Public Service Commission to relieve it from its tentative promise to reduce the price of electric current to 7 cents on uly 1, appeared before the commission yesterday and submitted a statement signed by Vice President John W. Lieb, suggesting that the present rate of 7½ cents be continued until the "uncertainties arising from the present state of war may be eliminated." The statement was the company's reply to a request from the commission that it state its position in regard to the agreement.

In November last the company, the commission, and the city met, and after several conferences agreed to accept the company's offer to reduce the rate half a cent on Jan. 1 and another half cent on July 1, providing conditions warranted it.

Mr. Lieb's statement was read to the commission by H. J. Hemmens, the company's counsel. After a recess the commission announced that, in its opinion, nothing had arisen since the agreement was made that would justify it in relieving the company from making the promised reduction of half a cent. Between these two statements City Chamberlain Maltbie, on behalf of the city, said that the Mayor wanted the agreement adhered to. Mr. Maltbie asserted that the only alternative was to return to the eight-cent rate.

Part of Mr. Lieb's statement asserted that the company would not attempt to introduce any further testimony, but that it desired to call the attention of the commission to the fact that the costs of operation began materially to reflect the increased prices in fuel, labor, and supplies in May, when the reduction in the company's income for this month alone, compared with the corresponding period of last year, almost equaled the combined losses through increased prices of the preceding four months. Then Mr. Lieb's statement ran:

> It is with no thought of beclouding the issues or of misleading the commission or the public that we have expressed some misapprehension as to the effect of the present conditions upon the industries and the economic life in general of this city. Signs of curtailment already evident in many of the activities upon which the company depends for its growth and revenue; the possibility of extensive curtailment in the use of electric energy, as a result of pending and prospective legislation; the tendency of the times toward the exercise of every practicable economy in expenditure, all seem to justify, we again respectfully point out, the desirability of a conservative attitude at this moment. We therefore again urge upon the commission that the company should not be required to further reduce its rates on July 1, and that the present agreement and the existing rate schedule be extended until the end of the current year.

Concerning the $3,500,000 which it borrowed from the Consolidated Gas Company at 6 per cent. interest, the company explained that the Public Service Commission had given the Consolidated Company permission to issue $25,000,000 in debenture bonds at 6 per cent. to provide needed improvements for itself and all of its subsidiary companies and that the New York Edison Company's allotment was at the same interest as the Consolidated Company paid. The money had not been used because of the European war which caused many changes and uncertainties in the plans.

The company explained that the 10 per cent. in wages went to all those within its employd without regard to length of service, whereas the 7 per cent. bonus promised was only to 80 to those who had been in the company's employ for a specified term.

Part of the commission's reply to the company's request said:

> The commission is clearly and unanimously of the opinion that nothing has been disclosed which would warrant non-fulfillment of the November understanding as to the rate after July 1, 1917. The company should put the seven-cent rate promptly in effect as promised. It at some future time conditions actually developed which prove that rate to yield on an average less than a fair return on the value of the property used in furnishing the service, the company is of course authorized by statute to make suitable application to the commission at which time the results of the reduction, as shown by actual figures, can be given consideration.

Mr. Hemmens told the commission that its reply would be submitted to the Board of Directors of the New York Edison Company this morning and the decision, whether the company would reduce the rate to 7 cents or raise it to 8 cents, would be reported to the commission tomorrow afternoon.

If the company decides to restore the old rate of 8 cents the commission will continue the inquiry into the company's financial condition and an appraisal of the company's property may be made. It is certain that if the commission issues an order to the company directing it to reduce its rate to 7 cents that the courts will be appealed to on the ground that the low rate is confiscatory.

BULLET JUST MISSES JUDGE.

Ernest J. Heppenheimer of Jersey City, President of the Colonial Life Insurance Company of America, and lay Judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals of New Jersey, had a narrow escape from death from a rifle bullet today. He was on his way from his Summer home at Tenafly to Jersey City by the Northern Railroad of New Jersey when a bullet crashed through the window opposite him and buried itself in the cushion of the seat in which he sat.

The incident occurred as the train was passing under the Pennsylvania Railroad embankment at Homestead. On his arrival at Jersey City Mr. Heppenheimer reported the matter to the police, and the Director of Public Safety, Charles F. X. O'Brien, notified the Chief of Police of North Bergen Township.

The bullet was extracted from the seat and was found to be nickel tipped, probably a regulation United States Army bullet. The authorities are inclined to believe it was a stray shot, but Mr. Heppenheimer intimated that it might have been an attempt upon his life.

LILLIAN LORRAINE AGAIN.

Lillian Lorraine returned to the local stage yesterday after an absence of several seasons. The young woman, whose beauty was one of the featured attractions of Mr. Ziegfeld's "Follies" for a number of years, came back as Jack Norworth's partner at the Palace. Miss Lorraine's vacation has agreed with her. She has kept her beauty, and both her voice and her sense of comedy have developed. There was a suggestion of the numbers Mr. Norworth used to sing with his first and most popular partner in the songs themselves and the manner of their rendition, but Mr. Norworth can scarcely be blamed for following a recipe now that has proved so efficacious in the past.

The new program is the best in recent weeks, and the inclusion of the Morgan Dancers is partly responsible. This band of lithe young women from one of the outdoor dancing schools of California is the best drilled group of native dancers appearing in the varieties. Exponents of the Broadway school of dancing are George White and Emma Haig, who have been retained for another week, while still a third variety is furnished by the Hirschoff troupe of gypsies.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Norman Trevor, who had roles in Barrie's "A Kiss for Cinderella" and "The New Word," at the Empire, has been accepted for service by the British recruiting commission at 280 Broadway, and expects to be ordered into training soon.

"Parlor, Bedroom, and Bath," a new farce comedy by C. W. Bell and Mark Swan, was placed in rehearsal yesterday by A. H. Woods with Florence Moore, Jane Grey, John Westley, Robert Emmett Keane, John Arthur, May Thompson, and Harry Lillford in the cast. The piece will be presented here early in August.

Another prospective Woods production is "Bucking the Tiger." May Tully will convert Achmed Abdullah's story of that title into a play for presentation next season.

"Leave It to Jane," the musical version of George Ade's "The College Widow," was placed in rehearsal yesterday under the direction of Edward Royce. The principals, when the play is presented at the Longacre in August, will be Oscar Shaw, Robert Pitkin, George Graham, Dan Collyer, Carl Randall, Tom Reynolds, Georgia O'Ramey, Anna Orr, Raye Dean, Jane Elliott, Lois Whitney, Gypsy Dale, Florence Maguire, and Ruth Cooper.

William Le Baron's farce comedy, "The Very Idea," was acted for the first time last night in the Shubert Theatre, New Haven. The cast included Sydney Shields, Josephine Drake, Mary Newcomb, Laura Allen, Harold Hendee, William P. Carleton, Sidney Booth, John Webster, and Ruth Collins.

George Hayes, who was a member of Sir Herbert Tree's company during his last engagement at the New Amsterdam, has joined the British Army and is training at the Toronto camp.

The Shuberts's first offering next season will be Abraham Schomer's drama, "The Inner Man," with Wilton Lackaye in the principal role. It will follow "My Lady's Glove" at the Lyric about the middle of August.

Charles A. Bird, for the last twelve years general manager for the Shuberts, has accepted a similar position with the firm of Elliott, Comstock & Gest.

A new Mary Pickford picture, entitled "The Little American," will be shown next week at the Strand.

Cohan & Harris produced Rachel Crothers's new play, "He and She," last night in the Apollo Theatre, Atlantic City. Effie Shannon, Maclyn Arbuckle, Beatrice Prentice, Marion Barney, Jane Cooper, Emily Varian, and Clyde Fogel played the principal roles.

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, JUNE 26, 1917.

LET THE PRESIDENT DECIDE.

The Food Administration bill is before the Senate in the form in which it passed the House, and there are to be no more committee hearings. A number of amendments are pending, but excepting one modifying the too drastic provision for the prevention of the use of grains needed as food in the manufacture of alcoholic liquors none is essential. All the precautions against a waste of foodstuffs in distilleries and breweries should be left to the discretion of the President. Events may show that there must be a rigorous curtailment in the manufacture of liquor, but the deliberate sacrifice of all the enormous sum derived from the liquor traffic annually by the Government should be avoided in a period of war.

There is a general belief in Washington that after the voice of the prohibitionists has been duly heard in the Senate that body will deal with this part of the bill in an intelligent manner. There are in the Senate, as well as in the House, a few who are striving to make the war as unpopular as possible. There are pronounced prohibitionists who will lose no opportunity to vote for the total suppression of the liquor traffic. But the majority of the members must see the folly of transforming this essential war measure for the conservation of food supplies into anti-dram legislation which, if enacted, would serve only in the end to make the chances for effective liquor legislation after the war much poorer than they might be otherwise.

The sensible course is to empower the President to commandeer existing stocks of alcoholic beverages, in case the supply of alcohol for use in making explosives is in danger, to prevent the use in the manufacture of liquors of all foodstuffs needed to feed the people of the United States and their allies and leave the whole matter to his judgment.

A CERTIFICATE OF CHARACTER.

This is no voice from a higher and better world, PATRICK E. MCCABE is no saint in politics, the men of Tammany will say as they read the Albany leader's observations about Tammany Hall and its chief. It is true that Mr. MCCABE is a politician of the practical sort, but that pre-eminently qualifies him to tell the truth about Tammany and its present leadership. He points out that it is impossible to understand the political manoeuvring of Tammany unless you have trained with it. In the past he has acted with the organization, he knows its methods, its motives. Mr. MCCABE can qualify as an expert witness.

Therefore, when he says that Tammany has "a leadership without the "faintest idea of honorable responsi-"bility, a leadership steeped in the de-"pravity of the lowest sort of polit-"ical cunning," the community feels that this certificate of character comes from competent authority. Mr. McCABE dwells upon the treachery of Tammany, under the leadership of MURPHY, to the Presidential candidate of the Democratic Party last November. That election has passed into history. Mr. WILSON was elected without Mr. MURPHY's aid. The people of the City of New York are less concerned about Tammany's performances in the past than about its intentions for the future. They see it preparing, and with an unusual elaboration of plans, to capture the control of the City Government at the coming election. They know what that means. It means a violent backsliding from the present high standards of business administration into the slime and mire of Government by Tammany. That calamity the people of the city will be called upon next November to avert. Notwithstanding some rather unusual alliances which Tammany has formed this year, we are entirely confident that they will prevent its return to power.

Mr. MCCABE says something new about Tammany, or at least about Mr. MURPHY: "One of the chief troubles "in the present leadership of Tam-"many Hall," he says, "is that it is "credulous enough to believe in itself." The more you analyze that statement the more extraordinary it appears. But if the leader of Tammany really believes in himself, he is more dangerous than we thought. A man really given over to evil, pretending only to occasional virtue, is obviously in a weak position. The reasonably upright among his following grow weary of his wickedness and turn from it, but if he can persuade them that he leads them in the path of righteousness, he becomes much more formidable. Mr. MCCABE ought to know the workings of the soul, mind, and conscience of MURPHY. If he really believes that he is engaged in an effort to free the city from the hands of evil men and to confer upon it the blessings of good government under Tammany administration, he may deceive not only himself but others. At any rate, by a union of the new City Democracy, of the Republican organization, and of all sound and just men, Tammany in this new assault must be beaten back, and the present city administration, worthy of the people's trust, continued in power.

THE CALL TO THE AIR.

The War Department has done well to correct the false impression that the obstacles to the admission of recruits for aviation service were so formidable that unless he could get his training through one of the unofficial aeronautic agencies, and try for admission to the Lafayette Escadrille in France, a patriotic young man might better enter some other branch of the army and be done with it. Certainly, thousands of young men anxious to serve their country as airmen have been led to believe that the chances of entering the United States Army in that capacity were few. It has been the general belief that the airmen were all commissioned officers and that no recruits from civil life would be admitted unless they had college degrees. The official announcement that thousands of recruits are wanted for air service is therefore timely. Applicants may apply to the Signal Corps headquarters in Washington, to the officers in charge of the aviation fields at Mineola, L. I.; Essington, Penn.; San Antonio, Texas; San Diego, Cal.; Omaha, Neb., or to the Signal Officer of the Central Department of the army in Chicago. It would be wise to establish sub-stations for the examination of recruits in many other places.

The qualifications of a competent military airman must be exceptional. He must have a good mind as well as a sound body to master the theory of flight, the principles of engine construction, and military science as well. He must become an accurate and alert observer, and must learn all the details of signaling and the use of wireless telegraphy. But there is no likelihood that any of the applicants will be ignorant of the requirements of the job. They will all be men who have given some thought to airplaning, who have been students of aviation, even if they have had no machines of their own. Aviation has taken a strong hold on the young American imagination. While the work of examining recruits must be much harder than in any other military branch, and every man accepted must be precisely up to the mark, there is no doubt that there will be a host of volunteers from this time on, and that the needs of the service will soon be met. This country ought to turn out the best military airmen in the world. Many of its aviators have won worldwide repute, and very few have been university men. They have learned how to fly, though the air soldier must learn more than that, of course. He must learn not only how to use the camera in flight, but also the machine gun and bomb dropper. There is no opportunity in military aviation for a man who is only half-way good. But for the competent there is the opportunity to play an important part in ending the war.

THE COAL "SHORTAGE."

The Senate Commerce Committee begins hearings today upon the Pomerene bill to give the Federal Trade Commission control of the coal trade, and perhaps of several other trades. Simultaneously, the same subject will be under consideration by the War Board of the American Railway Association and the Committee upon Coal Production of the Council of National Defense. These parallel proceedings represent the opposing methods of regulating business which have so occupied public attention for the last few years. The Trade Commission represents that school of thought which would tear up old things by the roots and would institute an economic millennium by edict. The Trade Commission is deeply in earnest that everything shall be as it ought to be, and is as much concerned in social reform as it is in winning the war. If there were the same confidence in human power to execute as to propose programs, the Commission would have fewer critics and more supporters.

The other school of thought is represented by gentlemen who stand high in the confidence of their countrymen, and yet probably the majority of them either have been prosecuted or are guilty of acts denounced by those now relying upon their assistance in the public service, and not in vain. These gentlemen are less fancy free than the Trade Commission. The Trade Commission, to which there is some prospect that general control of commodity prices may be given, thinks that profit is the enemy. The Commission would reform the coal situation by making profits "uniform," just as wages are made uniform and effort in production is standardized. The other committees do not regard it as desirable that profits should be reduced to the same level for the efficient and the inefficient. They do not wish to reduce their own hours of labor, and are desirous to pay wages proportioned to production, taking their profits on the same method of calculation, that is, by piecework.

Generally speaking, it may be said that the Trade Commission is desirous of trade-unionizing capital, reducing all effort to a humane amount of exertion, and taking away that excess of profit which stimulates the strong to prodigies of effort. There is much to be said for the Trade Commission's humanity. It is not possible to condemn the beauties of its thought and language. All wish that such things might be. The committees which dissent from the Trade Commission's ideas think that increase of production is the remedy for scarcity, and that the allowance of earned profits or wages is the best stimulus to production. They have raised wages again and again, and have themselves known what it is to pass years without so much as a dividend in the house. They have worked harder and harder, and would work harder yet if their men would do the same.

They disagree with the facts as well as the theories of the Trade Commission. The Trade Commission thought that the trouble was scarcity of coal, and that the trade was both "paralyzed" and the source of paralysis in other industries. The Coal Committee finds that the trade is at its maximum activity. In May the production of hard and soft coal was more than eight million tons above last year. In the Coal Committee's words, this "prob-"ably makes a record month for rail "shipments to consumers, and figures "already reported for the first half of "June show that a still further in-"crease is going on, which is expected "to make June exceed May by a sub-"stantial tonnage." To appreciate how great a performance it is to beat all records of production and distribution, it is necessary to remember that the miners worked 1,000,000 man-days less in 1916 than in 1915, according to the figures of the Department of Labor, and that the eight-hour day will be effective throughout all of 1917, instead of less than eight months of 1916. The production of 1916 was less than 1915, and yet 1917 thus far has been made to exceed 1916.

It is difficult to doubt that the Trade Commission is wrong in its facts, and that its diagnosis is based on its assumptions. It may be feared that if it reduced profits to a trade-union basis it might cause a strike of capital. If, then, the Commission should take over the property of the operators, and operate it on its theories, the operators who have produced the above results would feel more relieved than the Commission as the proportions and perplexities of its task dawned upon it. Well meant as the proposals of the Commission may be, they have failed to receive the country's confidence. The opinion of the country rather tends to agree with the Coal Committee's declaration that "it would be un-"wise to put into effect untried meth-"ods that would interfere with the "close co-operation that now exists."

MR. SCHEIDEMANN LEARNS SOMETHING.

The advantages of foreign travel for Germans are exemplified in the case of PHILIP SCHEIDEMANN, the Socialist leader. He returns from the Stockholm Conference convinced that about the only way to deliver Germany from the horrors of a fourth Winter of war is the democratization of the Empire. "It was in Stockholm," he says in a two-column article in Vorwärts, "that "I finally accepted as my unshakable "conviction that of which I had be-"fore been conscious—the thing can-"not be achieved without the sweep-"ing democratization of Germany." The thing to be achieved is the finding of a way out of "this endless murdering of nations."

More Germans ought to go abroad, a great many more, that is the only way they can learn the truth. Within the Empire they are taught to believe that Germany is fighting for its life against a combination of powerful and desperately wicked nations seeking to destroy it. It has been drilled into their minds that Germany's enemies will not desist until they have accomplished their purpose—Germany's only hope is through victory. Mr. SCHEIDEMANN saw a new light in Stockholm, he is spreading it in Berlin. It is the duty of Germans, he says, "to seek the way that will "lead us out of this endless murdering "of nations," and the only way is to make the Empire democratic. The rest of the world knew long ago that that was the way, that peace would come if the German people were made free. The nations have united not to destroy Germany, but to destroy the German autocracy, just as in the mining communities of former days peaceable men would unite to rid the town of its "bad man."

It has repeatedly been said that Germany could have peace in a week if she would free herself from the rule of Prussian imperialism and militarism. The Germans are not allowed to know that. Mr. SCHEIDEMANN had to go to Stockholm to find it out. The Imperial Government, of course, does not want them to know the truth. The newspapers complain that the Chancellor's order cutting their allowance of paper by more than 50 per cent. deals a deadly blow "to the Ger-"man newspapers, which probably "will cease to exist." They might as well cease to exist, for they have failed to justify their existence, they kept the truth from their readers. The Socialist newspaper, Vorwärts, is one of the very few that has had the courage to speak out, and MAXIMILIAN HARDEN is one of the very small number of Germans who has dared to speak his mind freely. He tells the Government openly that the Allies were justified in deposing CONSTANTINE. HARDEN and SCHEIDEMANN are preaching doctrines strange to German ears. Possibly the truth will find its way among the people and with results that will make for peace. It is the only road to peace. SCHEIDEMANN is right about that.

ARGUMENT IN RUSSIA.

In all the news of the gigantic labors now being performed to save Russia, nothing is more striking than the often-repeated instances in which mutineers or prospective rebels are brought immediately to terms by a simple appeal to reason. Over and over again some regiment or battalion or garrison has been led by agitators into rebellion, only to become instantly loyal on some short speech addressed to them by some plain-spoken General or civilian official. The argument used to convert them, when it has been reported, has been some simple statement of what to us are the obvious facts that discipline must exist in an army, that true liberty involves order, or some other of the elementary things which here we take for granted. Thus it is evident that many of these mutinies are founded on nothing but ignorance, and that the Russian soldier's heart and even his head were right enough, though at first misled by glittering phrases to which he had never heard the axiomatic answers.

Undoubtedly, Admiral GLENNON's speech, which immediately ended the Black Sea revolt, was of this character—a plain statement of the duty of the hour, so axiomatic that its results seemed out of all proportion to its words. We may assume that it was, seeing that the arguments which caused the revolt were of a bizarre and fantastic nature. The Leninists, finding that the higher officers were absent, descended on the fleet and excited the mutiny by uncovering a mare's nest — Admiral KOLTCHAK and his staff were plotting a counter-revolution, and so on. That this nonsense could have such an effect seems amazing enough, but the docility of the sailors when the American Admiral told them of their duty is a refreshing proof of their honesty of intention.

The whole Russian Army is not of this character, however, and the malingerers and shirkers who are taking advantage of the situation to loaf while their French, British, and Italian comrades pour out their blood in their defense need sterner treatment. They need treatment of the kind they got from the women's regiment that has been formed to shame them, and which addressed to them language that should recall to his duty any man not shameless:

> You who make war without annexations or contributions, but expect tribute from your own native towns and eat up your own country, take heed and be wise betimes. Your "brotherhood of nations" is a jest for the enemy, who still occupies our soil. Until you march against the foe and enter his towns and capitals with flags flying and overturn with your bayonets the throne of WILHELM, we have no words for you but cowards, traitors and Judases.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Sherlock Appears at Last in Real Life.

When Mrs. GRACE HUMISTON eagerly disclaims the title of "Sherlock Holmes," she shows common sense. A title of that kind too easily lends itself to ridicule, and Sherlock's magical deductions, even in his most thrilling adventures, lead him perilously close to the border of humor. But there is a sense in which Mrs. HUMISTON cannot escape the comparison. She is the first real Sherlock Holmes on record. For what was Sherlock Holmes? A layman who used his brains to uncover mysteries which the routine-minded police failed to uncover, and who became a specialist. Mrs. HUMISTON has fairly earned that complimentary comparison, for, though the Cruger case is the most important one in which she has displayed her skill, it is not the first by several.

The unofficial detective is a favorite character in fiction, but not in life, for even the "private detective" is a professional and works according to routine rules. The character of the specialist with a superior intellect, which enabled him to achieve results that astounded the professional thief-takers, was invented by POE, whose Dupin was bodily appropriated, dressed up in more up-to-date garments, and renamed Sherlock Holmes by Sir CONAN DOYLE. Dupin's foil was an experienced and successful policeman, who always worked according to recognized police methods, and was consequently discomfited whenever his own preconceived theories failed to bring results. DOYLE furnished Holmes with the same kind of foils in the persons of Athelney Jones and other Scotland Yard slaves of routine. Even Dr. Watson was a reproduction of the nameless narrator who is always astonished by Dupin's success.

Now, what Dupin and Holmes did is precisely what Mrs. HUMISTON did, except that they called their process deduction and she calls it common sense. The policemen who languidly investigated the Cruger case duplicated to a marvel the characteristics of POE's Prefect and DOYLE's Athelney Jones, except that in this case they did not even use their own recognized professional methods more than perfunctorily. The Prefect and Athelney Jones would have dug up the cellar the first day. But, be that as it may, this creation of the fiction writer, the crime specialist who discomfits the police by the use of common sense, whether you call it deduction or not, never existed in life before, and exists today. It seems to be another proof of that doctrine of which OSCAR WILDE amusingly produced so many proofs—that "Nature always imitates Art."

Traffic in Kansas City and in New York.

The Kansas City Star pays one of those rare compliments to the New York way of doing things which, when they come from another American city, always make the tears come to a New Yorker's eyes and give him a choking sensation in the throat. Our Missouri contemporary has been strongly impressed by our management of traffic at congested points, particularly in the Times Square neighborhood:

> Forty-second and Broadway is not New York's busiest corner, either. It is only one of the busiest. And yet, the one-quarter million cross Forty-second and Broadway, some carrying bundles, some wheeling carts, some in pairs and in groups, some in a hurry, some in no hurry, some on business bent, and some "just looking about," all of them dodging street cars, motor cars, and express vehicles of various kinds, with as little danger, discomfort, or delay as the "rush hour" crowds cross Kansas Avenue in Topeka or Main Street in Ottawa.

Traffic, The Star reflects, like water, light, and air, has come to be a regular municipal problem, and New York has this problem in hand beyond other cities because it was bigger here than elsewhere and had to be solved, and then the kindly Missourian declares that the visiting Kansas City person asks himself what his home town is doing for the regulation of traffic. We accept, on behalf of our fellow-citizens, this compliment with due gratitude, but we feel it right that the Kansas City folks should know that New Yorkers do not think they have solved the problem of congested traffic or even half solved it. The thought of it bears upon us all the time. The conditions grow worse daily. There are countless things to be done that we know how to do, such as finishing the viaduct across Forty-second Street at the Grand Central Station, cutting through certain blocks to make new thoroughfares, making underground ways for vehicles and pedestrians. There are other problems of traffic the solution of which is still a mystery. But we are proud of the Kansas City impression and we are quite certain that an observant and equally appreciative New Yorker, visiting that prosperous Missouri city, would find many things there worth writing home to his folks about.

One Way to Save Leather.

While the Commercial Economy Board of the Council of National Defense is about it, why doesn't it endeavor to bring about a saving in the heels of women's shoes as well as in their tops? If it could induce the manufacturers to lessen the height of the heels, it would effect an economy in women as well as in leather that in war times should be worth considering. For the doctors all know very well, and are willing to say so when their knowledge is desired—which it rarely is upon that question—that the stilt-like heels upon which the majority of women prefer to teeter through life are largely responsible for many of the ailments that lower their physical efficiency.

If the board succeeds in limiting the height of the tops of women's shoes, as has been done in England, to seven inches, perhaps it will be sufficiently heartened to take another step in economy and persuade the manufacturers to cut down the heels to hygienic size and so save for wholesome use an immense amount of good sole leather. But, great as that economy would be, it would be negligible beside the ultimate saving in feminine health and strength and doctors' bills. Generations ago man discovered that high heels and fancy shapes in his foot coverings were uncomfortable, silly, futile, an unbearable interference with the work and the pleasure of life, and insisted that manufacturers make for him shoes that would clothe his feet without distorting them and subjecting himself to physical discomfort and illness. Masculine footwear, it is quite true, has not yet been evolved to the point of perfection. But at least it does not render men physically unfit to undertake their due share in the world's work, and it does not waste upon unnecessary heels leather needed for other purposes. In the making of the big majority of women's shoes enough leather is used in the building of the heels of each pair to sole another pair, with results wholly detrimental to the wearer's efficiency. The Commercial Economy Board should not be economical of its efforts in the leather-saving line.

A Call from France.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At one of the Red Cross luncheons the other day Mrs. August Belmont effectively read a letter received by Charles Robinson Smith from a Frenchman at St. Just, under date of April 29, which was warmly applauded. I herewith quote the letter, and shall be glad if you will print it. ELSIE MORRIS.

New York, June 25, 1917.

St. Just, April 29, 1917.

I also, dear friend, am happy to see that the United States have finally ranged themselves alongside of us; and what touches me most is to see that it is rather on our account that they do it. If those who have died could know of your warm friendship, they would be proud to have died in order to merit that friendship.

But the shadow of the picture, the practical shadow, is that you ask us to hold on. You ask us to wait for you—how long a time? We shall wait for you; that goes without saying. One can ask everything of our soldiers except not to get themselves killed; but if you delay longer, how many Frenchmen will there be left—old men like me, children of 15 years of age, and hardly these. Take care, lest the French nation be nothing but a remembrance, a glorious remembrance.

France will never perish; but the French, what of them? The blood of France is flowing in torrents. Oh, the killed, the mutilated, the wrecks due to German infamy! Certainly, I am aware of the great difficulties that exist in arousing a population that contains so many Germans and Austrians as the United States; and it shall be to the eternal glory of yourselves and of those who are like you to have given this impulse to your country. But hurry up!

Christian Science Membership.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES credits the pastor of a Boston congregation with the statement that negotiations are under way for the sale of the Mother Church in Boston because of the falling away of its following. Permit me to quote from the annual report of the clerk, made public on June 4: "The announcement can be made that a greater number of new members have been admitted to the Mother Church during the year than in any previous year. The net increase in Christian Science organizations was 109, which is the greatest of any year in the history of the Christian Science movement." Furthermore, the finances of the church are satisfactory as usual, and, instead of disposing of its property, the Mother Church only recently acquired several needed parcels of land in the immediate vicinity. The critic should acquaint himself with the facts.

MILK AS WAR FOOD.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue THE TIMES published an abstract of an article on "Alcohol in Peace and War," which I had contributed to The Medical Record. In the effort at condensation a serious error has crept in which does me injustice, in that my statements regarding wheat were applied to barley. Kindly let me state clearly for the benefit of the public that milk is the most vitally important article of food, to the abundant supply of which deplorably insufficient attention is given by the English Food Controller, who ordered milling of wheat up to 80 per cent., and the limitation of the use of barley for brewing beer.

While 10 per cent. bulk is thus added to wheat flour, there is added only an insignificant food value, (entire wheat flour contains, according to Graham Lusk, 1,645 calories, patent bakers' flour 1,640,) but an enormous loss of milk-producing food is incurred in the loss of bran and middlings. Again in the matter of barley limitation for brewing, the loss of brewers' grains as a milk-producing food should be seriously considered, besides the incidental loss of the recently discovered value of the now wasted brewers' yeast as an enormously active substitute for human and animal food in the shape of Naehrhefe (nutritive yeast) which our chemists do not appear to be utilizing, and which, if proved correct, will make under present conditions the by-products of barley in brewing more valuable than the cereal itself.

When these scientific facts come to be fully appreciated I may be pardoned for suggesting that our food administrator may not follow in the footsteps of the British Controller in this regard. I am confirmed in this view by recently reading the opinions of the highest authorities on the food question, which may be of value to the readers of THE TIMES.

Professor of Physiology Graham Lusk says:

> We could destroy the cattle not needed for milk and we could put roast beef in the same category as canvasback duck and serve it with champagne without serious consequences, but we must maintain our milk supply.

My views are also confirmed by Dr. Alonzo Taylor, recently appointed scientific adviser on food by the President, who says:

> Forbidding the use of barley in the manufacture of beer would probably result in a larger consumption of whisky. * * * In this country we extract about 72 per cent. of the whole grain for flour. The bran and middlings, the remaining 28 per cent., is utilized for food for cattle. * * * A higher milling would cut the milk supply as much as 18 or 20 per cent. Before taking such a step we must find a substitute food for cattle. * * * The second great essential is the maintenance of the milk supply.

Professor Lafayette Mendel of Yale writes:

> The addition of milk products to a ration that is inexpensive, (corn, for instance,) but inefficient by itself, suggests new standards in our feeding practices.

Professor Hopkins reported in 1912 that the addition of small quantities of milk to food mixtures otherwise complete "exerted a favorable influence on nutrition which is out of all proportion to the calorie value of the added milk."

Without going too deeply into this subject, it may be confidently stated that milk is not only the most important and indispensable article of food for the young for which no substitute has been found, but the latest investigations bestow upon milk certain well defined nutrition qualities which render other considerations secondary in food conservation.

In conclusion the experience of Denmark proves that beer of low alcoholic content has been instrumental in reducing the consumption of distilled intoxicants 23 per cent. and has made the saloon a veritable temperance house, called there "Afholdjen," that the use of barley for brewing beer instead of making flour is defensible on this ground not only but also because of the brewery by-products, which serve to increase the milk supply enormously.

Why They Subscribe.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You say that the most gratifying part of the Liberty Loan was the fact that a very large number of the people subscribed. This is true. Many of us teachers, with our modest incomes, hard pressed now to make both ends meet, have subscribed. My boy, not yet 21, has enlisted. He has bought a bond. My wife and I have bought bonds, and all this we have done because Germany has broken into Belgium—for this one reason alone! If she had broken into my beloved native country, into that wonderful, ages-old, Alpine republic, beautiful Switzerland, I would have gone over myself to have a hand in the fracas.

The Kaiser's Proper Course.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Every loyal German has to enter the German Army, to sacrifice his all for the Emperor and the Fatherland. Time has proved their loyalty.

When President Wilson sent his war message to Germany the Kaiser should have abdicated instantly, sacrificing himself for the German people and their Fatherland.

THE GREAT GRAY SHIPS.

The gray ships softly steal to sea—
Mild wind and soughing tide;
The gray gulls rest along the wave,
The weed-waifs soundless glide—
And solemn as the still night's flow,
The iron-breasted fighters go.

Their brave lads watch the home-shores fade
Within the gathering mist,
Their pulses tingling to the touch
Of lips their own have kissed—
Each wondering how, and dreaming when,
His lips and hers shall meet again.

The bold moon woos the amorous surge,
The still dark flees the dawn,
The red sun climbs the old earth's knees—
The great gray ships are gone.
Where wounded Freedom calls her sons,
The young lads muster at their guns.

No more they dream of clinging lips,
No more of clasped hands,
Nor who shall sail back home again,
Who sleep in foreign lands;
But, stripped and cleared their souls, they wait,
Like those gray ships, a soldier's fate.

O silent ships, with those we love
Sail on to lands afar;
There is no prouder thing afloat
Than you, gray ships of war;
And safety rests, abides, endures
In those brave sailors' hands, and yours.

We do not charge you bring them back
Whate'er the bitter price;
But only that the victory
Shall match the sacrifice:
That Freedom live, and sing aloud,
Within the soldier's throat—or shroud.

GOETHALS ORDERS 14 SHIPS.

Ten of Steel, Four Wooden—Corey Urges Preference to Wood.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Contracts for ten complete steel merchant ships; four complete wooden merchant vessels, and twenty wood ship hulls were announced today by Major General Goethals, General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. Deliveries will be made in 1918.

The steel ships will be built by the Moore and Scott Iron Works at Oakland, Cal.; the complete wooden ships, by the Newcomb Lifeboat Company, Hampton, Va.; twelve wooden hulls by the Universal Shipbuilding Company, Harris County, Texas; four hulls by the Portland Ship Ceiling Company, Portland, Me., and four hulls by McBride & Law of Beaumont, Texas.

In addition to the ship contracts, orders for twelve vertical triple expansion marine engines were given to the Ellicott Machine Corporation of Baltimore.

In all, the Fleet Corporation has let contracts so far for 104 complete ships, 38 of steel; 32 of wood and steel, and 34 of wood. Seventy-two wooden hulls have also been ordered.

William E. Corey, President of the Midvale Steel & Ordnance Company, and former President of the United Steel Corporation, has sent a telegram to the editor of the Manufacturers' Record of Baltimore indorsing an editorial in the Record's issue of June 21, in which a plea was made that the steel manufacturers of the United States "remove from the minds of the people of this country any thought of selfishness by coming out strongly and squarely for the building of wooden ships." Mr. Corey's telegram reads

"I am in entire accord with your recommendation to build wooden ships, for ocean transportation is the all-important matter. Every ship that can be built of wood should be in the water at the earliest possible moment. Build ships of steel as well, but give preference to wooden vessels, as all the steel the world can produce is urgently required for purposes that will allow no substitution. There is an actual scarcity of steel-making materials and equipment, whereas there is an unlimited supply of wood."

ASK FOR SIX-CENT FARES.

Up-State Traction Companies File Petitions with Service Commission.

ALBANY, June 25.—Petitions for permission to increase street railway fares from 5 to 6 cents were filed with the Up-State Public Service Commission today by twenty-four traction companies, operating over the greater part of the State. The petitions set forth that the operating expenses and the cost of labor and materials had increased to such an extent in the last few years that the 5-cent fare no longer provided a reasonable return on the capital invested.

Petitions were filed by the Albany Southern Railway, Elmira, Corning & Waverly Railway, Elmira Water, Light and Power Company, Corning & Painted Post Street Railway, Auburn & Syracuse Railway, Empire United Railways, Fishkill Electric Railway, Fonda, Johnstown & Gloversville Railway Company, Geneva, Seneca Falls & Auburn Railway, Glen Cove Railroad Company, Hornell Traction Company, Hudson Valley Railway, operating cars from Troy to Glens Falls, and Warrensburg; Huntington Railroad Company, Ithaca Traction Corporation, Kingston Consolidated Railroad, New York & Stamford Railway, New York State Railways, operating between Syracuse and Little Falls; Northport Traction Company, Ogdensburg Street Railway Company, Poughkeepsie City and Wappingers Falls Electric Railway Company, Schenectady Railway Company, United Traction Company, operating in Albany, Troy, Watervliet, Cohoes, and Rensselaer; Waverly, Sayre & Athens Traction Company, and Westchester Street Railroad Company.

WILLIAMS HONORS HOOVER.

Degrees at Commencement for Men Active in War Service.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., June 25.—Williams College conferred honorary degrees at its commencement today upon a number of men who have won recognition since the outbreak of the war. The war spirit was shown in the announcement that fifty-one members of the graduating class were now engaged in some form of Government service. Only twelve of the seniors who responded to the call were able to return here for commencement, and eleven of these wore the army or navy uniform.

The honorary degrees conferred were:

Doctor of Laws.—Herbert C. Hoover, proposed Food Administrator; Frederick C. Ferry, President of Hamilton College.

Doctor of Science. — Robert Grant Aiken, astronomer at Lick Observatory.

Doctor of Divinity.—The Rev. John Neher Lewis, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Waterbury, Conn.

Doctor of Letters.—Chauncey Goodrich of the North China Mission, who has been engaged in missionary work more than half a century; Eustace Sutherland Campbell, Lord Percy, third son of the Duke of Northumberland and member of the British Educational Commission now in this country.

Master of Arts.—Captain Thomas N. Gimperling, U. S. A., in charge of the Williams Military Unit; Marshall McLean, New York; George B. Hayes, who since the outbreak of the war "has given his entire time to doing major dental surgery in the restoration of mutilated faces at the American Ambulance Hospital in Paris."

LI CHING HSI NEW PREMIER.

Son of Li Hung Chang Heads Reorganized Chinese Government.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The Chinese Legation received a dispatch from the Peking Foreign Office today stating that Li Ching Hsi had accepted the post of Premier in the reorganized Government and that two other important posts, those of War Minister and Secretary of the Navy, had been filled by General Wang Shih Chen and Admiral Sah Chen Ping, respectively. Other places in the Cabinet will be filled soon.

The Legation also received a message from the new Premier stating that he was ready to accept the responsibilities of the Government. He was offered the Premiership just before the recent political crisis in China came to a head, but declined. Li Ching Hsi is one of the best known men of his country, having been at one time Viceroy of Yunnan, and is a son of the late Li Hung Chang. He is reported to be well disposed toward this country.

General Wang was formerly Chief of the Staff of the Tientsin Provisional Government, and is supported by strong military elements, as were also the new Premier and Admiral Sah. The last named was acceptable to all parties on account of being the highest ranking officer in the Chinese Navy.

The State Department announced that it had a cable message from the American Minister at Peking stating that the American note to China had a beneficial effect upon all parties and that there appeared to be disposition on the part of the powers in conflict to compromise. Reports to both the Japanese Embassy and the Chinese Legation indicated that the situation in China was improved.

ASK CHINESE ELECTION SOON

PEKING, June 25.—All provinces which declared their independence of the present Peking Government have ceased their warlike preparations. Leaders of the southern provinces which were in revolt have telegraphed to Peking that they were willing to compromise if a new election were held soon without military interference.

General Chang Hsun, Military Governor of Anhwei Province, who came to Peking after the President dissolved Parliament, expressed hope that a settlement of the crisis would be reached. Administrative affairs have become disorganized through lack of a Cabinet.

ITALIANS IN BOSTON GET WARM GREETING

REVIEW RED CROSS PARADE

BOSTON, June 25.—A demonstration rivaling that accorded Marshal Joffre of France on his visit to this city was given today to the Prince of Udine and other members of the Royal Italian Commission.

"Little Italy," the North End colony, which numbers nearly 50,000 persons, made the occasion a holiday, and fairly bubbled with the exuberance of its welcome. Bands played martial airs at the principal street corners and young women in white dresses saluted the Prince with a bombardment of flowers as his automobile passed.

The day was filled with activity for the Italian party. First on the program was a visit to the Public Library, where the mission was received by William F. Kenney, President of the institution. Then the Prince went to the State House, where he appeared before the convention which is revising the State's Constitution. Later he was whirled through the shouting crowds in the North End and to the Boston Navy Yard, where he went aboard a cruiser, after being accorded the naval ceremony of "honors to a royal personage smartly given." Crossing the harbor under escort of other cruisers and submarine chasers, the mission visited the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation's plant at Quincy, where they saw sixty vessels under construction, among them many warships of various types, from the slender submarines to the great-hulled battle cruisers.

At a luncheon tendered by President O. W. Powell of the corporation, the Prince received a silver shield from a delegation of Italian-Americans, and Signor Nitti, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, received a gold watch. Returning to this city, the Commissioners became the central figures in a Red Cross parade, which included detachments from the regular army, the navy, National Guard, and Ambulance Corps. Prominent among the bodies in line was a company of 129 recruits for the regular army obtained in this city since last Thursday, all of them native Italians or of Italian extraction.

The Prince of Udine, speaking at a banquet tendered by State and city to the commission tonight, said that Italy, although a kingdom, was fighting the same fight that the United States had entered upon—"a struggle for democracy and freedom."

"When we shall return to Italy," he said, "when we shall go back to war, we shall feel encouraged by the recollection of the warm hospitality we have found among you. Whatever be the strength and the insidious devices of the enemy, we must win. The United States will have the great honor of having contributed by their mighty energies to the destinies of the world's democracies."

The Prince drank to the health of President Wilson, adding: "By proclaiming war your illustrious President has associated his name with history. By leading your country to victory, by helping to free the world from the oppression of military oligarchies, he will add new glory and new fame to the already great glory and fame of America."

Despite the Entente Allies' acute need of ships, arising from the submarine menace, more than 1,000,000 tons of neutral shipping is swinging idly at anchor in the harbors of belligerent nations, according to a statement made by Augusto Ciuffelli, former member of the Italian Cabinet and member of the Italian Mission, to The Associated Press here today.

The statement was made by Signor Ciuffelli in connection with the advisability of putting into execution other plans besides America's titanic shipbuilding program in combating the submarine.

"I do not believe that belligerent nations should respect the so-called rights of neutrals in this regard. No, I am convinced that they have the right to prevent the continuation of this practice in a lawful manner. This could be accomplished either by curtly ordering such ships to quit the territorial waters of the country wherein they expected to remain or charging them such heavy port duties that their stay in harbor would be made exceptionally expensive. Belligerent nations could also, in my opinion, refuse bunker coal to neutral ships unless they accepted cargoes bound through the danger zones."

SCHOOL GREETS MARCONI.

Guglielmo Marconi, member of the Italian Mission to this country, canceled important engagements yesterday in order to speak to the pupils of Public School 85, at 117th Street and First Avenue, which is known as the William Marconi School. The inventor was accompanied by State Senator Antonio Cottillo and Theodore Rousseau, Mayor Mitchel's Secretary.

The party was escorted to the main assembly hall on the fourth floor, where the parents were in waiting. A large canopy had been erected draped with American and Italian flags and eight classes of boys greeted the visitor.

Giuseppe D. Andrea, 12 years old, made the address of welcome. He said that the boys, the majority of whom were of Italian parentage, had looked upon Marconi as a shining example and that the pupils of the school were desirous of echoing the welcome of their elders.

In response to the greeting Marconi said:

"Boys, Ladies and Gentlemen: I do not know whether I shall be able to reply to the many kind things you have said of me. I do, however, want to express my heartfelt thanks to you for the tremendous reception you have extended to me and also to express the joy it gives me to come here and meet the pupils of the school that has honored me by adopting my name.

"You boys represent the future of this great country and it is the vitality, enthusiasism and patriotism that you show which give to your elders who are now engaged in actual war increased courage to carry on their work. Nothing could please me more than to see children who are preparing to become citizens of the great ally of Italy at such time. We are living in stern times and we must do all in our power to prepare not only to end this terrible struggle victoriously, but also to prepare for the new conditions which are bound to arise when peace finally comes.

"Our countrymen are giving their heart's blood, not for themselves, but to obtain a better world for you. I therefore exhort you to remember that this struggle is for democracy, liberty and mankind. Again I say I will not forget your welcome. Boys—and friends—good-bye."

As Marconi ended his address, Gilbert Maggi, 13 years old, stepped forward and presented a bronze bust of the inventor, modeled by the boy himself. Marconi held the bust in his hand for a moment and then extended his hand to the boy and said that among the many things of remembrance he would take back with him to Italy the bust made by the boy would be the most cherished. Marconi asked the boy his name and address and made note of both.

SEIZE 12 MILITANTS NEAR WHITE HOUSE

WOMEN TRY SUDDEN MOVE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Twelve militant suffragists, members of the National Woman's Party, were arrested today in front of the White House for displaying propagandist banners without a police permit. They were Miss Mabel Vernon of Nevada, Miss Virginia Arnold of North Carolina, Miss Katherine Morey and Miss Lucy Burns of Philadelphia, who had been arrested previously for the same offense; Mrs. Townsend Scott of Baltimore, Miss Florence Youmans of Minnesota, Miss Pauline Clark of New York, Miss Berta Crones of San Francisco, Miss Elizabeth Stuyvesant of Cincinnati, Miss Maude Jamieson of Norfolk, Miss Lavinia Dock of Fayetteville, Penn., and Miss Anna Arneil of Wilmington, Del.

Several times in the course of the day members of the Woman's Party in couples or in larger groups had marched from their headquarters in Cameron House, a stone's throw from the White House, along the sidewalk in front of the official residence of President Wilson, with their banners rolled up under their arms. Policemen went along with them, but as the women made no effort to unfurl the banners and kept moving, the police did not molest them.

The incident that resulted in the arrests occurred shortly after 4:30 o'clock when the street in front of the White House was crowded with Government employes on their way from work. With banners rolled, twenty suffragists marched from Cameron House to the White House without giving any indication that they intended to make any more of a demonstration than they had made several times before. They lined up between the two Pennsylvania Avenue entrances to the White House grounds and suddenly unfurled their standards. The police made a rush, and the arrest of twelve of the women followed. The crowds of department employes stopped to see. Some young men darted forward and seized two of the banners, which they carried down West Executive Avenue, followed by the suffragists from whom the banners had been taken, and threw them over the high iron railings of the White House grounds. When the suffragists demanded the return of the banners, the policeman on duty there said he knew nothing of them. Eight of the banner-bearers got away from the police.

The arrested women were released on giving personal surety for their appearance in court later.

The Misses Mabel Vernon and Virginia Arnold, pickets, who were taken into custody by the Capitol police last week when they attempted to display a banner on the visit of the Russian mission to Congress, were not brought to trial today, as had been planned, because the congressional committees which have charge of the grounds advised the police to drop the case, at least until those of other suffragists arrested at the White House have been decided.

Ex-President Taft called on President Wilson today, and one of the parties of suffragists that paraded past the White House under police escort intended to waylay him and confront him with the banners, but he escaped.

FIREBUGS SENT TO PRISON.

Leader of Band May Stay There for Twenty-five Years.

Joseph Klein, 35 years old, a baker, of 465 Rockaway Avenue, Brooklyn, and the alleged leader of a band of firebugs who operated in East New York, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Lewis L. Fawcett, in the Kings County Court to imprisonment in Sing Sing for not less than twelve years and six months nor more than twenty-five years. The Judge praised Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy and Assistant District Attorney Voss for their work in obtaining evidence.

Judge Robert H. Roy, in another part of the County Court, sentenced Louis Berman and Charles L. Comin, members of the band, to not less than seven years nor more than twenty years in prison. He told the prisoners he was lenient to them because of the aid they gave the authorities in convicting Klein. Judge Norman S. Dyke sentenced Isaac Adelmann of 296 South Fourth Street to the penitentiary for his connection with the band, and permitted Dora Schuster, 24, of 872 Williams Avenue, to go on probation. She had turned State's evidence.

Clark Gets Diploma 50 Years Late.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—A collegiate diploma fifty years overdue was delivered today to Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives. Just half a century ago Mr. Clark was expelled from Transylvania University at Lexington, Ky., "for shooting at a man," as the Speaker explained the incident to his friends. The shooting had no tragic results, and the future Speaker of the House completed his education at Bethany College and the Cincinnati Law School. He was at one time President of Marshall College, West Virginia.

Miss Rosalind Bigelow Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bigelow of Morristown, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Rosalind Bigelow, to William Markham Akin, son of Thomas R. Akin, President of the Laclede Steel Company, whose home is in St. Louis, Mo. Mr. Akin is a member of the class of '19 at Harvard and a member of the Fox and Western Clubs. He is now at Newport in the naval reserve force. No date has been set for the wedding.

McDougall-Allen Wedding Aug. 25.

The marriage of Miss Loraine Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall Allen of New York and Convent Station, N. J., to Allan McDougall, son of Mrs. Allan McDougall of New York, will take place Aug. 25 in St. Peter's Church, Morristown, N. J. Miss Allen was a débutante of last Winter, and her engagement was announced at a large dinner at the Ritz-Carlton early in the Spring.

NOT SELLING CHURCHES.

Col. McLellan Replies to Mr. Myers That Christian Science Is Gaining.

The assertion by the Rev. Cortland Myers of Boston in the course of a denunciation of Christian Science at an open-air evangelistic meeting here on Snuday night, that negotiations were under way for the sale of the Christian Science home church in Boston for a Baptist hospital, because the faith was losing its followers, met with prompt denial yesterday from Archibald McLellan on behalf of the Christian Science Church. From Boston, to which the newspapers carried the Rev. Mr. Myers's statement, Colonel McLellan telegraphed to THE TIMES:

> The statement credited to the Rev. Cortland Myers to the effect that the Christian Science Church in Boston is to be sold is entirely without foundation and untrue. Such action has never been contemplated. Reports at the annual meeting of the Mother Church on June 4 of this year showed a greater increase in membership than ever before in one year, also a greater increase in branch churches. Instead of selling any property, the fact is that the Church has recently acquired additional property to the extent of over one million dollars for the purpose of extending its activities.

CITY TO RAISE ITS OWN JOKES

Chestnut Tree Planted Near Mayor by Press Humorists.

About twenty-five solemn-faced men took part yesterday in the ceremony of planting a chestnut tree in City Hall Park. The function drew a crowd, and it was some time before it became known that the gathering was the fifteenth annual convention of the American Press Humorists. As the emblem of the organization was ceremoniously put into the ground, each member told what was supposed to be a joke. Park Row habitués readily recognized their favorites and smiled out of force of habit, but everybody felt sorry for the tree.

Half an hour earlier the humorists initiated Mayor Mitchel into honorary membership. Instead of telling a real funny one, the Mayor said it wasn't any joke to be Mayor of New York, but he offered the visitors the freedom of the city during their week of convention here. The humorists filed from the Mayor's office to the plot of green just east of the fountain in the park. J. W Higgenbotham, President of the organization, said that two years ago he had attended the planting of a chestnut tree in San Francisco.

"This tree," he said, with suppressed laughter, "is higher than the one in San Francisco, but so is everything else in New York."

Then each humorist packed a spadeful of earth about the tree, and the convention adjourned to take a ride on a ferryboat and dine on the Hotel Majestic Roof.

BABY HIT BY ENGINE, UNHURT

Leo Jasakin, 18 months old, of 502 Eleventh Avenue, had a narrow escape from death last evening when he tried to cross the railroad tracks on Eleventh Avenue in front of a New York Central freight train. The accident occured within view of his mother, who was standing outside her home. The little fellow was caught by the cowcatcher and carried more than a block before John Graham, an engineer of Jersey City, could stop his train.

A crowd gathered expecting to see the child crushed to death. Instead his dress had been caught in the cowcatcher in such a manner that he was lifted clear of the ground. An examination by Dr. Olcott of the New York Hospital, who was summoned by Patrolman Finneran of the West Thirty-seventh Street Station, showed that the baby was in no way injured.

GERMAN PAPERS PROTEST.

LONDON, June 25. — A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Amsterdam says that leading German newspapers are protesting angrily against Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg's decision to allow them to use only 44 per cent. of their former quantity of paper.

The Tageblatt, the Tageszeitung, and the Rundschau of Berlin charge the Chancellor with attempting to kill the German press. The Cologne Gazette says the blow is a deadly one for the German newspapers, which probably soon will cease to exist.

APPROVE ACTION ON COTTON

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Steps taken by the New York Cotton Exchange to prevent undue price fluctuations and eliminate undesirable speculation were announced today by the Department of Agriculture, with the comment that a committee of the Exchange negotiating with the department "showed a laudable desire to bring about stability of the market." Members of the Exchange have been advised against any action which might tend to cause unnecessary variation in prices, the rules have been amended authorizing the Clearing House to require a margin of $25 per bale on future contracts, and a new amendment to the by-laws provides for suspension or expulsion of members for conduct detrimental to the exchange or to the welfare of the nation.

To Lift Quarantine on Boys' Camp.

It was announced yesterday at the headquarters of the U. S. Junior Naval Reserve, 231 West Fifty-eighth Street, that the quarantine against cerebro-spinal meningitis, placed on Camp Dewey, the Summer training camp of the organization, would in all probability be lifted this week. The quarantine was imposed voluntarily by Commandant Physioc, in charge of the camp, purely as a precautionary measure. No cases of the disease have developed since that which caused the quarantine to be imposed, and the only patient is now recovering in Memorial Hospital, New London.

RAISE HALF MILLION TO HELP ZIONISM

GAINING FAVOR IN EUROPE

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 25. — More than $500,000 of the needed $1,000,000 fund for work in behalf of the Zionist movement has been subscribed or pledged at the meetings in connection with the twentieth annual convention of the Federation of American Zionists, the second day's session of which was held at the Academy of Music today. It was an exciting session, in which the forces of the "administration" and the opposition clashed, and the administration won.

Great applause greeted the reading of this cable message from Nahum Sokolow, a member of the Executive Committee of the international Zionist organization, now in London:

> I have just returned from France and Italy with a fresh impression of our triumph and with the realization of the great new progress which our movement has made in the principal centres of our work here in London and throughout Europe. May the present convention open a new and a great chapter in the history of your glorious activities for our national home land in Palestine.

It was announced that Mr. Sokolow had recently reported that he had won the co-operation of France, Italy and the "highest officials of the Catholic Church" for the movement and its claims on Palestine.

Debate on Coming Congress.

Criticism of the report of the Executive Committee marked the business session of the convention. It was the first opportunity offered the opposition to give vent to its disapproval of the methods and policies of the administration. In the end, when the administration forces insisted upon a test of strength of the respective sides, the opposition suffered a decisive defeat.

The contest started immediately after Louis Lipsky, Chairman of the committee, had read the report, details of which he explained orally as he proceeded. The first section, which had to do with the coming American Jewish Congress, recited in detail the "peace agreement" with the non-Zionists, which the latter were said to be inclined not adhere to. That the Zionists in their local elections of delegates had favored their own people was not denied, but the committee insisted that, although in control, they would adhere to the agreement entered into prior to the election with the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and the American Jewish Committee, which were referred to in the report. To break the agreement, continued the report, would mean to violate the understanding upon which action has already been taken.

Mr. Lipsky defended the action taken by the committee as the only course that could be pursued. The responsibility rested upon the Zionists, he said, who, on the first trial of strength had demonstrated that they were in the majority.

Following the reading of the report, a motion was made that it be accepted. Then the debate started. Some of the New York delegates thought the committee had not paid enough attention to the Zionist candidates in that city. Others objected to the peace arrangement.

Ten minutes were allowed Mr. Lipsky to answer his opponents. He criticised the action of the New York contingent especially. When the vote was taken only six were recorded in the negative.

Engineers for Palestine.

A number of civil, mechanical and electrical engineers who are delegates to the convention met and organized the Zionist Society of Engineers for the purpose of lending their technical ability to the work of developing Palestine along national lines. They chose Max A. Greenberg, mechanical engineer, Chairman, and Perez W. Etkes, civil engineer of the Public Service Commission of New York, Treasurer and Secretary. The Executive Committee consists of the Chairman and Secretary, and A. P. Joseph, electrical engineer, department head of the Westinghouse Company of Pittsburgh; B. M. Halpern, electrical engineer, Newark, N. J.; Emanuel N. Mohl, Brooklyn, N. Y., and B. H. Hirschenson, mechanical engineer of the Bureau of Standards, Washington. The engineers will establish a bureau of information and offices at 44 East Twenty-third Street, New York City.

At a meeting of the intercollegiate association nineteen universities and colleges were represented, including Columbia, Yale, Harvard, and Johns Hopkins, by nearly a hundred delegates. The Nathan Straus prize, a massive silver cup, was awarded to the University of Pennsylvania Zionist Society. The Brandeis prize of $100 for the best essay on "Zionism" was awarded to Moche Minuchin of New York. Honorable mention was given to Aaron B. Baroway of Baltimore and Israel Miazlish of Lynn, Mass.

Baltimore, Cleveland, and New London were mentioned as cities where the women have made the best records in collecting Zionist funds. The medical unit is a distinct feature of the women's work, for which $24,111 had been contributed by June 1, to which are to be added a number of special appropriations and pledges up to about $5,000.

It was announced that a conference will be held tomorrow to amend the federation's constitution and give each Zionist more responsibility in the organization. Although the membership is now 21,357, an increase of 6,000 over last year, the per capita collections are only one-third.

BOYS WORKING ON FARMS.

10,000 Are Now Employed in This State, A. F. Payne Reports.

There are now working on farms in this State 10,000 boys between 16 and 21 years, and of this number 2,000 have gone out from this city. Arthur F. Payne, Executive Secretary of the New York Military Training Commission, supplied these figures in addressing a meeting of representatives of the Federal Department of Labor, the Military Training Commission, the Young Men's Christian Association, the Mayor's Committee, the National Advertising Advisory Board, and the farm paper publishers, held at 165 Broadway.

"Plenty of boys are available," he said, "but competent camp supervisors and cooks are difficult to obtain. Thirty camps of New York City boys have been established in this State, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. The boys receive an average of $1.50 to $2 a day, and their expenses for board run about $5 a week. They are living together in tents, schoolhouses, barns, or buildings fitted up for them."

Other speakers were A. E. Roberts, G. B. Sharpe, President of the New York Advertising Club; Collin Armstrong, and O. C. Harn of the National Advertising Advisory Board; Charles W. Burkett of The American Agriculturist; Thomas A. Barrett of the Orange Judd chain of farm papers, and J. B. Buell.

NEW C. O. D. MAIL RATE.

Fee Also Will Include Insurance in Transmission.

The Post Office Department announced yesterday that, beginning on July 1, C. O. D. parcels might be sent for a fee of 10 cents when the value transmitted did not exceed $50, and for a fee of 25 cents when the value was up to $100. Under the new ruling all packages mailed on this basis will be insured against loss or injury.

Postmaster Patten denied that the move had anything to do with the department's proposal to take over the package delivery business of dry goods stores and the like. Mr. Patten said that he had not yet been informed by the Postmaster General that the Government intended thus to co-operate with merchants in the elimination of waste time and service.

CHEAP POTATOES IN PLENTY

All previous records for the shipment of potatoes to the New York market have been broken by the Pennsylvania Railroad during the first twenty working days of June. In that period, as shown by records given out yesterday, 278,362 barrels of the new crop from the Southern States have been delivered for consumption in this city. This exceeds by 53,183 barrels the quantity delivered in the corresponding period of 1916, and is far ahead of the deliveries of any earlier year.

In the last four weeks the wholesale price on the piers for the best grade of potatoes has declined from about $12 a barrel to between $7 and $8.

Notwithstanding the unprecedented shipments of the current season, fewer cars are being used in the trade than were employed for the lighter shipments of last year. This is due to the campaign of education which has been carried on among shippers, to make better use of car space. The potatoes arriving here in the first twenty working days of June were handled in 127 less cars than were required to handle the smaller shipments made in the same interval of 1916.

An unfavorable feature of this year's shipments, due apparently to the large crop and the ready market, has been the employment of the poorest quality of barrels in which potatoes have ever been offered to the railroad for transportation. In consequence, the percentage of loss and damage has been extremely high. Last week, 1,200 barrels of potatoes, arriving in poor condition, due to broken or headless barrels, or to having been shipped wet or mixed with dirt, were sold on the street in front of the piers for from 50 cents to $2 a barrel, when the prevailing market ranged from $5 to $11 a barrel, according to size and quality.

Potatoes have precedence over practically all other forms of freight arriving for delivery in New York City. Pier 28 has been converted into an open market. By agreement with the produce dealers of the city the market opens at 5 A. M., and deliveries to the trucks or teams of buyers may be made as late as 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

In anticipation of still heavier potato shipments, the Pennsylvania Railroad is endeavoring to extend its receiving facilities further. For this purpose arrangements are being made whereby several additional stations, both in New York City and Brooklyn, will be available.

COFFEE IN PRIZE COURT.

British Move to Condemn Suspected Shipments from America.

LONDON, June 25.—Condemnation of 12,000 bags of coffee shipped by Aron & Co., an American house, which was seized on thirteen steamships, was asked by the Crown today in prize court. The Attorney General, Sir Frederick Smith, said that before the war the firm did virtually no business with either Scandinavia or Russia, but that the business had assumed large proportions since the war began. The Crown contended that the goods were intended for Germany.

Aron & Co. deny this assertion, stating that they instructed their agent, Woods, to sell only to Scandinavia and Russia.

J. Aron & Co., Inc., of this city said yesterday that they were interested in only 8,000 of the 12,000 bags of coffee seized by the British. The coffee was shipped in 1915, and has since been released under bond. Aron & Co. expect a decision in their favor on the ground that the shipments were made in the usual course of business. They say that on Sept. 2, 1916, they concluded an agreement with the British Government by which all restrictions were removed against their houses, which are in New York, New Orleans, South America, and Europe.

British Steamer Runs Aground.

CONSPIRACY TRIAL NARROWS

Indictments Dropped to Gain New Witness in Knittel Divorce Case.

Special to The New York Times.

MAYS LANDING, N. J., June 25.—Prosecutor Charles Moore gained what is considered an important new witness today at the trial of William I. Garrison, a lawyer, who, with Mrs. Charles Knittel, Dr. C. B. Weinberg, Kathryn Abrams, Mrs. Mae Abrams, George Herbert, Edward Shaw, and Gertrude McGowan, were indicted on a charge of conspiring to obtain a divorce for Mrs. Knittel. The prosecutor announced that the State had not sufficient evidence on which to try Mrs. Knittel and moved that she be eliminated from the case, and also Mrs. Mae Abrams and daughter Kathryn. The court granted the motion for a severance, leaving Garrison, Herbert, Weinberg, and Gertrude McGowan to face the jury.

It is stated that by the elimination of Mrs. Knittel from the case the State intends to call her husband, who is a realty broker, to testify against the remaining defendants. Had the State pursued the course of retaining Mrs. Knittel as a defendant in this trial it could not have had the benefit of her husband's testimony. The trial will proceed on this basis tomorrow.

AMERICANS IN TURKEY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Secretary Lansing today received an undated telegram from Constantinople via Stockholm saying that all American Consular officers had arrived in Constantinople, together with 49 missionaries from Syria. The missionaries arrived on June 13, and these with 41 Jewish women and children from Palestine, who arrived on June 17, make a total, with the Americans already in Constantinople, of 12 officials with their families and 108 unofficial Americans from the interior.

Permission for the departure of all for Switzerland was granted by the Turkish authorities and the Austrian Government. At the time of sending the telegram, however, specific and individual permission for such passage had not yet been received from Vienna.

The telegram adds that no other Americans are now on their way to Constantinople, but a few more may possibly wish to leave Smyrna and Jerusalem.

MRS. ASTOR GOES TO FRANCE

To Open Near Paris Convalescent Home for Wounded Americans.

Mrs. Vincent Astor sailed recently for France to open near Paris a convalescent home for American wounded, and will be away about six months. Her husband is doing patrol duty along the coast on the steam yacht which he presented to the Government.

Miss Ethel Harriman also sailed recently for France. She will remain there several months, doing relief work.

NEEDED TO DRIVE TRUCKS.

44 American Students Transferred from Ambulance Service.

Twenty-five American students from the University of Missouri and nineteen from Stanford University sailed recently for France to drive motor trucks in the French Army. It had been previously arranged for them to drive ambulances, and the transfer of their services was made on account of the need for men at the French front. One hundred and sixty other Americans also sailed recently to join the American Field Ambulance in France.

All liners leaving the United States for French ports are crowded to the limit of their passenger accommodation. The last vessel carried 368 cabin and 267 steerage passengers, and over 100 persons were shut out. Persons leaving for France or England have to furnish good reasons for making the voyage to get a passport.

WOUNDED OF FRANCE TO BE TREATED HERE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—It was reported today that French sick and wounded would be brought to the United States to lessen the congestion in French hospitals. Quarantine stations in all parts of the United States are being rapidly put into condition to handle these patients. The big problem to the health service of the country, it was said, was to prevent the introduction of contagious diseases from abroad.

The war in Europe is called by Government medical experts here the melting pot of diseases. War, it was said, brings an extra strain and danger, and the perils from diseases become more menacing than in peace time, owing to the fact that war brings longer hours of labor, harder work, less food, less clothing, less warmth, and more nervous strain.

The Public Health Service is planning to extend its work in every part of the country, and expects the co-operation of the people. It will seek to prevent the spread to the country of peculiarly urban diseases. In this connection, it was remarked today that before the civil war typhoid fever was a city disease. The civil war was characterized by epidemics of it, and ever since it has been a rural disease.

Deaths from wounds outnumber deaths from disease in Europe, the first time in history that such has been the case. It was pointed out also that never has the health of any British troops, as an example of what modern medical science has accomplished, been better than that of the British Army today. Pauperism also has disappeared from England during the present war, and crowning the entire situation for the medical scientists is the enormous amount of research work that is being carried on.

ATTACKS THE DRAFT.

United States Mails Circulating a Yiddish Call to Resist It.

"Rational Living," a monthly magazine published in Yiddish in this city, is making use of the United States mails to circulate attacks against the selective draft law. An editorial article in the June number calls on all who oppose the war to declare themselves conscientious objectors, to resist to the last the application of the conscription law, and to go to jail rather than be false to themselves and their "ideals." The article, after referring to the ease with which the power of the Czar was overthrown in Russia, says:

> Are all our other governing institutions, our religious and capitalist structures built on stronger foundations? Would not a little honest effort perhaps prove sufficient to overthrow them like a house of cards? Who knows? The great thing is to dare. We must learn to dare. As Emerson says: "Always do what you are afraid to do."
> This motto should be adopted by all who are opposed to war in general, or to this war in particular. * * * Conscientious objectors, follow me! Every one of you who oversteps his conscience is a traitor to his convictions and a coward.

Capt. Volney O. Chase.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—Captain Volney O. Chase, assistant to Admiral William S. Benson, Chief of Naval Operations, was found dead in bed from heart disease this morning. Captain Chase was one of three brothers who made brilliant records in the navy. The youngest of the three, Captain B. V. Chase, is commander of the battleship Montana. His elder brother was the late Lieutenant Commander Harry Chase.

Captain Volney Chase was one of the ordnance experts of the navy. He was in command of the battleship Virginia when on May 10, 1915, he was ordered to Washington to serve as assistant for operations.

James R. Gray, Editor.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 25.—James Richard Gray, editor in chief of The Atlanta Journal, died here tonight. Mr. Gray was born at Adairsville, Ga., in 1859, and was graduated from the Georgia Agricultural College in 1878. He was admitted to the bar in 1879, and engaged in the practice of law from that year until 1901, when he became editor of The Journal. He was likewise General Manager of that newspaper.

FREDERICK W. WURSTER DIES

Last Mayor of Brooklyn Was a Manufacturer and Banker.

BELGRADE LAKES, Me., June 25.—Frederick W. Wurster, the last Mayor of Brooklyn, whose term was from 1897-98, died yesterday at his Summer home here in his sixty-eighth year. Mr. Wurster was born in Plymouth, N. C., in 1850 of German parents who had come to this country many years before. He was brought to Brooklyn at the age of seven. His father later took him into business in an iron and spring factory which he had established in Kent Avenue, Brooklyn, and at the time of his death Mr. Wurster was a member of this concern.

Mr. Wurster was the twenty-fifth Mayor of Brooklyn and had taken little active part in politics until he entered the cabinet of Mayor Charles A. Schieren as Fire Commissioner. As a business man the point he made in his campaign was the promise to run the city administration on a business basis, and he fulfilled this pledge. He was a trustee, director and incorporator of several of the leading banking and financial institutions of Greater New York.

BIG YEAR FOR GEM IMPORTS.

Total for Last Eleven Months at This Port $41,078,302.

The high cost of living is apparently having no effect on the amount of money being spent in this country for diamonds, pearls, and other jewels. Imports of gems at the Port of New York for the last eleven months reached a grand total of $41,078,302. It was predicted in Maiden Lane yesterday that the June shipments would swell the total for the fiscal year ending Saturday to more than $43,000,000.

According to the statement of a Maiden Lane authority, the general prosperity of the country is reflected in the big gem receipts. He declared that the value of the gems which reach the United States is an excellent barometer of general business condition. This trader expected that war-time business in gems would continue to improve when the big war contracts had been placed and the money put into circulation. High wages, he said, would result in increased purchases by the working classes.

In May gems which passed through the Custom House in this city were valued at $5,022,047. In April the total receipts of gems dropped to $1,900,434, following the declaration of war, and in March the reports showed imports of $1,786,261. February passed the $2,000,000 mark, and the receipts of gems during January jumped to $5,425,656, making a total of $17,096,746 since Jan. 1, 1917. During the months since June 30 last, the imports of gems dropped to $2,397,391 in July, but reached almost record figures in August, when the port statistics showed $5,535,714. In September the total was $3,222,080, in October $4,783,690, and in November $3,222,080. December showed imports of $4,427,688.

The record fiscal year for gems was in 1913, when the total reached $48,788,997. Last year the total was $44,887,826, and in 1915 it dropped to $14,700,847. Prior to that time for several years the imports exceeded $38,000,000, but did not reach the estimate for the current fiscal year except in 1910, when the total was $44,885,057.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

NOTICE OF SALE.

Notice is hereby given that, pursuant to the vote of and to due corporate action by the stockholders of the undersigned, Greene Consolidated Copper Company, a West Virginia Corporation, hereinafter called the Company, at the Annual and General Meeting of said Stockholders, duly held at its New York office in the City and State of New York on the 12th day of June, 1917, and agreeably to the statutes of the State of West Virginia, in such case made and provided, all of the property and assets of the Company, as an entirety, not including, however, its corporate franchise or good will, were sold to the Greene Cananea Copper Company, a Minnesota corporation, hereinafter called the Greene Cananea Company, at the price and consideration and upon the terms and conditions specified in a certain proposition and offer, dated May 23rd, 1917, made by the Greene Cananea Company to and accepted by the Company pursuant to due authority and vote of the stockholders of the Company at their said General and Annual Meeting, subject, however, to the express condition that upon not less than three weeks' notice, to be given by publication in at least three daily newspapers printed and published in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City and State of New York, and in one daily newspaper printed and published in the City of Charleston, in the State of West Virginia, the Executive officers of the Company shall forthwith offer all said property and assets, as an entirety, for sale, for cash, at public auction, to the highest and best bidder therefor, and upon the further express condition that if at said auction no higher or better bid or offer for said property and assets is made or received, then, and in such event, the said proposition of the Greene Cananea Company and the sale of said property and assets to it made by the Company pursuant to the authorization and vote of the stockholders of the Company at their said meeting shall be binding and final and be forthwith consummated.

Notice is further hereby given that, pursuant to said vote and action of the stockholders of the Company at said Stockholders' Meeting, and in compliance with but subject to the aforesaid conditions of such sale as imposed by said stockholders at said meeting, the undersigned, L. D. Ricketts, as President, and J. W. Allen, as Treasurer, of the Company, will offer for sale, at public auction, on the 11th day of July, 1917, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon of that day, on the front steps of the United States Post Office Building, in the City of Charleston, in the State of West Virginia, to the highest and best bidder, all of the property and assets of the Company, as an entirety, not including, however, its corporate franchise or good will.

The said property and assets will be sold as an entirety and for cash only, and the person or persons or corporation or corporations to whom said property and assets may be sold shall and will be required to pay to the Treasurer of the Company, at the time of such sale, in cash or by certified check or cashier's check, ten percentum of the price at which said property and assets are sold to the successful bidder or bidders, and the balance of said purchase price shall be paid to the Treasurer of the Company upon the execution and delivery of good and sufficient instruments of transfer and conveyance.

No bid will be received by the undersigned from any person or corporation offering to bid for said property and assets, as an entirety, unless such person or corporation so offering to bid shall have first deposited with the Treasurer of the Company, as a pledge that he or it will make good his or its bid in case of acceptance, the sum of $2,000,000.00 in cash or certified check or cashier's check.

The undersigned expressly reserve the right to resell said property and assets at public sale, upon like publication, in case any bidder or purchaser shall fail to make good his or its bid, upon the acceptance of the same by the undersigned, by failing to make any payment on account of the purchase price. Upon the failure of any purchaser to make good his or its bid upon the acceptance of the same by the undersigned, by failing to make any payment on account of the purchase price as required in the consummation of his or its purchase, then the moneys, if any, paid by such bidder or purchaser, or the amount deposited with the undersigned by any bidder or purchaser bidding for the property and assets as a whole, shall be forfeited, as a penalty for such failure, and shall be applied toward the payment of any expense of resale and toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property and assets shall be sold at a less price upon resale, and as and for liquidated damages in the premises.

Such sale shall and will be made without valuation, appraisement, redemption, or extension, and the undersigned reserve the right to reject any bid or bids and may adjourn or postpone such sale, and may, without further notice or advertisement, proceed with the sale on any date to which the same may have been adjourned or postponed.

This notice is given and published by order of the Stockholders and of the Board of Directors of the Greene Consolidated Copper Company.

Dated June 18th, 1917.

Dress Goods in Second Hands.

Secondary distributors of dress goods in this market are now marking time so far as spot sales are concerned, and not a great deal of activity in a buying way is to be looked for in the next week or two. Beginning the week after the Fourth, however, a marked revival in house trading is looked for. With most of the salesmen back from the road, tabulation of the advance orders placed for Fall fabrics show them to be considerably in excess of those of a year ago. This is said to be true both of the yardages disposed of and the dollars and cents totals, though a bit more so of the latter than of the former. One big concern reports initial orders totaling $500,000 more than similar ones booked up to this time a year ago. The close of the Spring season also found sales well in advance of 1916.

Burlaps Very Firmly Held.

The feature of the local burlap market, at the opening of the week, was more the firmness with which the goods were held than the amount of business put through. Partly on account of prices, but a great deal more on account of the general scarcity of merchandise, the quantity of goods that changed hands was not large. Reports from Calcutta continue pessimistic, with little to say about the prospects of getting goods, or getting them out of the country after they are bought. The financial situation continues tangled, with the exchange problem still paramount. The price tendency at Dundee is strongly upward. Local prices on standard forty-inch burlaps, more or less nominal, were as follows yesterday: 10½-ounce, 13c.; 10-ounce, 12⅝c.; 8-ounce, 9.85@9.90c., and 7½-ounce, 9.75c.

Low Shoes Selling Freely.

After a later start than usual, sellers of the better class of footwear for women tell of an excellent business in low shoes, especially in patent leather, tan, and white. The call for the better high shoes at the moment is confined pretty largely to sports effects, such as can be worn for golfing, tennis, or hiking, and in these white is far and away the most popular shade. White shoes and pumps have also done well in the more popular-priced goods. In the latter class of merchandise, as well as in men's goods, an excellent advance business has been booked for Fall. While lines of the more expensive shoes for the new season have been assembled, not a great deal has been done on them yet, so far as selling is concerned, by the secondary distributers.

Why Cloth Tops Do Not Take Hold.

One of the reasons advanced here as to why there has not been a more active call to date for women's shoes with fabric tops, especially in the more expensive footwear, is that it is not possible at this time to produce a cloth-topped shoe at a price which will let it compare favorably with an all-kid one, quality considered in both cases. It was said yesterday, for instance, that a square foot of the kind of woolen fabric required to give satisfactory wear costs from 35 to 40 cents. Kid, to be used for a similar purpose, costs around 80 cents to $1 a square foot. In a case where the better cloth and kid are combined, the manufacturing cost, so far as materials are concerned, is only about $1 less than that of an all-kid shoe of a corresponding grade. This difference, as it is reflected in the retail selling price, is said not to be sufficient to induce the average woman to choose the combination boot in preference to the all-kid one.

Gray Goods Open Quietly.

Things were none too active in the local gray goods market yesterday, in spite of the buying movement that was presaged by Saturday's inquiry. Out-and-out sales of printcloths were few and far between, from all accounts, though there was more or less bidding for them. For July 38½-inch 64-60s, for instance, 10⅝ cents was bid unsuccessfully, the goods being held at 10¾ to 11 cents, depending on the seller. For delivery in the closing months of the year bids of 10¾ cents were refused for that construction in certain quarters. For 39-inch 68-72s, bids under the asking price were turned down for August-September shipment. In the coarse goods the sales included nearby 30-inch 3.25-yard drills at 14¾ cents and 40-inch 4.25-yard sheetings at 11 cents for similar delivery. Closing spot quotations on printcloths follow:

39-inch, 68-72s	*12c	38½-inch, 60-52s	9¾c
39-inch, 56-44s	8¼c	38½-inch, 60-48s	9⅛c
38½-inch, 64-64s	10¾c	27-inch, 64-60s	7⅛c

Duty on Cigarette Paper.

The Treasury Department gave notice yesterday that following a report filed by John K. Sague, Appraiser at the Port of New York, it had been decided to change the customs classification of so-called cigarette paper, otherwise known in the trade as cork paper. This paper is received from abroad reeled on bobbins in sheets or strips about 300 meters in length. Up to this time it has been the general practice of the department to tax the article 30 per cent. under that part of Paragraph 340 of the tariff specifying "manufactures of cork and paper, cork chief value." Assistant Secretary Byron R. Newton stated that at the expiration of thirty days the new rate would be 35 per cent. under that clause of the same paragraph providing for "cork paper."

Collections Off a Little?

Concerning collections, reports from various quarters of the business world do not altogether agree at the present time. A well-known credit man in the shoe trade said yesterday that they were not so good as those of a month or six weeks ago, nor were they as good as those of last year at this time. No reasons were advanced for the falling off. It appears in the dry goods trade, however, that if collections from retailers have dropped off, the decline has been so slight as to cause little, if any, concern in the credit offices. With the weather again seasonable, and with a promise of its continuing so, it is asserted that there should be no real reason for a slump in bill-paying now.

Better by Comparison.

A dress goods salesman, in commenting on present conditions in the trade, said, "Business is better now than it was last year at this time." He added reflectively, "but we had a strike then." Although the coat and suit manufacturers have had the situation well explained to them, in so far as prices and the shortage of wool are concerned, only the leading houses in the market seem inclined to take more than the ordinary steps to protect themselves against advances. On the whole, however, the dress goods sellers find a better tone to buying.

New Cloth Meets With Favor.

A new cloth included in the Summer fabric lines for next Spring brought out by a leading house has been almost sold out after a showing of little more than a week. It is composed of a cotton warp with a Scotch wool filling, weighs ten ounces and sells from $1.42 to $1.80 a yard. A notable fact regarding the introduction of this fabric is that several houses, that up to this time have strictly held to an all-wool policy, will use it next year in some of their garments.

Mohairs to Go Up.

Mohairs have sold more largely for next Spring than in the recollection of the trade. While they will be extensively used, it is said, as substitutes for more expensive woolen fabrics the scarcity of raw material is causing the manufacturers of this cloth no little worry. According to a leading factor in this business, as soon as the present contract of his house runs out, which will be in the near future, an increase of from 50 cents to $1 a yard will have to be put into effect. As evidence of the advance that has taken place in such material since the war began, this man quoted a number for which 75 cents was asked three years ago and which is now worth $2.

Goods in Bonded Warehouses.

In a tabulation by J. H. Lant, chief of the Bureau of Statistics in the Custom House, it is shown that, notwithstanding the heavy outward drain in warehoused goods in May, the value of merchandise remaining in bond June 1 was only $18,019,221 below the amount held on May 1. The figures given show that the total value of goods in bonded warehouses in this district June 1, was $51,225,074, against $69,244,295 May 1, and $68,369,615 on April 1.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Advance in an Irregular List on Rate Increase Forecast.

Several conflicting factors in the business outlook produced highly irregular market for stocks yesterday, with most issues closing at higher levels, but with a few marked exceptions on the loss side. The most interesting development was a quickened demand for railway issues, particularly those companies undergoing reorganization. The better demand in this department was due to spread of the belief that the Interstate Commerce Commission has become convinced of the carriers' need for higher rates. It is popularly supposed that the commission will announce its decision in the 15 per cent. rate case at the end of this week, and that it will follow the time of the announcement yesterday of increases for the coal roads.

Among the rails the several issues of the Rock Island signalized the return of that company to the stockholders by selling up easily on moderate activity. The common shares moved up 2¼ points, the 6 per cent. preferred up ⅞ and the 7 per cent. up one point. Delaware & Hudson gained one point, Minneapolis & St. Louis new stock, 2¼, Missouri Pacific, full paid, 3; New York Central, 1¼; New Haven, 1⅛; Norfolk & Western, 2; Pere Marquette, 1½; Reading, 1¼ and Third Avenue, 2⅛. The rise was accompanied by greater strength in the stocks of equipment companies also, American Car and Foundry selling up 2¼, Baldwin, ⅞, and Pullman, 2¾. The copper stocks were in less favor as a result of reports of differences between producers and Government officials over the price to be paid on the large tonnage which must be bought in coming months, and several issues sold off from Saturday's close. The motor stocks had another period of weakness, Maxwell losing 2¼, Studebaker 2 and Willys-Overland ¾.

The market is still uneasy over a possible stringency in money, and activity has been restricted for that reason. The arrival yesterday of $14,600,000 more gold from Canada brings the total imported in the present movement up to $87,500,000, with more in sight. Call money loaned at 6 per cent. throughout the session.

Financial circles are very much interested in the discussion taking place at Washington over the price to be fixed for copper. The producers have had occasion to regret their offer to supply the Government with the metal at 16⅔ cents, for while that quotation applied only to a specific demand for 45,000,000 pounds, the impression has been left that the copper interests should be satisfied to make that rate apply to the much larger requirements now in sight. That price was made before the entrance of this country into the war and costs have mounted very rapidly since then. It is believed in the financial district that an agreement will be reached on the basis of 25 cents a pound, this price to apply also to purchases for the Allies. The main thing now is to insure maximum activity at the mines and smelters where labor troubles are already beginning to make serious inroads upon the output.

GOOD TONE IN LONDON.

American Securities Marked Higher and Close Quiet.

LONDON, June 25.—The money market was fairly well supplied with funds today. Discount rates were steady. Russian and Italian exchange rates showed a better tendency.

The investment section of the stock market maintained a good tone, with more support for Russian issues. The leading oil shares were strong and active and Brazilians were firm, but rubber stocks and Argentine rails were flat. American securities were marked higher and closed quiet.

Prices Firm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, June 25.—Prices were firm on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 60 francs 25 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 88 francs 25 centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

An Open Market for Bonds.

There has yet to develop a real market for the new Liberty bonds, though brokers are coming to realize that there can no longer be any suspicion of wrong doing attached to sales at the market. There should be dealings of from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000 or more daily in this issue when deliveries are made, to make possible the purchase and sale of large blocks without disturbance. The market for the Anglo-French bonds developed much more rapidly than that for the new Government 3½s. A few days after the dissolution of the underwriting syndicate for that issue, which was but one-fourth the size of the Liberty Loan, a banking house which had persuaded a customer to subscribe to $10,000,000 worth was asked to market half the amount if the sale could be effected without demoralizing the price. In fifteen minutes after the receipt of the order $5,000,000 had been sold on the Stock Exchange, and the price was off. When the customer was so advised he wired the bankers: "Good! Do it again." Whereupon, the bankers sold the other $5,000,000 and got the same price as for the first lot. That was a broad market.

Government Copper at 25 Cents.

The Government is going ahead placing contracts for munitions and materials for ships for both the naval and merchant service with a base price of 25 cents a pound for copper, according to information obtained in the copper trade yesterday. The 45,000,000 pounds of copper bought of the producers at 16 2-3 cents a pound before the United States entered the war has gone to the Government contractors, and a round amount, it is said, has also been taken in plate at the 25 cent level. While no announcement has been made that the committee of copper men appointed to look after Government supplies has yet agreed to supply all the metal needed at 25 cents, it is believed in important quarters of the trade that this will be the price. Furthermore, the feeling is growing stronger among producers that the European Allies will be able to cover their requirements for the last half of the year at the same quotation as the United States.

Copper Market Factors.

The copper situation contains elements which cause sober thinking on the part of producers. Strikes, which the management charges to be partly due to pro-German activities, have tied up three of the big mines of the Kennecott Corporation. Labor unrest is reported spreading rapidly in the Butte region, and dispatches from Mexico a few days ago stated that the mines of the Greene-Cananea Company had been closed by strikes. On the top of these adverse influences upon production, the copper men say, will come shortly the seasonal letup in activity at the refineries on account of hot weather. High wages are not expected to stimulate the men to work harder in the warm season than they did when conditions were normal in the copper market; on the contrary, the upbuilding of savings accounts in the current period of prosperity is looked upon as an incentive for taking it easier this Summer.

Wants Gold the Banks Can Spare.

Governor George J. Seay of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, in his letter to member banks on the subject of the transfer of reserves, calls attention to the desirability and importance of members transmiting to the Reserve Bank gold and gold certificates which they "can spare" from their own vaults. He says the Reserve Bank will undertake to pay transportation charges on gold certificates and gold coin sent to it between now and June 30 for the purpose of building up reserves to the required amount. The Richmond Reserve Bank also agrees to pay transportation charges both ways in case where member banks seek to exchange gold for Federal reserve notes.

Transfer of Reserves.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York sent out letters last night advising member banks of the changed reserve requirements provided for in the amendments that became law last week. A number of the large New York City banks have already adjusted their reserves to new conditions, and the others are expected to do so within the next few days. The country banks have been given until July 15 to make their transfers. The Federal Reserve Board has announced that immediate transfers would not be insisted upon and the penalties not imposed until after July 15 because of the board's desire to avoid money market disturbances by a sudden shifting of currency.

Settlements Through Reserve Bank.

All except two of the local banks which are members of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York now settle their daily Clearing House balances through the Reserve Bank. A large number of the non-members make their settlements through member institutions.

Sinclair Oil Financing.

Sinclair Oil stock declined 4¼ points net under a steady outflow of offerings. The Street had a varied assortment of explanations, but out of the mass only one seemed to bear close inspection. This was that the company would shortly need to do some new financing to meet the requirements of a rapidly expanding business. President Sinclair was quoted in Chicago as saying that a plan was being considered for the retirement of the floating debt. In brokerage circles it was rumored that the financing would involve the issue of perhaps 200,000 shares of new stock. Bankers affiliated with the corporation asserted that the method to be followed had not been decided upon.

Reading Railroad Signs.

Week after week the railroad stocks have displayed a stolid, sluggish front where declines did not occur. Yesterday's market supplied practically the first ray of bullish hope seen since the carriers applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for an increase of rates. Traders in commission houses displayed keen interest in the forward tendency of Reading, Union Pacific, Atchison, New York Central and the others, trying to peer into the future with the expectation of an early decision in respect to the rate application.

TO PURCHASE PURE OIL CO.

Details for Merger to Ohio Cities Gas Completed.

Stockholders of the Ohio Cities Gas Company and the Pure Oil Company were notified yesterday that details were complete for the union of the two concerns. The Ohio Cities Company recently authorized the issue of 1,000,000 new shares of stock to finance the purchase of the Pure Oil organization, and this stock is being offered for subscription to shareowners of both companies.

Present stockowners of the Ohio Cities Company of record July 8 have the right to take up new stock at par, $25 a share, up to 200 per cent. of their holdings. The option must be exercised by July 28. Pure Oil shareholders have the right to subscribe for 100,000 shares at $60 a share. The Ohio Cities management has set aside 800,000 shares to cover the subscriptions of the company's own stockholders, and 100,000 shares have been underwritten by a banking syndicate.

When the transaction is completed the Ohio Cities Company will have outstanding $35,000,000 common stock. Acquisition of the Pure Oil Company brings to the purchasing concern valuable oil land holdings, refineries, pipe lines, and a widespread distributing organization.

NOW A U. P. OFFICIAL.

William M. Jeffers Started Railroading as a Messenger Boy.

OMAHA, June 25.—William M. Jeffers, who started railroading as a messenger boy at North Platt, Neb., twenty-eight years ago, was today chosen Vice President of the Union Pacific Railroad.

Mr. Jeffers has been General Manager of the railroad for several years. He retains the General Managership with his new duties. The appointment becomes effective July 1. Mr. Jeffers is about 41 years of age.

$14,600,000 GOLD ARRIVES.

Many Millions More Are Expected from Canada This Week.

The inflow of gold across the border from Canada was increased by $14,600,000 yesterday, consigned to J. P. Morgan & Co. The shipment, like others recently received for account of the British Government, was lodged in the Federal Reserve Bank. Many millions more are expected before the end of the week.

Since Jan. 1 gold imports have amounted to $482,531,000, bringing the half-billion mark for the first six months within reaching distance. The gold is being refined and recast into bars at the Assay Office as rapidly as the facilities permit and then returned to the Reserve Bank's vaults.

ASK BROAD MARKET FOR LIBERTY BONDS

Loan Committee Says Sentiment Ought Not to Govern Dealings.

NO RESTRICTIONS ON PRICE

Bankers Believe Substantial Demand Will Be Awakened if Trading Is Open.

The Liberty Loan Committee, which consists of leading bankers of the financial district, discussed the desirability of a broad market in the new Liberty 3½ per cent. bonds at a meeting yesterday. It was learned that the opinion was general among the committee members that sentiment ought not to be allowed to govern dealings, preventing sales at prices under par, if a downward tendency should develop. The bankers asserted that the market should be allowed to take its own course.

Benjamin Strong, Jr., Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, issued this statement:

"I am instructed by the Liberty Loan Committee of this district to state that in the opinion of the committee it is important that there be a wide and normal market for Liberty Loan bonds—unrestricted as to price or otherwise."

Dealings in the 3½s on the Stock Exchange showed more clearly than on preceding days that the moral restrictions put upon trading had "pegged" the price close to par. The turnover in "when issued" contracts amounted to less than $875,000, of which all but $116,100 changed hands at 100. A number of Stock Exchange houses, it was found, were reluctant to handle business in the Liberty bonds while the feeling held strong that no bids under par should be considered.

Inquiries showed that bankers and brokers were by no means convinced that a removal of the sentimental bar would be followed quickly by sales under the face value of the bonds. The heavy oversubscription indicated to the satisfaction of numerous observers of the investment market that a substantial demand for the Liberty 3½s was lying dormant, and would be likely to awaken if trading became free.

The Federal Reserve Bank received from Washington a quantity of temporary certificates for the bonds. The work of attaching the proper official signatures was begun, and a substantial amount of the certificates will be ready for distribution within a few days. As they will stand for the time being in place of the definite certificates, deliveries can be made and money paid over. So far the dealings on the Stock Exchange and among outside bond houses have been in contracts, calling for payment when the bonds were delivered.

WASHINGTON NOT OPPOSED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—Feeling in Washington is not unfriendly to the idea advanced by the New York Liberty Loan Committee that there should be unrestricted trading in war bonds. With regard for a conservative attitude toward the loan as it makes its way into the public confidence no high official of the Government would tonight express a positive opinion as to the wisdom of the course advocated by Benjamin Strong, Governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, in his announcement today in favor of open trading in Liberty Loan bonds. The widest opinion here is that so long as there is no restriction in law or Governmental policy as to the use made of the bonds there might develop a speculative enhancement of the bonds in the eyes of the investment public, which would materially assist in placing the next issue to be announced within a few weeks.

Already there is apparent a feeling that the large oversubscription of the first issue assures the prompt absorption of the next issue. The evidence that the bonds are going to a premium, while highly gratifying to the Administration, is also a positive indication of the success of the loan, as the successive issues are brought out.

Another phase of the matter is the very probable acceptance of the next issue at the same rate of interest at which the first issue was offered. There has been a substantial expectation that the second issue would be offered at 4 per cent. instead of 3½, and this would, of course, under the terms of the subscriptions to the first issue, involve the conversion of the first issue into bonds drawing 4 per cent. The burdens of the Government would be very considerably lightened if the attitude of the business world toward the value of the Liberty Loan should be such as to avoid the bonds now to be issued into those of a higher rate.

It has been shown that in view of the taxation program of Congress the 3½ per cent. non-taxable bond, as compared with a taxable 4 per cent., is at the date of issue essentially at a premium. As this fact is realized it will have its effect in the proposed trading in war bonds and lift the successive issues out of all question of sentiment.

There is now little doubt that the large oversubscription to the first issue will stand as a subscription to the next issue. An announcement that subscribers will have the option to take bonds of the next issue is expected as soon as plans for the next issue have shaped themselves more definitely. That the bonds will steadily advance to a handsome premium and find a strong, normal market is confidently expected by the leading financiers of the Government, and there is reasonable ground for believing that Governor Strong's suggestions will be indorsed effectively here within a short time.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Controller of the Currency has issued a call for the condition of national banks as of June 20.

C. E. Danforth of the Stock Exchange firm of Van Emburgh & Atterbury has been elected a Director of the American Hide and Leather Company, succeeding William Stuart Cox, resigned.

The Directors of the Trumbull Steel Company have recommended a capital increase from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000, with an offering of new stock. Proceeds will be used for increasing the output of open hearth and plate departments and the purchase of coal lands now under option.

The Public Service Commission has had a hearing upon the application of the New York and Richmond Gas Company for authority to issue $2,214,000 thirty-year bonds. The company asks for authority to execute a first refunding mortgage to the Central Trust Company, as trustee, and to issue thereunder bonds in the amount mentioned.

Stuyvesant Fish Morris, Jr., has withdrawn from the firm of Morris & Smith, 66 Broadway. Robert G. Kennedy and St. John Smith will continue the business of the firm at the present address.

Gold coin to the amount of $200,000 has been withdrawn from the Sub-Treasury for shipment to Cuba.

The Kings County Electric Light and Power Company has had a hearing before the Public Service Commission upon its application for approval to issue $1,000,000 additional bonds, the proceeds to be applied to reimbursement of the treasury of the company for expenditures on improvements made between January, 1900, and Sept. 30, 1909.

Hodenpyl, Hardy & Co., Inc., announce the election of Harry M. Tingle as Vice President and Director to succeed A. H. Johnson, resigned. He will have charge of the securities department.

The Mechanics and Metals National Bank has issued a booklet analyzing the amendments to the Federal Reserve act, approved by President Wilson last week.

Alfred Esberg, First Vice President of the General Cigar Company, is to retire from that company on Aug. 1. Mr. Esberg will continue as a Director.

A. F. Cronhardt, formerly with Carter & Co., has become associated with Liggett & Drexel as manager of their Stock Exchange department.

Rise to $25,000,000 Approved.

Stockholders of the Guaranty Trust Company yesterday ratified a proposal to increase the capital stock from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000. The $5,000,000 new stock will be offered for subscription at par at the rate of 25 per cent. of their holdings on or before July 16. The shareowners of record June 25 may subscribe.

THE COTTON MARKET

Prices Break $4 a Bale, October Selling Down to 25.82—Net Loss 72-81 Points.

Cotton prices broke about $4 a bale yesterday, with October deliveries selling down to 25.82c, or 81 points below Saturday's closing figures and 96 points under Saturday's high record. Notwithstanding the extent of this price movement, trading was only moderately active, and there was little or no excitement. Reports of beneficial rains in the Southwest and the failure of a bulletin private condition report, issued before the opening, to create any fresh buying power of consequence, seemed to increase a disposition to take profits on long cotton. Over Sunday, many traders realized that the upward movement last week was not fully warranted by conditions and that prices were unreasonably high to be either healthy or permanent. Scattered selling for a reaction after the big advance of Saturday may also have been a factor on the decline, while there were comparatively few buyers in evidence, with the market closing irregular at a net loss of 72 to 81 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 19 to 27 points on the Texas rain reports. There was some trade buying early, while selling was held in check by the private report from Memphis indicating a condition of 70.1 against 72.8 toward the end of last month. But prices gradually eased off, with the market becoming weak during the afternoon. Closing prices were at practically the low point of the day.

The detailed weather report for the Houston district showed rain at about twenty out of fifty stations reporting, and that at only seven of the stations was the precipitation in excess of an inch. This was somewhat disappointing to early sellers, who had been led to expect more general rains, and the report was followed by a flurry of covering around midday. Where rain fell, however, it was considered beneficial, and the market evidently lacked its recent support.

An official cable from Liverpool said that the futures market there would reopen on Friday morning should nothing unforeseen occur for trading under new conditions which would be communicated to members on Thursday. It is expected that Havre will reopen at the same time, and under the same conditions.

Two private crop reports have now been issued, indicating a lower condition than toward the end of May, but there was doubtless a feeling yesterday that bullish ideas of the coming bureau have been discounted on the advances of late last week. Reports of a reduced Russian acreage attracted bullish comment during the morning, and it was considered that the pressure to turn out goods in New England mill circles was reflected in advertisements urging operatives to take only short vacations.

Exports for the day were 21,483 bales, making 5,131,335 so far this season.

WHEAT.

The wheat trade believes that the Food Control bill will in all probability become a law this week and in consequence the market yesterday was inactive and nervous. The undertone was easier, with prices ranging around 3 to 4 cents below those of Saturday in Chicago, but at the close the Minneapolis cash market experienced a perpendicular drop of 20 to 25 cents. The visible supply in the United States decreased 4,483,000 bushels for the week, compared with a decrease of 2,311,000 last year, while the Canadian visible increased 614,000, against a decrease of 812,000 a year ago. Exports from leading shipping countries for the week were 10,619,000 bushels, compared with 12,762,000 the previous week and 14,088,000 last year. In the local cash market No. 2 hard Winter wheat was quoted at $2.39 free on board to arrive. Rye—Market quiet; No. 2 Western $2.40 cost, insurance and freight New York.

CORN.

The corn crop in the Southwest was relieved by good rains in portions of Texas and Oklahoma, and the crop outlook as a whole was favorable. As a result prices declined over a cent a bushel early under commission house selling, but rallied in the afternoon, and the close was steady, with net gains of ⅛c to 1⅛c. The cash position was strong, and export sales were estimated at 250,000 bushels. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $1.85½, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

The oats market was moderately active but price change were narrow, closing net unchanged to ¼c lower. Crop accounts were very favorable and served to offset the strength in corn and the reports of export sales of 200,000 bushels. The visible decreased 2,261,000 bushels, and the total was 11,531,000, against 14,066,000 last year. The local cash market was dull; standard quoted at 74½c; No. 2 white, 74½c, nominal; No. 3 white, 73½c, nominal; No. 4 white, 73c; fancy clipped white, 75@76½c; ordinary clipped white, 73@74½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products was comparatively quiet and price changes were narrow. The undertone was barely steady, owing to a less active cash demand and an easier tone to the live hog market. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 45,000 head; estimated for today, 15,000; Kansas City received 6,000, and Omaha 6,700.

COFFEE.

The coffee market was lower again yesterday as a result of further scattering liquidation, most of which was in the form of switching from July to later deliveries. Including such operations, sales were reported of 37,000 bags, with the market closing at a net loss of 3@6 points. The local spot market was dull and nominally unchanged at 9⅝c for Rio 7s and 10⅛c for Santos 4s.

SUGAR.

While the total transactions in the market for sugar futures was quite heavy, a good deal of the business was in the form of switches, July being exchanged for January at 10 points and for December at 12 points. Total transactions were 36,600 tons. Prices gradually worked higher and closed unchanged to 6 points net higher, distant positions showing the maximum gain. Range of prices:

The local market for raw sugar was firmer and prices were 1-16c higher, with a better demand reported from local refiners, influenced by the continued good inquiry for refined from both domestic and export buyers. Business was placed at 125,000 bags of Cubas, afloat, prompt and early July shipment at 5c, cost and freight. The close was firm at 5c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 6.02c for centrifugal and 5.14c for molasses. The demand for refined sugar was good, prompted by the continued favorable weather, and prices were steadily held at former levels, all refiners quoting on the basis of 7.50c for fine granulated. Export business was also good, and it was said that Great Britain purchased 25,000 tons of refined last week.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 10,929 packages. The market declined ½c from the extreme figures that were current on Saturday. At the lower rates trade was fair, though the market had rather an unsettled tone at the close. Creamery, higher than extras, per pound, 39¾@40¼c; extras, (92 score,) 39@39¼c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 37¾@38¾c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 36@37½c; thirds, 34½@35½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 40½@41c; extras, 39½@40c; firsts, 38¼@39¼c; seconds, 37¼@38c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 38½@39c; good to prime, 36½@38c; common to fair, 33@36c; renovated, extras, 37½c; firsts, 36@37c; lower grades, 33@35c; imitation creamery, firsts, 35@36c; ladles, current make, firsts, 33½@34c; seconds, 32½@33c; lower grades, 31@32c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 32½@33c; No. 2, 32c; lower grades, 30@31½c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 15,050 cases. There is rather a light supply of strictly fine fresh eggs in the market, and any receipts that show a good to large proportion of such are meeting a fair demand at steady to firm prices. Good average qualities are selling at about previous quotations, with a moderate demand. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 35@36c; storage packed, firsts, 34@34½c; fresh gathered, extra firsts, 34@34½c; firsts, 32@33c; seconds, 30@31c; thirds and poorer, 25@29c; dirties, No. 1, 27½@28½c; No. 2 and poorer, 23@27c; checks, good to choice, dry, 26@27c; undergrades, 23@25c. CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The sharp advance in Crucible Steel, which carried it on the Consolidated Stock Exchange to a high price of 88⅝, was a late afternoon feature of the market. Baldwin Locomotive and American Car and Foundry were two other "war stocks" which displayed special firmness. The railroad stocks were generally strong and were favorably influenced by reports that the Interstate Commerce Commission was likely to hand down almost at once a favorable decision in the matter of the granting of higher rates to the roads. In the early afternoon the general list tended toward recession under the leadership of United States Steel common.

CAPITALIZATION

$5,000,000 First Mortgage 6% Gold Bonds, Due April 1, 1927.
250,000 shares of stock—without nominal or par value.

The Corporation was formed to take over the property, business and assets of The National Conduit and Cable Company, the National Brass & Copper Tube Company, and of the New York and Hastings Steamboat Company, and assumed all of the liabilities of said several companies as of April 1, 1917.

The Company manufactures cables and wire, brass rods, copper sheets and other copper and brass products, and owns, maintains and operates barges, lighters and tugs and other apparatus to constitute its own shipping facilities. Its chief business is done with the telephone and telegraph companies and large electrical concerns.

The only funded debt of the Company consists of $5,000,000 first mortgage six per cent. Ten-Year Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, which have been issued and are outstanding. These bonds are dated April 1, 1917, and mature April 1, 1927. The mortgage securing these bonds provides for an annual Sinking Fund of 2½% of the issue, and in addition thereto, that one-half the net earnings of the Company in excess of a sum equivalent to $4 per share upon the authorized and outstanding capital stock and the aggregate of the interest upon the bond issue aforesaid, shall be applied in redemption of said bonds each year. All redeemed bonds are to be cancelled.

The Company owns in fee approximately thirty-eight acres of water-front property located at Hastings-on-the-Hudson, New York, between the tracks of the New York Central Railroad Company and the Hudson River, having a total frontage of approximately 2,000 feet and an average depth of about six hundred feet. The buildings on this land cover about twenty acres of floor space, and may be divided generally into two departments, the brass mills and the wire mills.

The Company also owns and operates a subsidiary company which owns lighters, barges and tugs which are used in transporting freight between the Company's plant at Hastings-on-the-Hudson and New York Harbor, known as New York and Hastings Steamboat Company.

Business continues under the same successful and conservative management, which from an initial investment of $4,000 thirty years ago has built up a company with approximately $14,000,000 assets. Plant, building, machinery and floating equipment have been appraised by Examining Engineers at $6,600,000. Net quick assets on April 1, 1917, after the addition of $1,500,000 working capital amounted to $7,053,909. Total Net Assets after deducting $5,000,000 of bonds equal to approximately $35 per share for the total outstanding stock.

Net Profits of the old companies for 1915 were $1,867,863, and for 1916 were $3,324,036, and for 1917 are conservatively estimated at over $4,000,000. Net Profits for the first three months of 1917 were $1,612,210.

All legal matters pertaining to the organization of the new company and to the issuance of the stock have been approved by Messrs. Roberts, Montgomery & McKeehan of Philadelphia, Pa., and Beekman, Menken & Griscom, New York City. The engineering examination and appraisal has been made by Messrs. Thompson & Black, Examining Engineers, and the accounts of the company have been examined by Messrs. Lybrand, Ross Brothers & Montgomery, Certified Public Accountants.

This advertisement appears as a matter of record only, all the stock offered by the undersigned having been sold.

To the Holders of Seven Per Cent. Cumulative Adjustment Mortgage Gold Bonds

and Bond Scrip Certificates

Issued under the Mortgage and Deed of Trust dated May 1, 1912, made by said Company to The New York Trust Company, as Trustee:

The District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York having on May 17, 1917, rendered a decision directing a decree for more than $32,272,000 against The Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Company in favor of The Equitable Trust Company of New York, as Trustee of the mortgage securing the First Mortgage Five Per Cent. Thirty-year Gold Bonds of Western Pacific Railway Company, the undersigned, holding and representing large amounts of the Seven Per Cent. Cumulative Adjustment Mortgage Gold Bonds above mentioned, believe it imperative that the holders of such Bonds be in position to take prompt and concerted action for the protection of their interests, and, therefore, have consented to act as a committee for the protection of the interests of the holders of the Bonds.

It is to the advantage of the Bondholders promptly to deposit their Bonds with the Committee in order to participate in the benefits to be gained by concerted action on the part of a large majority of the Bonds.

The holders of the Bonds and of Bond Scrip Certificates are urgently requested to deposit their Bonds, with the October 1, 1917, and subsequent coupons, and their Scrip Certificates on or before June 30, 1917, with The New York Trust Company, 26 Broad Street, New York City, the Depositary under an agreement, dated June 1, 1917, providing for such deposits. Deposits may also be made with First Trust & Savings Bank, 68 West Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois, the Agent of the Depositary. Transferable certificates of deposit will be issued therefor.

The Committee will promptly pay any interest which may be received by it on the deposited Bonds to the holders of the certificates of deposit representing the Bonds in respect whereof such payments of interest shall be made, deducting any income tax required to be withheld.

Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained by application either to the Depositary or to its Agent above mentioned.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Several important sales are pending, however, and there was a well-founded rumor in circulation to the effect that a big deal on Seventh Avenue, in the Times Square section, had been closed, but it could not be verified.

The half-million-dollar trade involved the three five-story apartment houses occupying the block front on the east side of Haven Avenue, between 178th and 179th Streets, which were sold by the Nevah Construction Company, of which Joseph Reiss is President. They are fully rented, and were held at $325,000.

In part payment the Nevah Company took the six three-story and basement dwelling at 245 to 257 West Thirty-seventh Street, occupying a plot 100 by 100 feet, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues.

According to the records they are owned by Richard Vallendar, and were held at $200,000. It is the intention of the new owners to tear down the old structures at once and erect a six-story modern garage, for which, it is said, a tenant has been secured on a twenty-one-year lease. S. & J. H. Albert and J. V. Graham negotiated the transaction.

Investor Buys Tenement.

An investing client of William A. White & Sons has purchased from Mrs. Mackay Smith 335 and 337 East Ninety-fifth Street, a five-story tenement, on a plot 30 by 100.

Bronx Sales.

The Herman Knepper Company bought for a client 340 St. Ann's Avenue from Charles H. and Carrie K. Goebel, a four-story flat, on a lot 25 by 100. The purchaser will improve with stores.

Nicholas Lopard and T. Stroh sold for A. Hamilton & Sons the new five-story twenty-five family apartment house 114 Field Place, 57 feet west of Creston Avenue and 184th Street, to a client for investment.

Brooklyn.

The Bulkley & Horton Company sold 1,253 Pacific Street, a three-story and basement residence, between Bedford Avenue and Nostrand Avenue, for the Whitney estate to a client for occupancy.

Sales in Queens Borough.

The S. & L. Construction Company sold to J. Levy of Far Rockaway five plots on the west side of Harriman Court. Four of the plots are 40 by 85 feet and are situated on the southwest corner of Harriman Court and Bay Avenue, 400 feet south of Bay Avenue, and a plot, 120 by 85 feet, 200 feet south of Bay Avenue, Edgemere.

The Simonson Realty Company sold to R. A. Skelton a plot, 50 by 100 feet, on the east corner of Chicago and Horton Streets, Elmhurst.

A. L. Simis sold to H. A. Sopper, a large tract of land on the northwest corner of Bayview and Healy Avenues, Far Rockaway, and to E. N. Dean, 60 by 100 feet, on the east side of Fulton Avenue, 199 feet north of Sea Girt Avenue, Far Rockaway.

Staten Island.

J. Sterling Drake sold for John S. Hughes of Hudson, N. Y. to Peter Larsen, the corner of Lathrap and Willard Avenues, Westerleigh, a plot 40 by 75 for improvement with a private dwelling.

New Jersey.

Anna Jackson has sold to the International Mortgage Company, 193 acres on the Middle County Road, New Jersey. This tract is contiguous to the 7,000 acres taken by the United States Government for the cantonment, which is to shelter 40,000 United States soldiers.

Westchester County.

The Robert E. Farley organization has sold for Crandall & Henderson a house on Wickes Avenue, Yonkers, to Gaston Barre of Yonkers.

The auction sale of property at Caryl, Yonkers, conducted on the premises Saturday by Joseph P. Day, realized a total of $52,825. The sale was for the account of the estate of David R. Heine and the Landscape Realty Company. M. Scheuer, of Montgomery, Ala., was a buyer securing the two-and-a-half-story residence 14 Elinor Place, 50 by 95, for $5,450. Other buyers of dwellings in Elinor Place were: No. 9, 75 by 100, George C. White, for $5,900; 10, 59 by 95 by irregular, R. J. Walsh, for $5,500; 19, 50 by 100, Rudolph H. Laubenheimer, for $5,025; 20, W. R. Warren, for $5,100; 39, 50 by 100, Charles S. Steele, for $5,250; 52, 120 by 135 by irregular, B. A. Cashman, for $6,000, and 53, Ed J. Hand, for $6,200.

Max Lessinger of Yonkers purchased the southwest corner of Landscape and Wellesley Avenues, a plot 150 by 100, for $6,400. John J. Reilly, also of Yonkers, bought a plot, 50 by 100, opposite, on Landscape Avenue, for $2,000.

Commercial Leases.

The Charles F. Noyes Company leased for the Euler & Robeson Company for a term of years the two six-story and basement buildings 25 Ferry Street and 2 and 2½ Jacob Street to the Hide and Leather Storage Company, Inc.

Vincent P. Goodwin, President of the Ansonia Garage, Inc., formerly of Broadway and Seventy-fifth Street, leased from the Young estate for a long term of years the three-story and basement building, 50 by 100, at 512 and 514 West 161st Street. The property is to be extensively altered for an up-to-date garage. M. M. Hayward & Co. negotiated the lease.

Anna Zagat has leased to Hyman Iceland the buildings known as 2,848 and 2,850 Broadway, near 110th Street, for a term of seven years. Morris Bleetstein negotiated the lease.

Realty Notes.

The realty holdings of four large estates will be sold at public auction in the Vesey Street Salesroom at noon today by Joseph P. Day.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Pressure is high generally east of the Mississippi River and over the Far Northwest, and it is low over a narrow belt extending from Minnesota southwestward to Arizona. This distribution has been attended by moderately warm weather throughout the South and the Lower Ohio and Middle Mississippi Valleys and the Plains States. The weather has become considerably warmer in the region of the great lakes and the Far Northwest.

Scattered showers have occurred within the last twenty-four hours throughout the South Atlantic and Gulf States, the Upper Mississippi Valley, and the lake region.

Indications are that the weather will be unsettled, with probably showers, in the north border States from the great lakes to the St. Lawrence Valley, and generally fair elsewhere east of the Mississippi River during Tuesday and Wednesday.

Temperature will rise Tuesday in the lake region, and Tuesday and Wednesday in the Middle Atlantic States and New England.

Winds for Tuesday and Wednesday along the North and Middle Atlantic Coasts will be gentle to moderate south, fair; South Atlantic Coast, gentle variable, fair.

FORECAST TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair in south, overcast in north Tuesday; warmer; Wednesday, fair except probably showers in extreme north.

Southern New England, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania.—Probably fair and warmer Tuesday and Wednesday.

Western New York—Overcast and warmer Tuesday, probably followed by local thunder showers Tues. night and Wednesday.

Northern New England — Overcast and warmer Tuesday; Wednesday unsettled, probably showers in interior.

3 A. M.	62	61	4 P. M.	67	73
6 A. M.	61	60	6 P. M.	69	77
9 A. M.	62	65	9 P. M.	69	69
12 M.	66	72	11 P. M.	68	67

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 69; for the corresponding date last year it was 66; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 71. The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 65; at 8 P. M. it was 70; maximum temperature, 78 degrees at 5 P. M.; minimum, 60 degrees at 5:30 A. M. Humidity, 72 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 68 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.11 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.19 inches.

A vacancy at the Frankford Arsenal, Philadelphia, Penn., at an entrance salary ranging from $2,500 to $3,000 a year, will be filled from this examination. The duties consist in the superintendence of the manufacture of shrapnel, shell, detonating and time fuses, and cartridge cases, and of the assembling of these as completed rounds of ammunition. The applicant should have a knowledge of shop management, of the planning, routing, and inspection of work, and of the various manufacturing operations and tests of products. He should have a thorough knowledge of the influence of tools, fixtures, and gauges in the production in quantity of the components of artillery ammunition, and of the best methods of providing for their manufacture, inspection, and issue to workmen. It is essential that the applicant should have a knowledge of the methods by which the costs of the various components and operations are ascertained, and of the influence that such costs have in economical shop management. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on education and preliminary experience, and responsible experience. The applicant must have had at least a high school education or four years of study in a school offering a course equivalent to that of a high school, and an extensive mechanical training, and have filled for at least two years a responsible technical or executive position in an establishment producing components of artillery ammunition, and have a working knowledge of all the manufacturing processes. Applicants must not have reached their fiftieth birthday on the date of the examination. Applications should be filed at the earliest possible date. They will be rated immediately upon receipt and appointments made promptly.

Education Notes.

The semi-annual reunion of the Alumni Association of Public School 147, 293 East Broadway, will take place at the school, June 27, at 8 P. M. The dancing feature will be held on the roof of the school. Tickets may be obtained from class delegates or at the door of the school on the evening of the reunion. Teachers will be present to welcome the alumni.

Beginning September next, the three city training schools for teachers will be prepared, without additions to their teaching staff, to give graduate courses to classes of teachers in the elementary schools in physical training and hygiene, drawing, penmanship, arithmetic, geography school organization and class management in the three schools; kindergarten in the Brooklyn and New York Training Schools; music in the Jamaica Training School and school dramatics in the Brooklyn Training School. These courses are not to be those now offered to the undergraduates of the training schools, but are to be in every sense graduate courses in theory and practice, and are designed to afford teachers, who have shown some aptitude in these subjects, an opportunity to study under the best conditions while they teach and without cost.

In order to comply with the physical training requirements of the Welsh act, City Superintendent Maxwell has informed the private school Principals that the two-minute setting up exercises are required at the beginning of each class period, or at least four times every school day, instead of three times during the school day as heretofore.

Principals of Public Schools, in which the census is taken, have been informed by Superintendent Maxwell that they are sworn not to divulge what is placed on the census cards, that the matter is confidential and not supposed to be read, and that the information given should not be made use of.

Girls belonging to the Girl Scouts organization were excused yesterday from attendance at school, with the exception of those in the intermediate schools taking an examination. A copy of the order, relating to city employes enlisting or volunteering, without the consent of the Mayor, has been forwarded to the Principals of Public Schools.

The Board of Superintendent has ruled that the relieving of a retired teacher is not a condition precedent to re-employment.

Graduation exercises will be held at the Washington Irving High School this evening. Secretary Palmer of the Board of Education will speak.

This year, its ninth session, the Summer High School for Girls will offer greater opportunities than ever before. The equipment of the Washington Irving High School building, East Sixteenth Street, Manhattan, will be utilized to its fullest capacity. In the office practice room practical work will be done in office routine, in the actual manipulation of the following machines: Addressograph, multigraph, comptometer, dictaphone, roller copier, mimeograph, and all types of filing cabinets. There will be classes in all grades of every branch of academic and commercial high school subjects. Students who have failed may review. Those who wish to take advanced work will be limited to two subjects. Certificates of scholarship and attendance will be awarded on Aug. 31.

POLICEMAN INJURED AS AUTO KILLS HORSE

BURNS AFTER HOT CHASE

Mounted Policeman John L. McMillan of the Coney Island Station was seriously injured and his horse, Magic, was killed last night in Ocean Parkway by an automobile, which continued at high speed without stopping. Within seven minutes after the accident the police in every booth in the district were notified, and the runaway car was caught, after a mile and a half chase, and its three occupants were arrested. The chase really ended when the automobile caught fire and was destroyed.

McMillan on Magic was standing in the Parkway near Neptune Avenue about 11 o'clock. The automobile, going toward Coney Island at a rate said to have been forty miles an hour, struck the horse on the flank, killing him instantly. The rider was thrown twelve feet away and landed on his head. Without a pause, spectators said, the automobile, a heavy, seven-seated one, swerved, and turning sharply into Neptune Avenue, started in the direction of Sheepshead Bay.

An automobilist who witnessed the accident took down the number of the car, and, blowing a police whistle, started at high speed toward Coney Island. Near the end of the Parkway Policeman Roscoe Jenkins halted the automobile and in a few words the chauffeur told of the accident. The policeman ran to a telephone and notified the Coney Island Station to send out an alarm.

One of those who heard the warning was Policeman Frank A. Smith, in the booth at Emmons and Ocean Avenue, Sheepshead Bay. This is the turning place where Ocean Avenue, the only driveway out of Sheepshead Bay begins. Smith ran from the booth and learned from the crowd on the corner that the automobile wanted had just turned the corner and was headed for the city at high speed. Smith commandeered an automobile and then began a chase that ended in the capture near Kings Highway.

At Ocean Parkway, near the Shelbourne, the automobile caught fire. Smith got his prisoners out and they stood on the sidewalk and watched the automobile burn. At the station house where they were charged with felonious assault the prisoners said they were: Anthony Esopito of 323 East Sixteenth Street, the owner and driver of the car; Jacob Fullerman, a saloon keeper of 312 Avenue C, and Christopher Grespino, a junk dealer of 611 East Fourteenth Street, all of Manhattan.

McMillan was taken to the Coney Island Hospital, where it was found that he had a fractured skull and internal injuries. It is believed that his injuries are mortal. He lives at 1,191 Hancock Street, Brooklyn.

ADMITS AUTO SHOOTING.

Process Server Says He Feared Attack—Killed Girl by Mistake.

Michael J. Nagliano, a process server, of 324 East 118th Street, confessed yesterday, according to the police, that he had fired the shots that killed Helen Wheelan of 168 East 127th Street and seriously wounded Frank Devlin, a private detective, of 140 West 103d Street, in a fight in an automobile at 134th Street and Willow Avenue, the Bronx, on Sunday night. A charge of homicide has been made against him.

Nagliano said that the party had been riding in the automobile for several hours before the shooting occurred, and that Devlin and Harold Butler of 105 East 128th Street got out to fight. Devlin knocked Butler down several times, and then attacked Nagliano. When Devlin walked toward Miss Wheelan Nagliano said he began to shoot, because he thought Devlin had left his gun in the possession of the woman. Nagliano said he thought he was firing in self-defense, because Devlin had been telling Miss Wheelan to "show him the gun."

DISGUISED POLICEMAN SHOT

Two detectives on the staff of Inspector Frank Tierney of the Eighth Inspection District in Brooklyn who were sent out disguised as sailors in the United States Navy to gather evidence in resorts frequented by sailors were attacked by a gang at Pearl and High Streets, Brooklyn, at 1 o'clock this morning. As a result of the shooting, in which several shots were fired, Detective Michael J. Morgan is in the Brooklyn Hospital, mortally wounded.

Morgan and his companion, Gustav Destin, had just investigated a place at Pearl and High Streets, and were walking along High Street, when a man stepped from a doorway and began to shoot at them. The first shot struck Morgan in the stomach. Suddenly other men appeared and began shooting at Destin, who returned the fire without effect. A second shot struck Morgan in the shoulder as he lay prostrate. Destin seized six men and women, who were taken to the Poplar Street Station and held as material witnesses. Reserves were called from the Poplar Street Station to search for the gangsters, but they were unable to find any of the men.

How About Your Vacation? Why Not a New Spot—Something Different This Time?

It's the truth that here in America we have mountain scenery that is not equaled in all the world.

And, besides, in places like Glacier National Park, under the direct supervision of our Government, not only are the scenery and Nature's marvels unsurpassed, but care and study have been applied to make Glacier a most comfortable and delightful place to visit. Mammoth mountain inns have been established; "Swiss Chalets," on a smaller scale but very comfortable, are available; and, if you wish, there are tepee camps maintained for your convenience in the out-of-doors. It will cost you for board and lodging from one to five dollars a day, according to your purse, with everything well done.

Wonderful, glorious Glacier Park! The home of "living" glaciers and towering mountain peaks, of numberless sparkling lakes and wild flowers—more than a hundred varieties of wild flowers are found in profusion. I can't tell you about it all in this little advertisement, but write or call and I will send or hand you an illustrated folder which will surely make the notion of going to Glacier National Park this Summer appeal to you.

be able to check up on the preliminary census taken by the police several days before the State Census opened. A letter was received yesterday by Director Goodrich from Adjt. Gen. Stotesbury in which he said:

"The Governor in his proclamation ordering the military census called upon all persons of the State to facilitate the enrollment as a patriotic service to the State and nation. As a means of checking the completeness of the military census you are requested to communicate with all employers of labor in the City of New York through an open letter in the newspapers, or by other agencies of publicity, asking them to extend their co-operation by ascertaining from each employe to whom they pay a salary or wages during the week commencing July 1, or whom they subsequently employ, whether he or she is duly registered in the military census. The name and address of any employe or person applying for employment who has not registered should be furnished by the employer to you as Director of Census."

Twelve of twenty subpoenas issued on Saturday were served and those who were taken to Mr. Goodrich's office yesterday had either registered or willingly registered when the situation was explained. Among the latter were S. John Bloch, an editor of The Call, and his wife. Both had been reported as refusing to register. They explained that it was all the result of a misunderstanding, and registered without protest. One man came in to protest that he had registered by mistake. Though he said his wife lived in New York, he brought affidavits to prove that he resided in New Jersey. These were not accepted, and he was told that the incident closed so far as the census takers were concerned when he signed his registration card.

Warden Hanley and four keepers at the Tombs acted as census takers yesterday and registered all eligible inmates except two who refused to sign. One was Alexander Berkman, who insisted he was a citizen of the world and not of the State. Supoenas were issued by Mr. Goodrich for Berkman and for Emma Goldman, who, it was reported, had also refused to register.

Emma Goldman, accompanied by her lawyer, Harry Weinberger, appeared at the Federal Building yesterday afternoon and produced $29,000 in cash, $25,000 of which was given as surety to obtain the release of Berkman from the Tombs, and the rest as bail for James Bales, an employe of an anarchist publication who is awaiting trial for refusal to register for the military service on June 5 last. Both were released. Berkman and Goldman will be placed on trial tomorrow morning in the Federal Court for conspiracy to obstruct the national military law.

A letter was received by Director E. P. Goodrich from Lella Faye Secor, Secretary of the People's Council of America for Democracy and Peace, in reply to a communication sent to her by him. She had been reported in the newspapers as opposed to registration for women. Miss Secor explained that she was not personally liable under the census; her home, she said, was in Seattle, Wash., and she is living at present at Long Branch, N. J.

It was announced yesterday by the Mayor's Committee on National Defense that that organization has aided in the work of the State military census in New York City by supplying the workers with the use of automobiles amounting to 697 full dayse of service, in which 917 different cars took part at various times, and with 120 full days of service of auto trucks of from one to eight tons' capacity. It is estimated by the committee that the rental of these cars would have cost the State at least $19,400.

AT WAR WITHOUT REGISTERING

Three, Overcome by Patriotism, Finally Arrested at Coney Island.

The last night of registration under the State military census law will long be remembered by three well-dressed young men who were locked up in the Coney Island Police Station late last night charged with felonious assault and the theft of registration blanks. The prisoners said they were Harold Humphrey, a manufacturer, of the Hotel Ansonia; George Humphrey of Lynne Avenue, Sea Gate, and Robert E. Brown, a patent medicine manufacturer of Beach Avenue, Sea Gate. The trio came into public notice when they appeared in front of the Surf Avenue office of the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company and began to hammer on the door. The office had been used as a registration place, and when John Dowling, the watchman, appeared in answer to the summons, they chorused that they wanted to register.

Dowling explained that registration was over and the clerks had all gone home. His visitors, it is charged, set upon him and after assaulting him forced their way into the office. A crowd gathered and when Policeman James Naughton tried to separate the men from Dowling they turned on him. His whistle brought more policemen, who promptly piled upon the combatants and untangled them. At the Coney Island station the trio said that they knew the time for registration ended last night, and their sole reason for entering the office was to place their names on the lists as available military material.

TRIES TO SHOW DOUBLE FEES

Lawyer Accuses Burns Agency in Thaw Case.

More testimony was taken yesterday by Deputy State Controller Boardman into the charges made against the William J. Burns International Detective Agency by Edward W. Edwards, Secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council, who is seeking to have the license of the agency revoked. Meier Steinbrink, counsel for Edwards, sought to show that in the matter of the escape of Harry K. Thaw from Matteawan the agency accepted retainers from both sides.

Dr. Raymond F. C. Keib, Medical Superintendent of the asylum, testified that he had employed the agency soon after Thaw escaped, and that he had consulted with H. J. Connors and two others employed by the agency. These three men, Dr. Keib said, worked on the case for ten days, and the agency sent him a bill for $404, which was reduced to $232 when he objected.

Ten days after Thaw's escape the witness said he was in Sherbrooke, Canada, and there he saw Connors in conversation with Thaw's secretary. Job E. Hedges, counsel for the agency, questioned Connors, who testified that he had obtained a leave of absence, and was enjoying a vacation when Dr. Keib saw him. Asked what he was doing in Sherbrooke, Connors replied that at the time he was in the temporary employ of William Travers Jerome.

Mr. Steinbrink sought to get into the record other instances which he held indicated that the Burns Agency had acted improperly, but Mr. Hedges objected on the ground that the same secrecy should be granted a private detective as that which a lawyer enjoyed, and that he should not be compelled to testify against a client.

The hearing will be continued at 2 o'clock on Friday.

Four Facts for Advertisers

Four facts give The AMERICAN MAGAZINE peculiar interest right now to those engaged in buying and selling advertising:

1. The individuality of its editing—vital, constructive legitimate appeals to interest and self-interest.

2. The responsiveness of its circulation—long, descriptive letters from readers—greatly increased requests for back numbers—articles reprinted and circulated by thousands of industrial corporations for their inspirational effect—a circulation growing too fast for the paper market and press facilities.

3. Systematic selling—a trained staff in each of the large centers of population, selling The AMERICAN MAGAZINE on its merits to the people who can use it most—controlling circulation, where you can use it best.

4. The lowness of the rate—There will be a new rate effective with the January number, but even that rate will be based on only 700,000. Meanwhile the present rate, good till January, is based on 600,000. It went into effect with the May number, and over 800,000 of the May number were sold.

The AMERICAN MAGAZINE gets better every month. Its circulation gets bigger every month, and, therefore—

INVESTORS—EXECUTORS—TRUSTEES

1. Knowledge of fundamental conditions.
2. Knowledge of prices in relation to earnings.
3. Knowledge of prevailing prices as compared with those of the past.
